Hospital Costs Are Clarified

Earl Willis, administrator of General Hospital of Virginia Beach, said Tuesday he supports the clarification of the Virginia Hospital Association on increased hospital costs.

Willis, who is secretary-treasurer of the state group, referred to a letter from Stuart D. Ogron, executive director of the association, to O'Wrighton Delk Simpson of Smithfield, a member of the State Hospitalization Plans Study Commission's subcommittee on hospital costs.

Ogron, also a member of the subcommittee, sent the letter to Simpson following the Smithfield man's public statement that the subcommittee is "getting nowhere" in determining why hospital costs continue to rise.

"For years," Ogron wrote, "primarily since the implementation of Medicare-Medicaid in 1966, hospital administrators in Virginia have been trying to explain to the public exactly why hospital costs have been rising so rapidly. At times, we feel as though we are voices crying in the wilderness."

Ogron then listed eight reasons why hospital costs are so high, reasons which Willis said apply to the Virginia Beach Hospital:

• Medicare-Medicaid: Hospitals do not receive reimbursement based on actual costs of running a hospital.

Cold winds and off-again, on-again rains didn't keep the devoted tennis player and spectator away from the Tennis Patron's exhibition and match Saturday afternoon.

Over 100 persons turned out for the event, despite the antics of Hurricane Ginger which for a time threatened to cancel the match.

Beach Tennis Winner Despite Ginger's Rain

Hurricane Ginger appeared to be the winner at the 25th Street Invitational Tennis Clinic and Exhibition Saturday, but at the last minute about a hundred tennis enthusiasts preserved the victory for Virginia Beach when they braved the wind and rain and came out to 25th Street to see Sanji Arisawa and Bobby Heald battle for the Virginia-Carolina championship. The championship was never really decided, but the spectators were delighted with the match until Ginger rudely sent everyone scurrying, debating who would have won had the match been completed.

Sanji Arisawa, North Carolina's second-ranked player, bested Bobby Heald in the opening set 6-4. Then, Heald, Virginia's top-ranked men's player, stormed back to lead 4-2 in the rain-shortened second set. A number of volleys, drives, and placements by both players brought cheers from the damp gallery.

The matches between the host 25th Street Athletic Club and the guests from the Raleigh Racquet Club never really decided the winner. The 10 a.m. matches were soon interrupted by driving rain, but Raleigh had a slight edge in the three contests under play. Raleigh's number one seeded Jerry Robinson, with his very powerful and accurate serve, was leading 25th Street's Jack Dalton 5-1 in the first set. Bob Emms was winning 4-2 in the first set over Raleigh's number two seeded Dr. Sidney Martin. In a relatively even third match, Raleigh's Bill Tucker had a slight 5-4 first set lead over Harold Wheeler, the 25th Street captain.

Although the tennis play was largely rained out, the 25th Street exhibition would have to be termed a success. John Maragon and his 25th Street Athletic Club proved their point—people would come to Virginia Beach to play tennis.

And come they did! In the midst of a hurricane, nine North Carolina amateur tennis players drove to Virginia Beach at their own expense in the driving rain to play a tennis match which they felt would be rained out. But they came—everyone of them and their families; because they had promised that they would come to help the people of Virginia Beach in their quest for a tennis complex.

The Raleigh Racquet Club members began arriving at 4 p.m. Friday, and the last carload did not get in until midnight. Headquartered on the eighth floor of the Holiday Inn-

Oceanfront in 11 rooms overlooking the churning surf, the Raleigh group was impressed with the Beach in its off-season. Dr. Martin, who had not been to Virginia Beach since his Navy days, said that he would like to come back. Most of the Raleigh tennis players had never been to Virginia Beach and almost to a man they expressed an intention to return for a vacation next year.

Bobby Heald, a Richmond banker when off the courts, said that he had "never been to Virginia Beach this time of the year. It is really beautiful. I think we'll (he and his wife) come back in a couple of weeks to spend the last week of my vacation." No question about it, the weekend proved that tennis can help promote and bring people to Virginia Beach.

Other highlights of the weekend included a Friday night cocktail party at the home of John Maragon, where the eighth floor of the Holiday Inn-

Tillman Trial Nearing Jury

A Circuit Court jury is expected to receive the case of Fayette Tillman, Jr., today in his trial for the murder of Samuel W. Jones, Sr., who police say was strangled to death and dumped into Chesapeake Bay during Labor Day weekend of last year.

Tillman, 39, and Robert Lee Woody, 33, were charged with the murder of Jones, 62, after his body was found floating near the Little Creek jetty. At the time of the discovery Jones body was lashed to that of his 40-year-old wife Jane, who according to police had also been strangled to death. No charges have been placed as yet in the death of Mrs. Jones.

Woody was found guilty of second degree murder in the death of Jones by a Circuit Court jury in July, and had his punishment fixed at eight years in prison.

Woody was found guilty of second degree in the death of Jones by a Circuit Court jury in July, and had his punishment fixed at eight years in prison.

As Tillman's trial began his defense attorney James A. Gerry was overruled by Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr., on motions to disqualify the all white male jury, in light of Tillman being a Negro while the Jones' were white, and since no women were included on the panel of 30 prospective jurors; and to exclude members of the Jones family from the courtroom during proceedings on grounds that their possible emotional reactions to testimony might possibly influence the jury.

Woody was the first prosecution witness called by Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans. Woody's testimony was virtually a carbon copy of that during his trial, that Tillman killed Jones during a trip aboard Jones' 30-foot sailing trimaran into Chesapeake Bay and that he in no way assisted Tillman in the crime.

Details of his testimony, as in July, consisted of accusing Tillman of using pieces of line from the boat to bind Jones' hands and feet and strangle him. Woody reaffirmed his earlier testimony that he watched Tillman bind Jones and his wife together, tie them to a boat anchor, and throw their bodies into the Bay.

He also renewed earlier statements that he did nothing to interfere with Tillman out of fear for his own life, since Tillman was allegedly armed with a knife.

Reiterating his fear of Tillman, Woody said deliberately maneuvered the sailboat through a storm which moved into Chesapeake Bay that night, Sept. 4, 1970, towards the Bay Bridge Tunnel, crashing the craft on rocks of the crossing's third island.

Woody and Tillman, according to Woody, then climbed onto the bridge where they were found by a police patrol and taken to the crossing's office near Shore Drive where they were able to call a taxi.

Woody continued to point to his fear of Tillman through references which Tillman allegedly made regarding his (Woody's) daughter after the crime.

As the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN went to press the defense cross examination of Woody was underway, and it was questionable whether Tillman would take the stand.

During Woody's July trial he declined, on the advice of his attorney, to answer any questions on the grounds of self incrimination.

Chamber Gets Fund For Mail

The Chamber of Commerce received a $3,000 appropriation from City Council Monday to subsidize its increasing mail expenses.

The appropriation, which is half the amount requested, was necessary, chamber officials said, because of the increased number of tourist inquiries stimulated by the city's accelerated advertising program.

Public Information Officer Frank Cressy told council that 82,000 inquiries had been handled by the chamber this year, 12,000 more than last year.

The Chamber had requested $21,000 from the city in the 1971-72 budget to handle the mailings, maintain information booths at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel and Civic Center and support the annual Armed Forces Day Parade. The appropriation was cut to $15,000, however, when the entire budget was trimmed.

State Denies Lovisi's Convictions Appeals

Aldo and Margaret Lovisi this week began serving prison terms after more than two years of legal battles since their arrest on moral charges.

The Lovisi's were remanded to custody in Virginia Beach City Jail to await transfer to the State Penitentiary last Thursday by Circuit Court Judge George Vekos and Philip Russo, who preside over appeals of their convictions.

Judges Vekos and Russo denied a request from the Lovisi's that they be permitted to remain free on bond while affecting another appeal to the United States Supreme Court. The denial was based on grounds that the Lovisi's were granted bond during proceedings involving State courts, and this bond would not therefore cover their actions at the level of Federal courts.

Judges Russo and Vekos held a hearing Wednesday on a request from defense attorneys to allow the Lovisi's to remain free on their present bonds until November 30, the deadline set by the State Supreme Court of Appeals for the Lovisi's to be granted a hearing before the U. S. Supreme Court on any appeals.

During this hearing, Russo and Vekos joined in increasing the combined bonds for the Lovisi's to a total of $25,000.

Vekos reviewed the offenses involved and the convictions and the total amount of time facing the Lovisi's and said "I think this court would be remiss in allowing them to remain free on their present bonds." Judge Russo concurred.

When the new bonds were set, which now total $15,000 for him and $10,000 for her, Russo was asked about the possibility of being able to raise the bonds in order to get the couple out of City Jail. He said "I don't see how we can do it."

Lovisi has been ordered to serve two years on a sodomy conviction, while his wife is being confined on a five year sentence on conviction of arson.

Aldo, 43, and his 33-year-old wife were arrested in April of 1969 at their Alantown home when police allegedly discovered a large quantity of obscene material throughout the dwelling, which Mrs. Lovisi reportedly attempted to destroy by setting fires in various rooms.

Russo and Vekos referred to the State Supreme Court denial of the Lovisi's appeal and said it was their opinion existing bonds, which totaled $3,000 for him and $4,000 for her, were inadequate.

Defense attorneys Gerald Rubinger and Ted Boyce plan the Lovisi's case on grounds that neither had shown any intent to flee the country and that they have received, and argued against increased bonds.

When the new bonds were set, which now total $15,000 for him and $10,000 for her, Russo was asked about the possibility of being able to raise the bonds in order to get the couple out of City Jail. He said "I don't see how we can do it."

Clinic Groundbreaking Held Despite 'Ginger'

When the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults scheduled a groundbreaking ceremony last week for its proposed clinic on Magic Hollow Blvd. Road, it reckoned without the unpredictable mood of hurricane Ginger.

The ceremony, then, was transferred across the street to the Aragona Moose Lodge.

L.H. McCue, Jr. of Lynchburg, state president of the Society accepted the symbolic shovel from builder Richard Hudson.

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes was master of ceremonies. Special words of appreciation were addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Aragona, who donated the land on which the clinic will be built.

Introduced were F. Cameron

Wiley, executive director; David Lisk, associate executive director; Miss Harriet Allstock, president, Virginia Beach Chapter; Ben Paul Snyder, president Norfolk Chapter.

Present, too, was the building committee: James Kontopoulos, Mrs. Mrs. E.A. Hofmeister, Mrs. Robin Owen, Ben Paul Snyder and Jackson Tignor.

Work is to begin immediately on the clinic which will serve the Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News, Hampton, Eastern Shore and Suffolk. It will house the Southeastern Area Field Office and Easter Seal Speech and Hearing Center.

Pre-Engineered Structures, Inc. donated the plans. The building will have no architectural barriers for the handicapped. Halls will be wide enough to permit the passage of two wheel chairs; there will be no steps; doors will be wide to admit wheel chairs.

Cost of the building is $61,000, with an additional $10,000 for site work and fees, and $6,000 estimated for furniture and equipment.

The initial cost of $61,000 is furnished by the State Society; the remaining $15,000 must be raised through donations, half of which has already been obtained by the local society.

Beach Officers Earn Top Academy Honors

Officer J. R. Carruthers, Virginia Beach let Police Precinct, has graduated from the Tidewater Police Academy with the highest honor ever achieved by an Academy student.

Carruthers completed the nine-week course with a final average of 97.8 which not only placed him in the top standing of the Academy's 17th session, but also earned him the distinction of achieving the highest graduating average of any of the 560 police officers who have completed studies at the Academy.

Carruthers earned his nearly perfect grade through 328 hours of classroom and field training. The course, offered through Old Dominion University in Norfolk, included such subjects as Administration, Community Relations, Police Procedures and Techniques, Criminal Investigation, Criminal Law and Procedure, First Aid and Related Training, Traffic Law Enforcement, Firearms Training, Physical Education, and Jurisdiction and Functions of Other Law Enforcement Agencies.

Four other Virginia Beach police officers also graduated in upper standings among the class of 37 students.

J. P. Bradner placed second with an average of 94.3; K.L. Ruggles was seventh with an average of 91.4; while A. N. Antaki and W. D. Bryan tied for ninth place standing with averages of 90.3.

These achievements were also significant in that every Virginia Beach police officer who entered the 17th training session distinguished himself in class standings.

Landmark Comes Down

The old Martha Washington Hotel, long a familiar Virginia Beach landmark, will soon be no more. Demolition of the Atlantic Avenue hotel started Tuesday, it was recently condemned because of damage suffered in two separate fires earlier this year.

Herzer To Play Franco Composition

Two of Virginia Beach's most talented and recognized musicians will be featured in two area concerts today and Sunday.

Pianist Clifford Herzer will appear in concert at Virginia Wesleyan College today at 11 a.m. and at the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk Sunday at 4 p.m. His program will feature a composition by Beach composer Johan Franco, "Theme and Variations," written in 1944.

Also included in Herzer's concert will be "Sonata in E Flat Major by Haydn (Allegro, Adagio, Presto); "Chaconne" by Bach-Busoni; "Four Ballades Opus 10" by Brahms; and "Sonata in F Minor Opus 1" by Prokofiev.

Herzer is well-known as a guest artist with the Norfolk Symphony and has gained international recognition through appearances with symphony orchestras throughout the U.S. as well as England, Italy, Austria, Norway, West Germany, France and Holland.

He is also director of the Clifford Herzer Piano School in Norfolk and Virginia Beach and teaches at Norfolk State College.

Pianist Herzer confers with composer Franco over concert selections.

20 Firms Sponsor Jr Achievement

Twenty Tidewater businesses have been signed-up by Junior Achievement as sponsoring firms for this year's program. From these businesses, 70 volunteer businessmen will contribute their time and experience to the approximately 500 participants of the 24 Junior Achievement companies.

The 70 businessmen, having just completed advisor training, will begin work with the Junior Achievers October 18th.

This year's members of Junior Achievement chosen from twelve high schools in the Norfolk and Virginia Beach areas have again reached the capacity number for the Junior Achievement facilities. The members will be meeting at

Teacher Exams On November 13

The National Teacher Examinations (NTE) will be given Nov. 13 at Old Dominion University, which has been designated as a test center.

Franklin R. Jones, professor of secondary education, said that college seniors preparing to teach, and teachers applying for positions in schools which encourage or require NTE are eligible to take the tests.

Bulletins of information describing registration procedures and containing registration forms and sample test questions may be obtained from the University's General Education Office.

Registration forms should be sent to the Educational Testing Service before Oct. 21.

Mrs. Peterson cuts the cake making her officially "Sweetheart of the Day" as Harold Revis, John B. Dey principal, Judy Hundley of WVAB. Tracey Ashmore and the sixth grade class look on proudly.

Pupils Named Her "Sweetheart Of The Day"

Sixth grade pupils of Mrs. Jeanette Peterson at John B. Dey School think their teacher is just about the greatest.

So they wanted to show her how they felt. But what to do and how to go about it?

Tracey Ashmore knew. She'd heard a program called "Sweetheart of the Day" on Radio Station WVAB. That's when a lucky woman is chosen to receive carnations from Herbert's, a $5 certificate from Pandemonium, a seafood dinner from Hurd's Restaurant and a $5 certificate for food at Food Town.

Why not, thought Tracey, nominate our teacher? So she did. All the students signed a letter that Tracey sent to the radio station.

It read: "Dear Sir: We are sixth grade students at John B. Dey Elementary School. We would like for you to make our teacher Mrs. Peterson Sweetheart of the Day. She is in Room 21.

She is a fine teacher and is good to us. We think she is very considerate and that she is also fair to everyone. We learn a lot in her room.

Thank you.

The letter was signed by Richard Povey, Jimmie Martens, Davy Weir, Cheryl Hawkins, Lindy Ayers, Glen Hoeverman, Shirley Gullion, Bobby Howsars, Mike Morris, Christine Waller, Steven Bar, Patricia De Waters, Betty Pollock, David Brown, Connie Wood, David Allen Friello, Elizabeth Brock, Kenny Browder, Jimmy Head, Joe Hampton, Corky Scott, Cindy Absalom, Jimmy Gardner, Mike Janson, Jeff Mullen.

So impressed was WVAB with the letter that Dee Martin, secretary, passed it on to Judy Hundley, sales manager of the station.

Judy and Dee decided to take it further. They contacted Moore's Bakery, and Mrs. Moore promptly donated a nice big cake. Bayville Farms provided the ice-cream. Arnett's Gift Shop gave them Snoopy party favors.

They contacted the principal of the school, Harold Revis, who thought the idea fine. It was all to be a big surprise and very hush-hush. Dee warned the children not to let the cat out of the bag.

Amazingly, they didn't. And at 1 p.m. when class reconvened and the children filed back into school after lunch, they sprang the surprise on their beloved teacher.

"For me?" she said, in disbelief. They assured her it was, and there was much excitement as she cut the cake and thanked the children and a warm glow spread throughout the room.

Wesleyan Students Teaching Interns

Ten Virginia Wesleyan College students are now involved in student teaching in the Virginia Beach public school system.

Two are in elementary schools and eight are in junior and senior high schools, according to Dr. George A. Churukian, director of teacher education at Virginia Wesleyan. The students are spending eight weeks in this experience and then will have an eight week session in the Norfolk public school system.

Those participating in the student teaching program this semester are Carla Bristow of Hampton; John Robert Clark of Martinsville; Charlotte Duer Fields of Newport News; Ann H. Garrett and Christine Griffin of Virginia Beach; James S. Hudgens of Newport News; Margaret Jett of Redville; John N. Laycock of Hamilton; Sarah Renfro of Springfield; and John W. Tatum of Norfolk.

Those in elementary education are at Hermitage and Thoroughgood schools. Secondary education students are at Bayside Junior and Senior High Schools, First Colonial High School, Kempville High School and Princess Anne High School.

Wesleyan has one fulltime and four part time faculty members in the department of education. The four part time faculty members this semester are Mrs. Lucy S. Herman of Norfolk; Mrs. Rosemary Matthews of Virginia Beach; Mrs. Evelyn Oglesby of Chesapeake; and Mrs. Travis Peters of Norfolk. All four teach one course in the education program. Mrs. Matthews is catalogue librarian at Virginia Wesleyan. Mrs.

Peters is also assisting with the student teaching program.

This is Dr. Churukian's first year at Virginia Wesleyan. A native of Paris, Illinois, he received his undergraduate degree from Millikin University, an M.S. degree from Hofstra University and a Ph.D. degree from Syracuse University. He came to Wesleyan from Syracuse University where he has served for the past two years as associate director of the Urban Teacher Preparation Program. Virginia Wesleyan has 626 fulltime students.

Religions Will Be Discussed

Mr. Ley is a native of British Guiana and is partly Oriental in origin. He maintains a permanent retreat for religious students in Texas. A student of comparative religions, he will talk on Eastern and Western religions, their similarities and contrasts.

Lectures on "Three Sages and a Seer" will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, October 12th, 14th and 15th at 7:30 p.m. by Hugh Lynn Cayce, the three sages being W.H. Hudson, author of "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," William James, the eminent psychologist, author of "Varieties of Religious Experiences," and P.D. Ouspensky, author of "Tertium Organum" and many other works. These were recommended in the seer Edgar Cayce's readings. These lectures are open to the public and will give opportunity for questions and answers.

These Mothers Are Different

Wow! and Webb Productions got their winter session of Rock groups off to a nice start Monday night at the Virginia Beach Civic Center with Frank Zappa and his talented Mothers.

The night had a right unusual beginning with a five man singing group called the Persuasions who claimed to have lost their 87-piece orchestra in Madrid in a plane mix up. Despite the loss they got going with music and turned out a magnificent harmony that everyone really dug.

After that strange and different beginning, an even stranger and different yet hot, group came on-Frank Zappa and his Mothers of Invention.

The stage was cluttered with every kind of instrument one could imagine and the Mothers could play them all, from mini moog synthesizer to electric pianos and organs and an array of other instruments of sound.

The show opened with a familiar hit of "Call Any Vegetable" which ran into Frank Zappa's superior leads and that really got the people moving.

The Mothers played several hits from their new live album, and added to the show with their typical funny antics.

The group got the winter off to a smashing start inside what they called a "a giant golf ball" better known as the dome.

Wow! and Webb's have announced their next group will be Jethro Tull and will be held in November at William and Mary.

Halloween Restrictions Placed By Ordinance

City Council approved two ordinances Monday placing restrictions on Halloween trick-or-treaters.

The first prohibits any person to engage in the activity after 9 p.m. and the other limits the participant's age to 12 years and under.

The time originally was set for 8 p.m. but fathers on the council were a bit hesitant to make the curfew that early.

"I usually take my children out on Halloween," Bayside

Councilman Dr. Clarence Holland commented, "and I can't even start until at least seven o'clock. That doesn't leave much time."

Mrs. Kay Gray, representing the Church Women United, asked for the extra hour also and questioned the age limit, stating it would curtail solicitations for UNICEF and other charities by the older children.

City Attorney Dale Blumson pointed out that the ordinance allows parents, guardians or other responsible persons to accompany the youngsters so long as the older ones do not participate in trick-or-treat activities.

"In other words they can solicit money but they can't accept candy," Councilman Robert Cromwell quipped.

Violators to the ordinances will be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of $10 to $100 or a jail sentence not to exceed 30 days, or both. In the age ordinance the fine starts at $25.

In other action Monday, Director of Community Services W. W. Fleming asked council to allow him to purchase three pieces of heavy equipment with the $85,000 appropriated for spreading dirt removed from Seaside Canal. The fund was planned for bids on the project.

Fleming said that the $85,000 was "not feasible" for bids and asked that he be allowed to buy a bulldozer and two tandem trucks so that the job could be handled by city work forces. That way, he said, the city would have an investment in the equipment.

Councilman George Ferrell questioned the move. "We changed the course of the channel at a cost of $31,000. Now it's costing $85,000 and it will eventually cost even more," he said.

Ferrell produced a copy of the original contract permitting the city to dump the spoil on a portion of the W. R. Malbon Farm. He pointed out that the material was sandy and shouldn't be difficult to spread or remove.

Councilman Reid Ervin said he thought the texture would be gummy rather than sandy and commented "There'll be more skeletons in this closet yet, George."

Council took no action on Fleming's request.

Traffic Victim

A 16 year old high school student became the 22nd traffic fatality of the year in the resort city last Thursday night in an accident in the Alanton section of the city.

Officials identified him as James D. Tuily, of Gretnach Road.

The accident occurred about 825 p.m. near the intersection of Ashley Drive and N. Woodhouse Road.

The Old Dominion Chapter was founded in 1934 with 35 members to promote a friendly association among its membership. Nationwide some 345,000 persons are members of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

Budget Proposals Planning Committee Appointed Unrealistic: Guy

Delegate Richard D. Guy brought State finances to the forefront of his Senatorial campaign this week by classifying budget proposals being submitted for consideration in the next General Assembly as being "clearly unrealistic in terms of what the people of Virginia are going to be able to pay for and are going to be willing to pay for."

Guy has called for a "real and determined effort" to be made for trimming budget requests before the convening of the State Legislature.

He strengthened his stand by saying "we must have a realistic estimate of the income that the State can expect to receive under present taxes and then the State should do everything necessary to live within that income without increasing those taxes or creating new ones."

Guy also pointed to the importance of his being elected to the Senate as a Democrat to assure the people of Virginia Beach of having proper representation in the General Assembly.

Reminding residents of the recent election of three Democratic Delegates Guy warned this delegation would "be crippled if they did not have a Democratic Senator to work with them to carry the ball for them when their proposals reach the Senate."

This possibility, Guy pointed out, exists in the fact of the Legislature being composed primarily of Democrats who therefore have the majority vote in budgetary and legislative matters.

Mayor Donald Rhodes reportedly has advised the city's present planning committee that they have been replaced with seven new appointees.

The action has apparently been in the making for several weeks. Rhodes had indicated earlier that he wanted to consider a restructuring of the committee. Last week Princess Anne Councilman Curtis Payne, chairman of the present committee, told council he would like to discuss the mayor's proposal.

No move had been made, however, until after Monday's council meeting when Rhodes reportedly sent letters to the committee members advising them of the new appointments.

Serving with Payne on the current committee is Oral Lambert, the city's director of special services; Planning Director Charles Carrington; George Times, assistant to the city manager; City Purchasing Agent Carroll Clough; and David Cassida, head of the city's real estate division.

Replacements include: Assistant City Manager George Hanbury; Circuit Court Judge

George W. Vokes; Planning Commission Chairman Harry Mote; James E. Birdwell, a banker; William J. Fanny, Norfolk Savings and Loan; Dean Lee, accountant; and Rubin I. Hedeboth, builder.

Schools Get Free Booklets

A free booklet entitled "How To Do Your Banking" is being distributed this year to schools in Virginia Beach by First & Merchants National Bank, according to A. W. Craft, Jr., Senior Vice President.

Craft said the booklets are designed to instruct students in a variety of banking practices, ranging from how to write a check to computing the interest on a loan.

This year, over 8,423 booklets have been requested by teachers for classroom use in Tidewater. The booklets are utilized in mathematics, business, and bookkeeping courses.

The 24-page booklet contains chapters dealing with checking accounts, savings accounts, loans and other major services of a bank. The program also provides a teacher's guide and testing material. Numerous illustrations describe correct depositing procedures, check writing procedures, and other banking services which students will be using.

Craft said the bank also conducts tours of its facilities for students so they can see first hand the integral complexities of bank business. A major feature of the bank tour is an explanation of the bookkeeping department and a first hand look at the computer center and its capabilities.

The booklet is made available to schools as a public service by First & Merchants National Bank which serves Tidewater.

Caton Tackles Strong Issues

Edward T. (Ned) Caton, III, directed his campaign for reelection to the State Senate this week on matters which have drawn strong public reaction.

These included pollution and erosion, Wetlands preservation, and education through public schools.

On the subjects of pollution and erosion Caton called for strict enforcement of anti-pollution laws, along with an upgrading of sewage treatment standards and strengthening laws which cover such operations.

In the field of Wetlands preservation Caton cited the necessity to "educate the public on the need to preserve Virginia's coastal marshes, swamps and beaches." He also said that if re-elected he would offer legislation which would "establish guidelines for local zoning of Wetlands and shore lands" and "prepare for State zoning where local authorities fail to act."

Concerning public schools Caton said that he would "vigorously oppose any consolidation of the school divisions of Norfolk and Virginia Beach."

He pointed to the new Virginia Constitution providing for every child having access to "a program of quality education and his belief in the importance of "local control of education."

Caton added however that he favored "establishing standards of 'quality' that will have teeth sufficient to remove local control to the State where these responsible on the local level fail to reach the established standards."

VMRC Should Protect Wetlands

Continuing his Republican campaign for the State Senate this week Joe Canada commented on the controversy which has developed over the future of Virginia Wetlands.

Canada said that in his opinion "sensitive bodies of water, like the Chesapeake Bay are on the brink of destruction today," and called for safeguards against polluting of Wetlands.

He suggested that in order to assure the most effective method of protecting this vital resource he felt "that Virginia Marine Resources Commission should become the State's agency responsible for administering the problem of dealing with our Wetlands."

Canada also commented on the State Corporation Commission and public approval of school bond issue.

Canada said "the SCC has shown its inability to do a fair job for all of Virginia," and called for revising the membership of the SCC.

He specifically urged expanding the SCC from its present membership of three to a five member board, and "have the membership elected by popular vote."

Canada challenged discussed changes of the City Charter which would permit issuance of school bonds through City Council and School Board approval without voter approval. Such approval Canada said should remain the right of "Virginia Beach voters and taxpayers."

Sandor B. (Sandy) Bragg, son of Cmdr. and Mrs. Frank B. Bragg of 49th Street, is among 33 students who will spend a year of preparatory studies on the English Isles, under a program sponsored by the British-American Educational Foundation. Sandy, a Norfolk Academy student, will be at the Winchester School in Norfolk, England. He sailed aboard the Cunard Line's Queen Elizabeth II.

Pioneer Day October 28

Governor Linwood Holton has issued a proclamation declaring October 28 as Telephone Association Pioneer Day in Virginia. The date has been set throughout the nation to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the organization.

The Old Dominion Chapter Telephone Pioneers of America, comprising some 4000 members, is made up of telephone employees with 21 or more years of service in the communications industry.

In the Governor's proclamation the Telephone Pioneers were cited for their work in community service activities.

In Virginia the Pioneers are devoting some 1200 hours yearly on such projects as repairing talking-book machines for the blind, providing "Ditty Bags" for servicemen in Vietnam, old eyeglass frame collections for "New Eyes for the Needy," clothing and toys for the underprivileged.

The Old Dominion Chapter was founded in 1934 with 35 members to promote a friendly association among its membership. Nationwide some 345,000 persons are members of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

An opportunity for your son.

Newspaper route management teaches him to deal with people

A BOY with a newspaper route earns money that can help him get the things he wants. More than that, he learns life's important lessons.

One of these is how to deal with people.

Meeting his customers on his route, collecting and delivering, he gains the valuable business competence. It will help him throughout his life. Many former newspaper boys, notable successes among them, have told us so much.

Your newspaperboy also teaches the essential life lessons in the classroom in a practical way by making change and handling bills... that he becomes a better student. He learns, too, the value of good money and good manners.

In fact, you'll find that a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life... while building a habit of good manners.

Should your son be inclined to get into mischief, that step ahead, keep him on track with us. There may be a route available to him in your neighborhood. And along with it... the opportunity for the self-education of good manners.

Individual Appointments

It really should not have come as any surprise when Mayor Donald Rhodes came up with a newly appointed building committee. The inuendoes have been there for several weeks...a comment from the mayor that he wanted to study the restructuring of the committee (he even asked council to meet with him in executive session but it was a heavy docket that day and, if memory serves us correctly, the meeting was either very brief or nonexistent); Princess Anne Councilman Curtis Payne, chairman of the outgoing building committee, the week following the mayor's first comment, hinted at discontent over the situation and said he would like to discuss it with the council.

If the matter had come before City Council on Monday it would not have been totally unexpected. But it did not come before City Council. It came in the form of a letter following the meeting. A letter directed to the current committee and released, apparently, only to a Norfolk newspaper.

The appointments should not have been a surprise...but they were. The building committee was unaware of the change. The other councilmen had not been consulted (at least not publicly). The citizens obviously had not been alerted. It was strictly Mayor Rhodes' baby all the way.

This, of course, has been the question all along. Should the mayor have sole authority in appointing an influential committee? Mayor Rhodes himself posed this question several weeks ago, quoting the City Charter passage which would seem to authorize such action. None of the councilmen—none openly—challenged his authority. Even Councilman Payne kept quiet; he must surely have been biting his tongue.

This situation can only be judged on its own merit, exactly as it has been presented to the public. Personalities are of little consequence. Who has been appointed is not the issue (though some will raise an eyebrow or two). It's why they were appointed, and how it was handled, that should be of concern.

Mayor Rhodes has been quoted as saying the current committee was "not functioning". That probably depends on what one considers "functioning". And few outside the immediate governmental circle are in a position to judge. But, surely, if this committee had been so remiss in its duties it would have been obvious before now, surely the entire council would have been alerted to it.

If the City Charter does, indeed, empower the mayor with these decisions, then the time has come to take a closer look at the Charter. These are complex times in the growth and development of Virginia Beach. No one man, whether he be mayor, city manager or political leader, should have the responsibility of controlling this city's future. One committee won't do that, of course, but many committees could have untold influence.

Individuality is a beautiful thing. But that isn't what this city needs now. It needs unity. It needs a City Council that will pull together, put its own political beliefs and affiliations aside in favor of molding a city of balanced growth. The people elect the council because they are entitled to a voice in what is done. One man empowered to sidestep the other elected councilmen deprives the citizens of this right. That's why this particular matter is important.

Restrictions On Fun

It's getting that time of year when memories keep creeping in, when holidays of bygone years edge their way into the pressures of the moment. Like Halloween, when you were kids, and it was not the gunshots that heralded the commercial race toward Christmas, but rather the school carnival, the witch's costume, candy apples and the door-to-door collection of potential tummy aches.

The school carnival was a big thing then. It started at five in the afternoon with cloth-draped boards braced on saw-horses, set around the school yard, and laden with such yummys as chicken pique (per-low it was called in Florida) and homebaked cakes and gooey homemade fudge and divinity.

Kids, dressed in every imaginable costume—especially ghosts and gnomes and pirates—dashed from booth to booth, getting their fortunes told, bobbing for apples, pulling surprises from the wishing well.

Mothers manned the booths and served the food while fathers kept the fires going under the gummy chicken and rice. Teachers mingled with the families and children waited apprehensively for the eventual meeting between teacher and parents.

At the stroke of seven—or maybe it was eight—everyone migrated to the auditorium for the Big Parade. Costumed youngsters giggled and shuffled as the seats filled and when the auditorium was full the house lights dimmed, the stage lights came on the music teacher attacked the piano and the parade of goblins began.

The competition was tough. There were no dimostore costumes; they were all made from scraps or other convenient materials. First prize invariably went to the girl dressed as a fairy princess—always a dance school student—and the boy's prize always went to an impromptu hobo. And the big award never failed to be a jar of hard candy.

Such memories bring a warm glow. One wonders if today's generation will look back in years to come on the happiness and excitement of Halloween. Will they remember the sheer joy of just being young? Or will they remember that all trick-or-treating had to be wrapped up at a certain time and that once they hit that twelfth birthday Halloween was already a part of the past?

Ordinances restricting the activities of young people continue to pile up on the books. Most of them, admittedly, are for the youngster's own protection. But it becomes more and more difficult for the young to simply enjoy being young. It's really rather sad.

Let's Freeze Taxes Also

The following editorial is not original. It appeared in the September 1971 issue of "Foodman", the Virginia Food-Dealers Association's publication. The Virginia Press Association immediately received requests to reprint it, and, because of this interest, obtained blanket permission to reprint it in newspapers throughout the State. It is a timely subject and one which may be of interest to Sun readers:

The fight against inflation is on; wages and prices have been frozen for at least 90 days. But why stop there? Spiraling taxes have probably done more to fuel the fire, with wage and price increases the by-product of heavier taxes bites all down the line. A tax freeze should go hand in hand with the wage-price freeze.

A two-year moratorium on all tax increases—federal, state and local—would in all probability do more to put the brakes on inflation than anything else. There is hardly a government agency that couldn't get along fine, providing all needed services, on less money than is now being spent. Yet, bigger and bigger budgets are being prepared, requiring even more tax money.

For example, we have heard that the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Commerce is preparing a budget for the coming fiscal period which calls for some 50 additional job positions. We hope this is just a rumor, but it is more likely somewhere close to fact. And it is quite likely that other proposed departmental budgets will request more money. We don't mean to single out the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Commerce, or the State of Virginia. The federal government and all state and local governments are guilty of excessive spending in relation to essential needs.

The condition will not abate until a lid is put on the cash flow. Only when federal, state and local governments and all of their agencies are told, "This is all you get to work with, you don't get any more" will the nonessentials be deleted and the dollars available be put to their best practical use.

Business and the general public have been put under restraints by The President's Executive Order. Action should follow immediately to put all levels of government under similar and effective restraints. This can only be accomplished with any degree of effectiveness by freezing taxes for a period long enough to force more economical use of tax monies. This is the only way to separate the wheat from the chaff in government spending, and it is the most important basic step to take in trying to stabilize the American economy. Taxes are a major part of the cost of living and doing business. They affect prices and wages and should not be left free to run wild.

Does anyone else agree with this line of thinking? Foodman would appreciate receiving your comments and opinions.

PRAYER FOR A CITY. O Lord, we pray Thee for this, the city of our love and pride. Help us to make our city the mighty common workshop of our people, where everyone will find his place and task, in daily achievement building up his own life to resolute manhood, keen to do his best with hand and mind. Bind our citizens, not by the bond of money or of profit alone, but by the glow of neighborly goodwill, by the thrill of common joys, and the pride of common possessions.

Grant us a vision of our city, fair as she might be; a city of justice, where none shall prey on others, a city of plenty, where vice and poverty shall cease to fester, a city of brotherhood, where all success shall be founded on service, and honor shall be given to nobleness alone; a city of peace, where order shall not rest on force, but on the love of all for the city, the great mother of the common life and weal. Hear Thou, O Lord, the silent prayer of all our hearts as we each pledge our time and strength and thought to speed the day of her coming beauty and righteousness.

Howell Foe Of Abortion

To the Editor:

Before the November 2nd election of the Lieutenant Governor, I would like to bring to the attention of the women of Virginia the fact that Henry Howell has a complete disregard for your health and welfare, and has provided this by his voting record.

Although his assistant, Mr. Robert E. Brown, wrote to me that "Senator Howell has long favored abortion reform," the facts speak otherwise.

On March 12, 1970, The Norfolk Ledger Dispatch stated, "The Senate Welfare Committee today revised the language of a bill to liberalize the states abortion law and sent it to the full Senate over the objection of Senator Henry Howell of Norfolk. The vote was 9 to 3 with Senator M.P. Echols voting against the bill with Howell."

Henry Howell, voted against the bill in the subcommittee and refrained from voting for the final bill.

This politician, in voting against a moderate bill, sets himself up as knowing what is best for womenkind. He considers himself better qualified than women themselves, since he refuses to allow them jurisdiction over their own bodies. Nor does he have a kind word to say for their doctors. He expressed concern that "Your friendly gynecologist or your friendly physician" might be too indulgent to a woman needing an abortion, that he, Henry Howell, might deem unnecessary.

Very truly yours,

Mrs. Archibald Craige
Kewick, Va.

Suggests Complete Coverage

To the Editor:

The Sun is Virginia Beach's only home newspaper and has always represented to me the best source for the local news that affects us most, the people in our city. In this critical stage of growth and development of Virginia Beach it is essential that our citizens be kept informed on all possible aspects that relate to it.

Our City Council, as the elected representatives of the people, have the major responsibility in hearing, discussing and deciding the major issues.

Why cannot the Sun give a complete report of all Council actions, including the vote of each Council member?

Prefers No Signs

To the Editors:

I don't know what your sign ordinance is, but I believe if you could drive through Loudoun

Country, Virginia you would quickly adopt any ordinance to do away with signs.

Loudoun County has no commercial signs and to drive through that lovely mountainous and not be struck with the vulgarisms of man's ugliness is a joy!

One of the few things I do not like about Virginia Beach is the "Honky-Tonk" look of the commercial area. It is too beautiful a place to be cheapened by all that confusing mass of advertisement.

If Virginia Beach could have signs that are really readable, small and look like old Williamsburg, or the National Parks, it would be the prettiest place in the United States.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Edward Craun

More Concern From Firms

The above letter from T. Justin Moore Jr., president of Virginia Electric Power Company pretty well shows the controversy last week's question stirred up. And Vepco wasn't the only firm concerned over the way it was presented.

The question was: "Do you think utility companies are justified in increasing their rates during the President's Freeze?"

The question happened to be one of those "by popular demand" ones. It had been posed to the newspaper by several persons and was an all questions are-presented as a community service.

The main concern of the utility companies was that the rates have NOT been increased during the freeze, as the question seems to indicate. Increases have been applied for but, if approved, would not be effective until long after the freeze has ended. The question was perhaps inadequately stated.

Despite this, however, the readers voiced concern and unanimously voted NO. But the utility companies will be pleased to know that the response was very light.

Only one reader made any political references: "No, and if they don't believe it, Henry

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Voters Fooled

To the Editor:

During our last school bond referendum, Mr. John B. Gravatt led what he called Concerned Citizens against the referendum. The group pretended to be interested in our children and in our public schools, but they made strong attacks against the construction proposals. Many of us believed them, but we now see Mr. Gravatt's true colors—he is against all public schools, he is for abolishing all public schools and setting up private schools in this country. He wrote a letter saying as much to the Virginian Pilot this week.

Many of us were fooled by Mr. Gravatt, including myself, and I think you owe it to us to tell the people the truth about how he fooled us and caused us to turn our backs on our children. I won't do it again, I promise you. Mrs. H.T. Conway

Vepco Explains

To the Editor

We believe that utility rates should not be raised during the 90-day Wage Price Freeze, ordered by President Nixon on August 15, 1971. In so far as regulation of utility rates after the freeze period is over, you may be interested in the enclosed copy of my letter of September 17, 1971, to the Honorable Maurice H. Stans, Secretary of Commerce.

In this letter to Secretary Stans I attempt to point out that utilities generally react to inflationary price changes rather than cause them and because of the complex nature of regulatory proceedings there is usually a serious lag in obtaining revenue adjustments. I also point out that Vepco's pending rate case before the State Corporation Commission is not set for public hearing until March of 1972, well beyond the November termination of the current Wage Price Freeze.

In closing, let me assure you that no one will be more pleased than Vepco to see inflation brought under control since it imposes unique hardships on the electric utilities as pointed out in my letter to Secretary Stans.

Sincerely Yours,
T. Justin Moore, Jr., President

My dear Mr. Secretary:

In further reply to your request for comments on the new economic program of the President, we are pleased to assure you that Vepco gives its full endorsement and support to the wage-price freeze ordered by the President on August 15, 1971. We are further in accord with his statement to the Congress that stabilization measures of some nature would be necessary after the 90-day period of the freeze. In that connection, it is vital for his declared purposes to bear in mind the responsive, rather than causative, position of the electric utilities; that is, basically they react to price changes rather than cause them. The basic duty of electric utilities is to provide an adequate and dependable source of electric energy. The demands in the territory served by Virginia Electric and Power Company are increasing so rapidly that the Company is obliged to invest $2.1 billion in additional facilities during the 5-year period 1971-1975. This is greater than the entire net investment in the Company accumulated from its inception near the beginning of the 20th century to the end of 1970. Of this large amount, $1.7 billion must be raised from the sale of securities in the financial markets.

Why should this growth be maintained? This is a natural question, but the answer is simple. It is not only necessary to fulfill the Company's legal duty to serve its present and future customers but also necessary to the accomplishment of the policies of the President to (a) continue improvement of the standard of living, (b) sustain improvement in the economy, and (c) provide the means for protecting the environment.

How can this growth be maintained? This also is a natural question, and the answer is of great importance. It can be sustained only by making the securities of the Company sufficiently attractive to investors so that they can be marketed on reasonable terms. That can be done only by safeguarding a sound trend in earnings and rate of return.

By assuring that the economic program of the President will completely prevent any further increases in wages or prices, the earnings of the Company will undoubtedly be eroded by three factors that have a mathematical operation: (a) the construction of new facilities of the increased cost levels of today raises the Company's depreciation charges above amounts determined on the basis of the lower price levels of past construction; (b) the financing of new capital, whether by debt or by equity, at today's higher levels of cost raises the Company's average cost of capital and the levels resulting from financing in earlier years; and (c) the rapidly escalating costs of environmental protection impose wholly new cost burdens, which produce no additional revenue. As a result of these factors, a rapidly growing utility must, to provide reliable service to its customers, continue to have available a reasonable rate of return in order to assure the financial integrity of the enterprise, provide reasonable compensation to investors, and attract the necessary capital on reasonable terms.

It would be noted that the necessity for increased rates results from changes that have already occurred in the economy. Rate increases are, therefore, wholly responsive to the other changes in prices levels. They are not in any sense initially causative. The task of administering price changes by electric utilities is effectively discharged by the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve Commission. Thus Virginia Electric and Power Company must obtain authorization from the State commissions of Virginia, North Carolina, and West Virginia as well as from the Federal Power Commission. The substitution of a single federal agency for the solution of this complex problem that varies from state to state throughout the union, to govern the largest industry in the nation, would be completely impractical. It is appropriate, therefore, that any plan for the stabilization of prices should adopt the plan followed during World War II and the Korean War by delegating the regulation of utility rates to the appropriate state and federal regulatory commissions. It is not too much to say that any different course would threaten paralysis to the economy.

This brief review makes it clear why Virginia Electric and Power Company stated last June that it would be obliged to file an application for increased rates about the middle of August. Previously the Company had succeeded in offsetting 17 years of increases in its unit costs by achieving price increases. After that its rates declined 27 per cent in the period 1954 to June, 1970, though the cost of living increased 41 per cent in that period. No longer able to offset the multiplying price increases, the Company was obliged to file an application with the Virginia Commission in November, 1969, for permission to increase rates. After elaborate factual investigations and hearings, the Commission authorized increases averaging about 9 per cent by an order dated June 16, 1970. An appeal from this order by consumer interests was not decided until April 26, 1971, including time for preparation, the Virginia rate review, though pressed with all possible dispatch, took about two years. During the period of appeal, fuel costs to the Company, which has no clause for automatically adjusting rates in response to changes in fuel costs, unexpectedly increased by more than the amount of the 1970 rate increase so that the Company was in a worse position than it was at the beginning.

In this untenable situation, from the point of view of the consumers as well as from the point of view of investors, the Company immediately applied to the Virginia Commission for authority to adopt a fuel adjustment clause. This was refused by the Commission. As the next best alternative, the Company immediately requested approval of a surcharge of .50 mills per kWh to offset the experienced drop in rates. After a public hearing, the Commission approved a fuel surcharge averaging 1.28 mills per kWh, less than the actual increase in expense, and required the Company to file an application for full rate review before October 31, 1971. The company pointed out that it could not continue its large construction program on this type of marginal rate relief and stated that it would immediately prepare its petition for full rate review and file about the middle of August. It is essential to permit the sale of 4,000,000 shares of common stock scheduled for September 9, 1971. Registration statements for these shares and for $50 million of bonds to be sold on September 8, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on August 13, contained a commitment that "on August 16, 1971, the Company will file with the Virginia Commission an application for a permanent increase in electric rates, of an overall average of about 19 per cent in addition to the increase of about 7 per cent provided for by the temporary emergency rate relief." In June.

The large short term debt of the Company ($137 million) and impending construction obligations, all incurred for the construction program, required these sales of bonds and common stock by early September. To make these sales at that time required the registration statements to be filed by August 13. The required a substantially concurrent filing for rate relief. Arrangements for such filing were, therefore, made for 9 a.m. on Monday, August 16.

The President's announcement on Sunday evening, August 15, required reconsideration of this program. To abandon the request would be to terminate the construction program, which was essential for Virginia consumers and the Virginia economy. The Company had no choice but to go forward in harmony with the President's order. The Company accordingly changed the requested effective date of the new rates from October 1 to December 1 so that it would not even be asking for increased rates during the 90-day freeze. The Commission set the case for hearing in March, 1972, and suspended the rates until that time. The Company announced that no increased rates would be heard until a later date. This is in accord with the policy, announcement of the Federal Power Commission and the policy recommendation of the staff of the New York State Public Service Commission in interpreting the effect of the 90-day freeze.

This outline of events surrounding the August, 1971, rate application illustrates (a) the pressures that inexorably require electric utility rate increases if the customers are to be served, (b) the long period required for rate increase proceedings and thus a serious lag in revenue adjustments, and (c) the complexity of the review process.

Recognition of these public needs is essential to promote the policies of the President's new economic program. In the discussions that are now in progress by government agencies to the post-freeze arrangements, it is submitted that the price stabilizing powers over the rates of electric and gas utilities should be delegated to the state and federal agencies now regulating such rates.

The King's Daughters

Lamplighter's Benefit-Buffer

Scores Smashing Success

Perfect for entertaining, and an ideal setting for a benefit-buffet, is Jo and Bill Kellam's Holly Avenue home.

So the doors were open last week to some 150 who responded to a benefit of the Lamplighter Circle of The King's Daughters; the General Hospital of Virginia Beach to receive the benefits.

But it was more like a family reunion affair. So many hadn't seen each other during summer months that the dialogue centered around: "Hey-sure is good to see you again. What've you been doing? Had a good summer?"

Jo, in striking black and white hostess gown, with skirt slit to the thigh, couldn't have been happier with the turnout. Neither could Kitty Trant, circle president or the other officers: Mary Thompson, Veronica White, and the rest of the 30 member circle.

So many there we hadn't seen in a while...Margaret and Jack Eady, she in becoming pink as was party chairman Jo Hillsman...Dot Cassada was cute as a button in a Victorian full length off-white cotton gown with high neck and long lace sleeves that seemed identical to one that Dot's grandmother wore in a family snapshot..."Just had to have that dress when I saw it in the store," Dot said.

Saw Beulah and Spencer Lott...Phyllis and Jerry Hostetter...to the mundane question of "What's new?" Jerry replied, "Absolutely nothing-I've just been minding my own business and that's a tough job right there,"...but we know that he's been keeping in shape working on their new home that's fast becoming a showplace...Kitty Trant, suntanned and vivacious, in red and white dirndl remarked, "My goodness, it seems like everyone looks so pale,"...Colin Studs, patriarch of Rose Hall said that he was just doing less and enjoying it more as he took a seat by the fireside in the den.

Up from Ft. Lauderdale were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Marshall, former owners of the Marshalls, here to see friends and visit their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. George E. Marshall and children...Col. L.R. Hudson said he has the best job in the Army being CO at Ft. Story (he also has one of the best looking wives)...Saw Esther Jett past president of the City Union and Margaret Fenner, who presently heads the fast growing and productive group of circles of The King's Daughters...Sarah Wood...the Sidney Kellams, Mary and Roy Grubbs...and so many others, impossible to mention them all.

And the food and the table? Very special. An enormous arrangement of varying shades of red roses that Jane LaGiglia gathered and Odie Kellam arranged, dominated the banquet size table.

"HELLO EVERYBODY-GLAD YOU CAME"—Jo Kellam is fashion plus in her black and white hostess gown, skirt slit to the thigh.

"DID IT REALLY HAPPEN THAT WAY?"—Kitty Trant is enchanted with Col. Hudson's story. Kitty's Circle president.

"IT'S A GOOD PARTY," agree the host and hostess, Jo and Bill Kellam.

"NOW I THINK WE SHOULD PLAN IT LIKE THIS," Nell Braun tells Beulah Lott, left, as they discuss the various King's Daughters circles.

Is This How You Treat Your Hair?

That's no way to treat your hair -- straight up on end, pulled skin tight, or drying it as if it were a piece of laundry. There are some things a woman should never do to her hair -- yet, most women constantly and brutally mistreat their locks.

In a normal day of washing, setting, drying and styling, a majority of women commit at least eight of the worst "hair" taboos -- and then they wonder why their hair doesn't look right. If you can't do a thing with your hair, it's probably because of what you do to your hair!

How to regain control of un-gainly locks? Healthy hair starts with healthy care -- and that means starting with you. You really can't expect your hair to be lustrous and healthy if you're not. So, give up the hamburgers, potato chips and in-between-meal-snacks and put yourself on a well-balanced diet. Also, an honest eight hours of sleep will help both you, your hair, and your overall beauty look.

Next step is to learn the taboos, and avoid them. Remember, how your hair looks depends on how you treat it. And, since setting is important to the way your hair looks, start with the way you curl your hair. Rolling your curlers too tight and carelessly, and the jammies in of pins and clips is one sure way to lose hair -- literally!

Unrolling is just as bad, if you pull and yank. Try to avoid nightly settings, and be gentle when you do set your hair.

The ancient ritual by fire is nothing compared to torture by rubber band. Whether you're putting it on choking tight or yanking it off, rubber bands are disastrous for hair. If you use them for either a pony tail or a chignon knot, use the elastic covered ones. Better yet, and much more fashionable, tie your hair back with soft scarves or ribbons.

When you brush or comb your hair, be GENTLE. Excessive teasing is the most flagrantly committed sin against hair. If you need extra height and body use a good texturizer like Ogilvie's Texturizer-Plus. For special effects with hair pieces try running on a little buckram dome and combing your hair over it. But, stop teasing your hair.

Wigs are the greatest invention since bobby pins, but be careful in selecting your wig. Avoid a wig that's too tight -- it stops circulation of blood to your scalp and that's a must for healthy hair. Also, when putting on and taking off a wig, be gentle. Don't tug or pull -- it has the same effect as yanking out hair.

Garden Clubs

Green Thumb Activities Princess Anne Plaza

Although enjoying a rest and vacation during the summer, the Princess Anne Plaza Garden Club did not completely discontinue all activities, according to Allegra Winters, club publicity chairman.

On August 10 the members met at Coleman's Nursery for a guided tour and picnic lunch. Their tour was conducted by a graduate horticulturist... and a most enjoyable event it was," Allegra said.

In September a work-shop was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Cayea, to bring members up to date on the progress of the annual Bazaar, to be held in October. Mrs. Cayea is chairman of the committee. Assisting her was Mrs. Bill Warren and Mrs. Pete Winters.

On Sept. 22, the club voted to purchase a crepe myrtle tree through the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach, to be planted at a designated place in the city.

Mrs. Malcolm Todd, Jr. presented an original program on basic principals of design, creating as she went along, different versions and methods of flower arranging.

Mrs. Bill Forinash was the blue ribbon winner in the "Fall in Bloom" category.

Shirley Todd

That "getting-about" flower expert, Mrs. Malcolm (Shirley) Todd surprisingly, and happily so, got more than she expected when she recently gave a flower demonstration to the Dunes of Dare Garden Club at Kitty Hawk.

In the demonstration, she appropriately used a lot of driftwood, dried moss and fresh flowers and fruit. It went well, as do all of Shirley's classes.

But the surprise came, when refreshments were served after the program.

In the women came, carrying a big cake all aglow with candles and everyone sang "Happy Birthday." Shirley was shocked because the celebration was for her, who did indeed have a birthday but she wasn't aware that it wasn't her own little secret. "It was the most exciting ending to a lecture I ever gave," she said.

Incidentally, she'll be on the move again October 13 when she goes to Peninsula Council of Hampton Garden Clubs at the Garden Council Center, in Hampton. There she'll have a two-hour flower demonstration of dried, fresh flowers and Mechanics.

Linier

The Linier Garden Club opened its fall season with a gourmet luncheon featuring Greek delicacies at the home of Mrs. Paul Kotarides. Her home, situated on Linkhorn Bay, provided a delightful setting for the meeting.

The Club voted to further the project of the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs by donating crepe myrtle to the city and also by each member planting crepe myrtle in her own yard. The meeting was led by its new president, Mrs. Lester Wood. The other officers for the year are Mrs. C.J. Hauser, vice-president; Mrs. M.L. Butt, recording secretary; Mrs. John B. James, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. William L. Myers, treasurer.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Marvin C. Overcash and will feature Mrs. Florence Hoffmeister on Table Settings.

Kings Forest

King's Forest Garden Club began its fall season with a meeting Sept. 21, at Thalia Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Frank Lukanich, prominent local garden clubber for many years, and a past president of the Tidewater District, Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs, presented an interesting demonstration on "Basics in Flower Arranging."

Members brought for judging a number of horticulture specimens, as well as imaginative arrangements of fresh material, designed around the theme "School Days." A committee of members of the Kings Forest Garden Club judged the exhibits, and awarded blue ribbons to the following: Mrs. Robert C. Beam, Mrs. Ralph W. Chandler, Mrs. William D. Elliott, Mrs. Alan J. Geel, Mrs. Robert E. Metcalfe, Mrs. Burton Witham, Jr., and Mrs. H. Via.

Red ribbon winners were: Mrs. Charles G. Crovatt, Mrs. James K. Holley, Mrs. Ernest B. McCrary, Mrs. Norbert W. Melnick, Mrs. Robert Miller, and Mrs. Jerome Sonnabend.

Hostesses for the meeting were: Mrs. J.E. Ashley, Mrs. Richard E. Larson, and Mrs. Kit C. Sanders.

May Farm

The May Farm Garden Club of Kingston held its first meeting of the season on September 9, at King's Grant Presbyterian Church with nineteen members and three guests present.

The program, presented by Mrs. L.A. Shinn, featured ideas for floral centerpieces, table arrangements, and table settings. Mrs. Shinn demonstrated the effect that various colored tablecloths and china and crystal patterns have on a centerpiece.

Plans and goals for the year, including several ways and means projects, were discussed by club members. The club also welcomed new members: Mrs. Nancy Wylie, Mrs. Penny Brun, Mrs. Betty Gifford, Mrs. Martha Pittard, Mrs. Evelyn Beard, Mrs. Sheila Borchart, Mrs. Ann Petroff, and Mrs. Ruth Anne Sywulka.

Bay Shore

Bay Shore Garden Club met for coffee recently at the Hermitage Foundation Museum in Norfolk.

There they held a short business meeting to plan fall activities. The highlight of the morning was a guided tour of the Museum. Mrs. George W. Hyatt is club president.

How Do People Respond To You?

By Rev. Joyce Kramer

Do you find it hard to relate to the people you must deal with? To move ahead successfully in life, we must understand how to bring forth a good response from people.

Everyone wants to be important. Remind yourself of this when you write, phone, or talk face to face with an individual. Treat another as if he is important and he will respond accordingly.

Everyone wants to be appreciated. If you'll look for the good in others, you'll find admirable qualities. You will be blessed and so will others.

Everyone wants to be successful. Your encouragement and confidence in another will give him added impetus.

Look appreciatively at others; see them as important, successful people and you will have happy, meaningful relationships.

FATHER, WE GIVE THANKS FOR YOUR PRESENCE OF GOOD IN ALL WHOM WE MEET.

Man's Best Friends Get Together

An assortment of "man's best friends" representing a wide variety of breeds and sizes gathered for competition last week at the Virginia Beach Kennel Club.

For some the day proved highly successful in the earning of awards for their master's endless hours devoting to their training and grooming.

For others, as is evident in these pictures, the time was spent in relaxation or making new friends.

While the excitement of competition taxed nearly everyone's physical and mental capabilities, it was agreed that "a good time was had by all" and everyone looked forward to another meeting.

With the Mod Look everywhere it is understandable that "Orangecrest Brandy" would want to look his best at the Virginia Beach Kennel Club's "Fun Match". He seems quite content to let owner Jane Whitfield do whatever primping is necessary if it will mean a ribbon.

LET'S BE FRIENDS. Not too sure of "Raider's" intentions, Orlika Snow Princess, better known as "Angel" seems to be a little hesitant. Raider, belonging to William Bailey and Jim Donatelli's Angel were entered in the Virginia Beach Kennel Club's "Fun Match", held at the Princess Anne Hunt Club.

PA Hunt Club To Hold Hunter Pace

The Princess Anne Hunt Club will hold their Eighth Annual Hunter Pace Event on Sunday, October 17th, beginning at Noon at the London Bridge Road Hunt Grounds. The Hunter Pace Event is designed to test both horse and rider under hunting conditions.

The event is open to all local horsemen and horsewomen, and entries must be received by October 10th. To enter, contact Mrs. D.A. Williams at 464-5591 or Mrs. Ralph Midgett at 427-2858.

Red Baron To Fly At Show

The Tidewater Radio Control Club will put on an airplane show at the request of the Virginia Beach Jaycees on Saturday, October 9th. The Hilltop Golf Driving Range, on Laskin Road just East of the First Colonial Road intersection will be the site of the 2:30 p.m. air show.

The sixty members of the local TNC Club will be flying radio controlled planes costing from $75 to $1000 each. The flyers pilot their planes from the ground, but a good operator can make his aircraft perform any maneuver that can be done by an airplane with a pilot aboard. To watch an airplane go into a power dive or a tail spin is a thrill that cannot be described.

The show will have ground exhibitions showing various styles, such as racers, the Formulae I and II craft, and scale models of current and vintage planes. In the air the planes will do acrobatic flying, have pylon races, give mock combat demonstrations (dogfights), and perform soaring and gliding feats.

The Red Baron warms up his World War I German Fokker in hopes of getting Snoopy into his gunsight during a dogfight at the airshow Saturday.

Cox Dumps Tough Lake Taylor 20-7

Cavaller center Steve Duff seems to tell the story as he sits caked with mud and contemplates another heart-breaking defeat.

Tough Princess Anne Defense Not Enough, As Maury Wins 6-0

It was the night of repeated Monday as the Princess Anne Cavaliers repeated their "almost but not quite" season and Maury continued with their unbeaten ways. Sloshing through ankle-deep mud, the Maury Commodores squeezed past the fire-up Cavalier defense.

Commodore halfback George Woodhouse is hauled up short by Cavalier linebacker Mike Phillips after returning a Princess Anne punt. Danny Allen and Mark Jones are on their way to render assistance.

for a 6-0 win. John Grady's defensive unit continued to be the mainstay of the Cavalier's game as they held the Commodores to only 152 total yards, 96 rushing and 56 passing. At one point, they held the blue and orange suited Maury men by recovering a fumble at the two-yard line, allowing the Commodores to move the ball only three yards in the four attempts. The Princess Tommy Butts is dragged down after receiving a pass from Princess Anne quarterback Mike Ange.

Cheerleaders Linda Joppe and Nancy Roberts hold up a hopeful sign as they welcome the Cavaliers back for the second half of Monday night's game.

The Cog Falcons displayed a great offensive and defensive effort and beat a very tough Lake Taylor eleven by a lopsided 30-7 score. The pre-game analysts predicted a pretty even match, but a superior defensive effort kept the Titans' offense from scoring.

Starting his first game in the quarterback slot, Mike Noe completed six of twelve tosses for 75 yards, and scored one touchdown himself by being on the receiving end of a 27 yard halfback pass from Allan Williams in the first quarter. Employing a bit of strategy, Cox coach George McGovern shifted Allan Williams from quarterback to halfback and inserted Noe into the lineup in the quarterback slot, in effect giving Cox a two-quarterback offense. Williams only threw one pass during the game, the touchdown toss to Noe.

Randy Robinson led the two teams in rushing, gaining almost 100 yards in 15 carries. Robinson scored two touchdowns on runs from two and six yards out. Allan Williams kicked

Bayside Marlins Top Kellam Knights 29-12

Evening their record at two wins and two losses, the Bayside Marlins defeated a scrappy, but injury plagued, Kellam team 29-12. Kellam now has a 1-3 record, losing three straight after an impressive opening victory over Oscar Smith.

David Hopson put the Marlins ahead with a touchdown that climaxed his 40 yard punt return in the first quarter, and his team never trailed the rest of the contest. In the second quarter, Bayside's Thad Harold added four more points to the score board. He booted a 23 yard field goal, a rarity in local high school football action, and then split the uprights for a one-point conversion after teammate Leroy Baxter scored on a 27 yard touchdown pass from Tom Chipok. The Marlins led 16-0 at the halfway point.

NFL Vs. ACFL

Don Vallery, who is known for his outstanding defensive play for the Norfolk Neptunes, was featured speaker at the Virginia Beach Sports Club luncheon at the White Heron Motel Tuesday. "I feel we have the best team in the league," Vallery said. "When it comes down to the big marbles, we'll win them all."

Vallery was asked if he thought the National Football League teams were better than the Atlantic Coast Football League teams. He gave the question a definite "yes" answer. "One of the main reasons is financial," he elaborated. "They have forty full-time players on their teams. We have thirty-three. All of their forty players are major league material, while about twenty of the players on an ACFL team are major league caliber and the other thirteen are minor league material. Playing full time gives the NFL players a more positive mental attitude in that they do not have to worry about another job for their main salary. By playing full time and practicing more, the NFL players can better master a football system of play, making them more professional."

Although Clemson is winless for the season, they have not yet played an ACC foe. Starting their gridiron year against the tough Southeastern Conference, the Tigers lost to Kentucky (13-10) and to Georgia (28-0). Georgia Tech handed Clemson their third loss last Saturday, beating them 24-14. With Clemson's Tom Kendrick throwing against a Duke defense ranked last in the ACC in pass defense, Tiger fans are looking for an upset.

two conversions to add two points to the six scored by Noe and the twelve scored by Robinson, giving Cox their twenty points for the contest.

Although the offense put 20 points on the board for Cox, the defensive unit deserves a lot of praise for allowing only seven points by the powerful Titans. Allan Williams intercepted three passes, and Danny Chellis grabbed one. Bill Span and Terry Roche recovered Lake Taylor fumbles, both setting up Cox scores. Bill Summs got the nod from his coaches as being the outstanding defenseman for the Falcons.

The Cox coaching staff termed their win "a great all-around game." The Falcons played perfect ball; they did not turn the ball over to Lake Taylor during the game, through fumbles or interceptions. However, Cox capitalized on six Lake Taylor mistakes, two fumbles and four interceptions. Cox showed Lake Taylor how to win at football, namely by not making any mistakes while forcing the other team to make a bunch of them.

Kellam broke into the scoring column with six points in the third quarter when 200 pound fullback Gerald Jackson broke through the line from the ooe. In the most productive quarter of the game, the fourth, Kellam added another touchdown, but Bayside managed to add two six-pointers to put the game out of reach. Kellam's score came on a 38 yard touchdown pass from Mike Delullo to Al Morris. Roger Baxter got the two touchdowns for Bayside, the first on a three yard run and the second on a two yard carry. Thad Harold added one more point on a conversion kick to give Bayside their winning margin, 29-12.

The Kellam offense was run again this week by Mike Delullo, a halfback who was rushed into service as an emergency quarterback after both Knight signal-callers were sidelined by injuries. Coach Jim Cooke will be more than happy when Keith Rieser and Chuck Ed-

Oyster Bowl Features Favored Duke Against Upset-Minded Clemson,

It looks as though the Silver Anniversary Oyster Bowl game will be befitting of its honor, bringing together two Atlantic Coast Conference rivals in unbeaten Duke University and winless Clemson University. This year will mark the quarter of a century point for the local bowl classic, and the Duke Blue Devils and the Tigers of Clemson should give battle to do this landmark contest proud.

Duke comes to Norfolk unbeaten, with impressive upset over three of the four teams the Blue Devils have beaten. Duke defeated the University of Virginia 28-0 as expected, but then — confounded the prognosticators with upset wins over Florida (12-6), South Carolina (28-12), and Stanford (9-9). The win over sixth ranked Stanford was particularly impressive in that Duke's top rusher, Steve Jones, missed the game due to an automobile injury. Jones has racked up 400 yards in his first three games, and hopes are high that he will be ready for action Saturday against Clemson.

Although Clemson is winless for the season, they have not yet played an ACC foe. Starting their gridiron year against the tough Southeastern Conference, the Tigers lost to Kentucky (13-10) and to Georgia (28-0). Georgia Tech handed Clemson their third loss last Saturday, beating them 24-14. With Clemson's Tom Kendrick throwing against a Duke defense ranked last in the ACC in pass defense, Tiger fans are looking for an upset.

There are still good seats left for the game, slated for a 2 p.m. kickoff at Foreman Field, Saturday, October 14. Both East and West Stand ticket offices will open at 10 a.m. Saturday morning to handle last minute ticket purchases. The proceeds from the game will go toward the Shriners' hospitals and burn centers scattered across the country. The main hospital benefitting from the Oyster Bowl game will be the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children in Greenville, South Carolina. The Oyster Bowl has generated almost a million and a half dollars in its twenty-five year history.

A highlight of this 25th Anniversary contest will be the halftime show. In addition to the usual pageantry, the Shriners have invited as guests the members of the 1944 Granby team that began it all. It is estimated that thirty-five of them will be on hand, coming from as far away as Florida. 21,000 fans were on hand to see the first Oyster Bowl contest, contributing $50,000 to the cause. A quarterback pass from Chuck Stobbs, who went on to baseball fame, to halfback Barney Gill, now business manager for the Neptunes, won fame for Granby.

The pre-game parade, which has traditionally been the largest local parade during the year, will begin at 9:30 a.m. in downtown Norfolk, following Granby Street to 21st Street, leaving left on 21st Street and ending just past the reviewing stand located across from Sears. Floats will be on display at Foreman field before game time and during halftime.

Squire, Tickets Won

The Princess Anne Booster Club hosted the Virginia Squires and 500 fans Tuesday night to raise money for their annual scholarship. Eight season tickets for the 16 Squires home games in Norfolk's Scope, worth $80.00 each, were won by L. A. Morgan, Clyde Jones, Roy Sykes, Bryan Jones, J. R. Potter, Ken Hartfelder, and Joe Postove, all Beach residents.

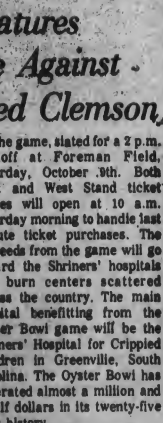

The game was a nip-and-tuck affair with the rookies and the "bench" beating the starting veterans by 2 points on a shot at the buzzer. The night would have to be termed a success. The Squires gained experience, they received no money for the game, the fans had a good time, various players won the hearts of the onlookers, and Princess Anne found out their scoreboard clock would not work in time to have it repaired for their opening game.

C of C Supports A Tennis Complex

It looks as though the tennis bandwagon is picking up steam. The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, according to Al Mathies, the Chamber director, threw its support behind efforts of the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association in their drive to establish a tennis complex in the Resort area.

Mathies expressed the Chamber's support to John Hartson, who was instrumental in bringing the Raleigh Racquet Club to the Beach last weekend (see Page 1 story).

At the Recreation Commission meeting Tuesday afternoon, the Commission once again threw their support behind the Patrons' drive toward a tennis complex. The City recreational body passed unanimously a "resolution in principle" for the establishment of a tennis center at the Beach.

First Colonial Still Unbeaten With 28-14 Win Over Kempsville

A muddy First Colonial Patriot, who was being congratulated after his team defeated Kempsville 28-14, laughed as he was coming off the field and said to one of his many congratulators: "When you're hot, you're hot!" And, he summed up the game, and the season for that matter, quite well for the undefeated Patriot team, now sitting on top of the Eastern District with a 6-0 overall record.

Kempsville, however, was no pushover. "Paschall scared me every time he got hold of the football," Stewart Douglas, First Colonial's line coach stated. "He's one of the best passers in the State." A stout Patriot defense limited Paschall to only six completions in fifteen attempts, but he was throwing the ball well. With a lesser defensive effort, Paschall could easily have been twelve for fifteen due to his pinpoint accuracy. He tossed one touchdown pass to Bill Dragas, a 14 yarder.

The Patriots got on the scoreboard first on a six yard power play in the first quarter by Mike Vercing. Billy Foley's kick gave First Colonial a 7-0 lead. Kempsville roared back in the second quarter when Julius Hurdle plunged over the goal

Rick Scarper recovered the Patriot fumble that set up his team's first score. Don Hawk, Brian Catlin, and Julius Hurdle rushed for 76 yards, and Paschall's 52 yards passing, made Kempsville's 130 offensive yards for the evening. Hurdle and Dragas scored touchdowns, and Taylor added two points on two conversion kicks.

A tough Bayside defense cut off numerous Knight drives by recovering five fumbles and intercepting four passes. The Kellam defense tried to return the favor by picking off two Bayside aerials and recovering three fumbles. The Knights held Bayside to 219 total yards of offense, 153 by land and 66 by air.

EDMONDSON

Edmondson Honored

Aviation Electrician Airman (AEAN) Roger L. Edmondson has been chosen as Sailor of the Month for October at Naval Air Station Oceana in Virginia Beach, Va. Petty Officer Edmondson is attached to the Supply Department where he is assigned as the supply messenger. In this job Edmondson transports order messages between Communication and Supply. An efficient message flow is essential to smooth Supply operations.

Edmondson entered the Navy on Jan. 11, 1971. He attended Electrician's "A" School in Jacksonville, Fla., before coming to Oceana.

On Oct. 1, 1971 Airman Edmondson advances to petty officer third class. He generally likes his conditions in the Navy since 2-grams, but he does voice some criticism. The new Navy uniforms which are replacing the traditional dungarees are, he says, "Hard to clean because of the synthetic fiber." The major reason Edmondson gives for not making the Navy a career is the separation from his wife and their new two-week-old son, Michael. "If I could spend 20 years shore duty, my wife would like the Navy," he says.

Airman Edmondson is a resident of New Tazewell, Tenn. His wife is the former Sallie A. Edmondson of New Tazewell.

As a result of being chosen S.O.M. for October, Edmondson will receive a framed letter of commendation, a steak dinner for two at his club, a 72-hour liberty from Supply and an engraved watch from GEX membership department store.

Morgan, Beach wit and 25th Street's historian, presented to each of the team captains letters from the governor of their state urging his team to victory. In the letter to John Gonnella, captain of the Raleigh team, Bob Scott, Governor of North Carolina, wrote:

"The North Carolina tennis set have their eyes on you and your squad today. The competition is keen, but you have the touch of victory in your style and we are looking forward to scores that bear out our faith in you."

"I am pleased by your generous response to a request from the fine people of Virginia Beach. We are proud to have you represent us as you assist their effort to establish the wonderful sport of tennis more firmly. Best wishes for a most rewarding event; and victory."

Bob Scott also loaned the North Carolina team a 3 by 5 foot North Carolina flag, so that the State's colors could be flown at the 25th Street courts.

Governor Linwood Holton, Virginia's Governor, was invited by Ruby Jean Phillips, Editor of the Virginia Beach Sun, to be on hand for the tournament. In a letter to Mr. Phillips, Governor Holton declined because the traditional Governor's Day ceremonies at the University of Virginia demanded his presence. In his letter to Harold Wheeler, captain of the Virginia Beach team, Holton wrote:

"I am counting on you and your team mates to uphold the reputation of Virginia today in your matches with the Raleigh Racquet Club. I wish I could be there to watch the fine tennis I know will be played. Please accept my best wishes for a successful tournament."

"I would like, also, to commend the 25th Street Athletic Club for bringing first rate tennis to Virginia Beach today, as well as for their continuing efforts to encourage good tennis at the Beach. Best wishes."

Before the group left the Maragon home for dinner at the 19th Hole Restaurant, each member of the Raleigh team was presented with a "Virginia Is For Lovers" tee shirt. After the dinner at the 19th Hole, owner John Smith invited the group over to his Mariner for dancing and a cocktail on the house.

Mayor Donald Rhodes officially opened the exhibition with a welcome from the City. He presented Arisawa and Heald with a City tie pin and dedicated the matches to the Prisoner of War and the Missing in Action movement. David McDaniel, son of Commander Eugene B. McDaniel, a P.O.W. since 1967, and Ken Coskey, son of Commander Kenneth L. Coskey, a P.O.W. since 1968, presented the flags of the United States and Virginia.

Three Girl Scouts took part in the ceremonies. Karen Harris led the gallery in the Pledge of Allegiance. Debbie Bennett introduced Mrs. McDaniel and Mrs. Coskey, whose sons were flag bearers. Theresa Gibbs dedicated the match with these moving words: "This match is dedicated to some Americans who have paid a dear price for their country and now ask that country not to forget them—the American prisoners of war and the missing in actions."

Various other merchants helped the 25th Street Athletic Club and the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association, who sanctioned the match, in promoting the exhibition. The Holiday Inn and Inlet House motels, and Carroll's and Hardee's restaurants advertised the exhibition on their marquee. Van Summer, Inc., a firm well-known for tennis court design and construction, bought Saturday's lunch for the two teams. Hardee's gave hamburgers to those attending the Heald-Arisawa match. Sears provided two tennis shirts for Heald and Arisawa with the "25th Street Tennis Courts-1971" inscription, and the City Department of Parks and Recreation provided bleachers seating 200.

25th Street's John Maragon summed up the weekend. "In spite of ginger adversities were overcome," he stated. "We were ready. If the weather had cooperated, the people of Virginia Beach would have seen the best off-season tennis match ever held in the Resort area."

Lovisi drew a two year sentence on conviction of engaging in acts of sodomy with his wife. Mrs. Lovisi's five year sentence concerned the fires in the couples residence.

Lovisi has also been sentenced to six years imprisonment on conviction of two counts of taking indecent liberties with the stepdaughters, plus 12 months and a $1,000 fine on conviction of endangering the lives of juveniles. He is still awaiting the outcome of an appeal of these convictions in the State Supreme Court.

Mrs. Lovisi is also awaiting the outcome of State Supreme Court appeals of her conviction of engaging in acts of sodomy with her husband, for which she was given a two year sentence to be served concurrently with the arson-conviction sentence, as well as her conviction of engaging in sodomy with a 25-year-old Jamaican, Errol Romeo Dunn, who at the time was a college student in Wash. D.C. This conviction resulted in her being sentenced to three years in prison.

Dunn has since been departed from this country. The stepdaughters have been placed under care of relatives in the Midwestern United States.

Recreational Land Donation Should Be Compulsory

By Jay Brumbley

During the Virginia Beach Recreation Commission's August meeting, the question of compulsory land donations to cities by developers for recreational use turned from general discussion to a definite desire for action on such a program in this area. It has become very expensive for cities to purchase land at the developer's raw land cost.

As it stands now, the developer offers a portion of his land to the City for recreational use at his raw land cost. The City then has five years in which to make the purchase or the land reverts back to the developer for his use.

The cost of purchasing land in every development in the City is prohibitive, resulting in the majority of the option land reverting to the developer. This leaves many residents stuck in large developments with no convenient recreation area. It was pointed out the sprawling Bayside area has only one hundred by two-hundred foot lot for recreational use. Under the proposed land donation formula, the Bayside area would have a dozen acres for such use.

At last week's October meeting, Hank Pezella reported to the Commission what he had learned in two months of contacting attorney general offices in six states, Arkansas, California, New York, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Washington, California, New York, and Wisconsin sent packets of information concerning their state laws requiring developers to donate a fixed percentage of land in each development. These packets included the actual state laws.

Those opposing the extension were Councilmen Robert Callis, Robert Cromwell, Frank "Duch" Reid, Ervin, Dr. Clarence Holland, Murray Malbon and Floyd Waterfield. In other matters, council:

Mini-Hearing May Be Set On Road Dips

The city may get its first mini-public hearing. At least that was Mayor Donald Rhodes' term for a possible hearing on the Bay Colony "dips" before the residents of that community.

Director of Community Services W. W. Fleming presented a plan to correct the dangerous dips in Bay Colony Drive at Monday's informal session of City Council.

He proposes to cut down the tops at the peak and fill in the low areas to "get back the vertical alignment on the road." This is the only way it can be handled, he said, since a city water line is too near the surface to lower the peaks very far.

The project would cost the city an estimated $30,000 and would involve rebuilding Bay Colony Drive for about 1,100 feet, rebuilding the tie-ins with other roads, and rebuilding driveways to road level.

There was still some question whether all the residents affected by the project would dedicate the necessary land.

Mayor Rhodes said that a "mini-public hearing" would probably be the best way to determine public reaction. No date was set.

Another road project confronted council Monday in both formal and informal session when R. L. "Buddy" Riggs made his second appeal for approval of construction of Goldsboro Avenue.

Goldsboro is one of several "paper streets" in Shadowlawn which have never been developed. Riggs said he recently built a home at the end of the street and has no legal access to it. He must cross another lot he owns, he said, which would not be legal access if that lot were ever sold.

Because this street has never been developed, Riggs said he has no city garbage collection or other services his neighbors have. Even his mailbox is on another street, he said.

Fleming said that the price of the lots were considerably lower because of the unimproved street. He told council that Riggs had purchased 15 lots for $13,750 compared to $3,000 or $4,000 per lot on paved streets. It would cost the City about $7,410 to improve Goldsboro, he said.

"If the city builds this street,"

Fleming said, "we will have a moral responsibility to build other streets in the area."

Councilman George Ferrell said he felt the city does have a responsibility in providing garbage and other services to its citizens and Councilman Robert Cromwell pointed out that in some areas the city and the property owner had shared the cost of improving a street.

"No one in Shadowlawn has paid a cost for road construction," Riggs said, "and I don't see why I should have to. This would be discrimination toward me."

"Those things have a way of being blown out of proportion," Cromwell commented. "What we really need is a policy. We must adopt some kind of policy so that everyone is treated equal."

Riggs pushed for definite action on his request near the close of the formal session. He pointed out that he had been trying to get on the council agenda for some time and had already appeared before it twice. He was asked to return next week, indicating that a policy may be determined by that time.

Chief Bayne Begins City Fire Program

By Les Lehigh

Chief E. B. "Bubba" Bayne met Monday night with chiefs of the various fire departments of Virginia Beach in his initial step in reorganizing the resort city's fire protection services.

George Heid, Chief Public Safety Dispatcher, and M. T. Holland, Director of the City's Fire Prevention Bureau also attended the meeting.

One of the main items of discussion was the best method of utilizing paid personnel at fire departments which in the past have been manned entirely by volunteers.

Indications are that paid firemen will be placed in a number of the volunteer stations at the beginning of the next fiscal year.

The majority of volunteer fire chiefs disagreed with recommendation of the Municipal Fire Protection Study of last year that "full-time paid firefighters" be placed on duty at volunteer stations from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., when volunteers are normally committed to their full time employment.

It was the consensus of opinion that "paid men" would be required during the night as well as during the day.

It was also agreed that while only a limited number of paid personnel will be employed by the City initially, their placement should be determined by the frequency of alarms answered by any department.

The majority of those attending the meeting also agreed these paid firemen would not be

PUD Expansion Denied

City Council Monday denied on a 7 to 4 vote an application of Aragona Enterprises for a change in zoning to allow an extension of the existing Planned Unit Development, Magic Hollow. The extension would bring homes to within one-half mile of the Oceana Naval Air Station's busiest runway and the application has been strongly opposed by the Navy.

The denial of the extension, however, may clear the way for construction of the full complement of 2,500 units as planned rather than the lower density of 1,037 homes as recommended by the Planning Commission.

The commission, in approving the extension, had recommended overall redesigning of the project to lower the density. "At least there will only be 1,000 complaints from the noise rather than 2,000 complaints," Navy officials said.

Councilman Curtis Payne moved that council accept the Planning Commission's recommendation, hoping to curb some of the construction in a project already approved and underway. His motion was defeated and it wasn't until after the vote was cast that members realized they had denied an extension to the project but had, at the same time, cleared the way for the full density. Payne asked for some legal advice from City Attorney Dale Binson and indicated the matter may be brought up again.

Those opposing the extension

Morse Point area of the Pungo Borough.

Rock Church did however receive approval of a use permit for a church and religious education facility on property approximately one-half mile Southeast of the intersection of Princess Anne Road and Pocahontas Club Road.

In rejecting the drug rehabilitation center Commissioners did however indicate they would reconsider the project in 12 months if Rock Church decided to renew their efforts at that time.

Action on the application had been deferred until Tuesday from the Sept. 28, Commission meeting. At that time the applicants were advised to meet with residents of the area in question to determine if objections to the rehabilitation center could be overcome.

During Tuesday's meeting attorney William F. Burnside, representing Rock Church, said that during such meetings with civic league and religious leaders of the Creeds area "we were told we were not wanted."

Burnside said the majority of objections to the center by residents were based on their fear of any influence which drug addicts being treated at the facility would have on young children living in proximity of the rehabilitation center.

Sun Expands Into 32,500 Homes Via Unique System

Everywhere you look you'll see the Sun.

The Virginia Beach Sun, that is.

The Sun will take a bold step into the future with its issue of October 28.

The distribution of the Sun will be increased to 32,500 with that issue.

In the annual publisher's statement printed recently the Sun's paid circulation was sworn to be 4,400. This was a more than 1,000 increase in eight weeks.

Significant among the changes planned for the Sun is the method of distribution. The Sun will be the first newspaper in Virginia to use the method, according to the Virginia Press Association.

The more than 700 per cent circulation increase will be on a voluntary pay basis for readers. About one-half of the distribution is expected to become paid, based on nationwide experience.

Current paid subscribers will continue as such. Rates remain $6 a year in Virginia Beach $9 elsewhere. All others receiving the Sun will be solicited for 50 cents month.

Various incentives for the readers, and the delivery force, will be used to make voluntary payment preferable.

The Sun's circulation department is in process of being enlarged tenfold to service the new situation. About 300 young carriers will be used to deliver the Sun Thursday mornings. Several vehicles and additional full-time adult supervisors have been obtained.

An additional service of the coming system will be doorknob delivery. This will preclude lost or windblown newspapers, and the many other problems most newspapers have.

The Sun also will be enclosed in a polyethylene bags with slip holes to fit over the knob. This will assure a dry Sun.

The 32,500 distribution will be concentrated in the more densely populated areas of Virginia Beach. More area will be included as carrier routes are developed. Mail delivery will continue in those areas of Virginia Beach until carriers are hired.

This approach to journalism and marketing is the first major change since the newspaper was sold in May.

"The key to this move is twofold, with one immediate and one long-range," David Dear, president of Dear Publication & Radio, Inc., said in a statement.

"For now this futuristic step goes as far as practical in our program of public service," Dear said.

"This will mean the greatest possible number of Virginia Beach residents will have the advantage of their own newspaper."

"The Sun last year won 10 Virginia Press Association reporting awards, and one significant national prize. We feel this caliber of journalism is needed throughout Virginia Beach."

"The synergy between a good local newspaper and a well informed public is vital to our unshared, growing city."

Dear's announcement of the change coincided with National Newspaper Week, during which newspapers throughout the country call attention to themselves.

"We are pleased to be promoting the Sun's future by serving the readers in such a significant manner," he continued.

He went on to say the vastly expanded coverage will be the key to local retail marketing plans. No other advertising medium will be able to offer a combination equal to the Sun's.

"We foremost want to serve the City of Virginia Beach with valuable journalism," Dear commented. "Providing such a strong marketing tool also contributes greatly to solidifying the city's economy. Properly using the Sun, merchants will be increasing their business while participating in the long-range key to our program."

The long-range aspect of the program is the strongest possible local newspaper for Virginia Beach, Dear added.

Considerable interest has been expressed since Dear's acquisition about when the Sun would publish more than once a week.

"We have encountered entirely favorable response to our current plan. But, we also have met an encouraging number of merchants and readers who are just as eager to see increased publishing frequency as they are increased circulation."

"This positive atmosphere indicates our present plan will succeed, rapidly bringing an increase in the publication schedule."

The new Sun approach is expected to yield enlarged news coverage, combined with more shopping news, and more total pages.

Bayside's Queen Ann

Ann Tarkenton, 18-year-old senior honor student, was elected Bayside's Homecoming Queen by the Marlin football team. The Virginia Beach beauty has been active in school affairs, has held many class offices, has been a member of the drill team, and is a school and SCA leader. Ann plans to attend college and lives with her family in the Aragona area.

Building Still Climbs

Building activity in Virginia Beach continued its dizzying pace in September, pushing the total value of permits issued during the first nine months of 1971 to $103,852,218.

That figure may be compared with the city's previous record for a full year, $72,965,114, in 1969.

"Unless the weather brings it to a halt, we are bound to have more than $130 million worth of new construction this year," Building Codes Superintendent John E. Gibbs adds. "The record that we will have for 1971 isn't likely to be broken for many years."

The breakdown of residential construction for nine months this year is 1,913 single-family homes and 1,396 duplex or apartment units.

September was $10,421,619 - including $8.5 million for residential construction (194 single-family homes and 240 apartment units).

Like the total dollar value, an annual record for residential units has been increasing daily since July. The 444 residential units in September swelled the year's nine-month total to 8,177 - which is almost 20 per day seven days a week. The previous full-year record for residential building was 3,412 units in 1969.

The breakdown of residential construction for nine months this year is 1,913 single-family homes and 1,396 duplex or apartment units.

Jury Convicts Tillman Of Jones' Murder

Fayette Tillman, Jr., sat quietly and motionless last Friday evening when an all male jury returned a verdict convicting him of first-degree murder in the death of Samuel W. Jones, Sr., and fixed his punishment at 99-years imprisonment.

The verdict came at 8:28 p.m. after the jury spent 4 hours and 15 minutes in continuous deliberation of the three days of testimony in the Circuit Court trial.

A momentary break in the deliberations came at 7:28 p.m. when Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr., asked jury members if they wished to recess briefly for supper, or if they wished to have food brought in as they continued deliberations? They chose to continue deliberations. Tillman, 39, was convicted of land donation formulas, enforcement procedures, and the fixing of cash values on land which the developer can give the City in lieu of land. In cases where the City accepts the cash valuation, the money is earmarked for the purpose of buying land and developing recreational complexes on a larger scale for a given area, such as was done by Virginia Beach in Red Wing and in Princess Anne Parks.

According to Pezzella, the replies indicated that the existing states have effective laws that make it mandatory to give land or money for public recreational use as one of the conditions that must be met prior to a building or use permit for the development is issued. The simplicity of the laws is staggering: No donation of acceptable land or money value, no use or building permit.

"From my research, a compulsory land-giving program appears to be the only effective way to respond and plan for a growing city's recreational needs," Pezzella stated, "because these needs and geographic concentration of its citizens are greatly influenced by the building industry's promotion and development of real estate. Developers should share the responsibility for the recreational welfare of its tenants."

Pezzella then made a motion to have the Recreation Commission direct the Department of Parks and Recreation to enlist the help of the City Council to get State Legislature to enact a State law that would require land donation or its monetary value by the developers. "This is the only way that Virginia Beach's recreational program can be orderly planned and financed," Pezzella concluded.

The Recreation Commission saw fit to pass the motion without a dissenting vote, and Pezzella, in behalf of the Commission, is to give the various state informational packets to Harold Whitehurst, Director of the City Parks and Recreation Department.

First He Was, Then He Wasn't

Who's been sipping the cooking sherry? A Sun reporter thought he had.

Seems he passed the SPCA and saw a hippo gracing the front lawn. So he took a picture. A couple of hours later he drove by and the hippo was gone. What's going on, he wondered?

Seems that old Herman, the hippo, had the misfortune to fall off a truck that was transporting him along with an elephant and a giraffe (fiberglass, we hasten to add.) to Ralph Midgett's Stumpy Lake farm.

Midgett is manager of Jungle Golf, Inc. on 22nd Street, and the animals were heading to the farm for winter storage.

"Herman up and just fell off right in front of the SPCA, so we asked them if he could visit there a couple of hours until we came back and picked him up," Midgett said.

The SPCA was delighted. The reporter? He's relieved. Herman? He's missing his short-lived fame.

Drug

Attorney Richard Bridges, representing opponents to the rehabilitation center, elaborated on objections from residents being based on the fact that "they can't see any control over the addicts while at the center" in that it appeared they were not being forced to remain within confines of the rehabilitation center.

Bridges also pointed to other objections being based on the lack of a specific program to assist addicts to give up their association with drugs except through religious counseling sessions.

Gene Jernigan, director of the Proclaim Drug Rehabilitation Center, which operated previously in Chesapeake and Norfolk, spoke in behalf of the applicants.

He however failed to assure opponents that previous operations in similar facilities resulted in a degree of drug addict rehabilitation, or that the presence of addicts in other neighborhoods did not result in problems of crime increases or influencing children in surrounding homes.

J. Alvin Holland appeared to express the sentiments of other Commission members when he told Jernigan "everyone is in sympathy with your program, but we are concerned over its method of operation."

In other activities the Commission denied the application of F. Wayne McLeskey for a change of zoning of land on Virginia Beach Boulevard near North Lynnhaven Road, in proximity to the entrance of Chesapeake Colony. The application also included a request for a use permit to construct a gasoline supply station and automotive sales and service to include tires, batteries and automotive accessories.

Women Hear Views Of 22

By Jon Sager

The League of Women Voters of Norfolk-Virginia Beach pulled off a political coup Thursday night at the College Park Barn.

They gathered together 22 aspiring political candidates and incumbents, gave them a theme to discuss and three minutes each in which to make their comments and came off with an interesting, informative evening in which political opponents discussed an issue without entering into any personal haranguing.

The subject was the diminishing Virginia wetlands or marshlands and what can or should be done about them. The state has the dubious distinction of being the only East Coast state with no wetland legislation.

Dr. Spencer Wise, professor of biology at Christopher Newport College pointed out the loss of the wetlands (wet, marshy areas surrounding bodies of water) will have dangerous effects on marine life, wildlife and will contribute greatly to the loss of topsoil and beaches through erosion.

It was noted the greatest damage is coming from developers indiscriminately filling in the areas and from sportsmen and trappers burning off the marsh grasses.

The candidates all agreed there should be some type of legislation and confirmed that undoubtedly some will be passed in the next session of the General Assembly.

The only real point of difference came in what type of legislation should be passed and just what type priority should be applied to it concerning the expenditure of funds.

The general consensus seemed to be to accept the findings of a special study commission designated by the General Assembly to study the problem.

After the first few speakers the meeting turned into little more than a roll call of the candidates who all agreed that if elected they would support wetland legislation, until the question and answer period. A short but lively discussion followed in which a number of the 150 or so guests and some of the candidates admitted they knew little about the problem but had learned much from the evening's discussion.

Tourism Taxes Up

Tax collections from Motels and Restaurant meals - usually regarded as the best barometer of tourism - for the first nine months of 1971 were up 12.3 percent over the same period of 1970.

It was the fourth straight year for such an increase. Special Tax Administrator Louis G. Darden noted while making the report.

Darden said the city's restaurant-lodging tax receipts from January 1 through September 30 reflected a business volume of $29,871,523. For the first nine months of 1970, the tax was paid on $26,483,013.

The percentage (12.3) of increase in the tax receipts closely parallels an increase in the number of inquiries the city's tourist advertising produced for the January-September period. During September this year, 78,181 inquiries were processed. For the first nine months of 1970, there were 69,037 inquiries and for all of last year, there were 70,441.

Dr. Kahn Appointed

Dr. Howard D. Kahn, of Virginia Beach will serve as an area advisor and liaison representative for the 49th Annual Southeastern Educational Congress of Optometry, February 4-8, 1972, at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Atlanta.

The appointment was announced by Dr. Howard P. Winton, Melbourne, Fla., President, Southern Council of Optometrists, 2,500 member, 12 state organization which sponsors the Congress.

Dr. Kahn entered the practice of his profession here in 1951, after receiving the Doctor of Optometry degree from Pennsylvania State Col. of Optometry. In Optometry he has held the offices of: National Chairman of Education Committee; past president, Virginia Optometric Association, and past president Tidewater Optometric Society.

In the community Dr. Kahn has served as past president, Virginia Beach Jaycees; past president, Virginia Beach Civitan Club; and past president, Virginia Beach Chapter, American Cancer Society.

At the close of the meeting Bayne dispelled fears of fire chiefs whose departments are operating volunteer rescue squads that the city has any intention of "taking over ambulance service now provided by volunteers." Bayne said the City has no intention of establishing a commercial ambulance service.

Appointees Approved; Authority Challenged

City Council Monday approved Mayor Donald Rhodes' appointees to the city building committee but the mayor's authority to make the appointments without consulting the other councilmen may still be challenged at next Monday's session.

Lynhaven's Reid Ervin, in a letter to Rhodes dated October 7, said the appointment of a new committee without first discharging the existing one with proper thanks was difficult for him to accept. He said the action was "not only an insult to me personally but also a blatant attempt to usurp the powers vested in Council by our city charter and code."

Ervin also requested City Attorney Dale Bimson for a legal opinion on whether the City Charter or Code grants the mayor such authority. Bimson said "it seems to be his prerogative based on past precedent unless this method is challenged by another member of Council. Then the method of selection of these committees would have to be determined by a majority vote of Council."

The mayor's appointments, which followed the October 4th meeting, and the moves by Ervin to challenge his action received much publicity over the week-end. Ervin declined to introduce the conflict Monday, however, stating that he preferred to introduce a motion on the unresolved question of appointing committees, whether the code should be changed to allow for appointments at the next executive session. "This is, in essence, a personnel matter," he said, "and should be discussed in executive session."

"Does this concern future appointments," Bayside's Dr. Clarence Holland asked. "It refers to existing and new committees," Ervin answered. "My intention covers all committees."

Mayor Rhodes introduced a transcription of the tape of the September 20 council meeting where he said "in accordance with the authority I appear to have" he would like to restructure the building committee and asked for an executive session to discuss it. He also read a statement he said he presented in that closed door meeting informing council of his decision. The mayor turned the gavel, and the meeting, over to Vice Mayor Earl Tebault, as the exchange between he and Ervin became more heated.

"I would rather discuss this here than in the press," Rhodes said.

"I did not come to this meeting to stir up the ruckus you have created," Ervin responded. "I do not influence the press in how it writes its stories, regardless of what you might think."

Councilman George Ferrell said he felt the mayor had the authority to appoint committees and would make a motion giving him that authority. Princess Anne's Curtis Payne, chairman of the now extinct building committee, interrupted the motion saying the City Charter does not authorize such appointments.

Caton 'Emphatically A Democrat'

By Helen Crist

"What about the race track - are you for or against it?" was the question put to Senator Edward Caton at a coffee last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Scoppa in Chesapeake Colony.

Caton replied: "As vice chairman of the Pari-Mutual Commission I agreed not to take a position publicly on the issue. I want to get all the facts and come up with a report. The chairman and I both agreed that before any race track is put in the community, the people should have an opportunity to go to the polls and say whether they want it."

He explained, however, that he felt the overall benefits financially would not be as great as people expect. "The estimated revenue from two tracks has been from five to ten million, an insignificant amount compared to the estimated $400,000,000 needed for the state in the next biennium."

A guest remarked that the city of New York is practically bankrupt and horse-racing hasn't done much to save it. Caton noted that he has been in public office for ten years, starting when the city population was 8,500. He was instrumental along with many others, in merging Princess Anne County with the city, and he noted that now they are dealing with a population of 172,000.

Are you a Democrat? was the question. "Emphatically I want to say that I am even though I'm running independently."

He said that he fell out with the Organization when he ran against William Kellam for state senator and defeated him. "They've never forgiven me for this. I beat the crown prince. Now they say we'll take anybody but Ned Caton. Get rid of Caton, they say."

Who is the Organization? Caton was asked. "Sidney Kellam is just as actively and vigorously involved as always. He still has the desire to maintain control of this city."

Caton was asked for whom Jack Etheridge was working. "He's no more interested in taking control of the Beach

A review was made of the present procedures of responding to fire alarms in order to increase protection within the City. This involved retaining at least one pumper at individual stations, wherever possible, to assure equipment being available in the event of multiple fire alarms at the same time.

This review also included revising the system of disbursing available aerial fire fighting equipment to offer a higher degree of protection during fires in multi-level residential and/or commercial buildings, as well as densely populated apartment complexes.

Chief Bayne said he has enlisted the services of Sgt. R. L. Robbins, officer in charge of the police departments' radio and communications center, to conduct a program of training for fire and rescue dispatchers.

This will involve revising existing radio codes, and procedures, to a more uniform pattern for all fire departments.

Volunteer fire chiefs were requested to revise their standards for summoning fire inspectors and/or fire investigators to the scene of alarm in order to make better use of their services.

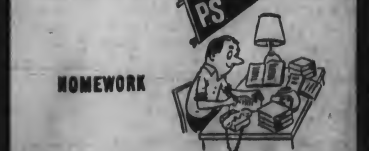

Bayne said he intends to hold regular monthly meetings with the fire chiefs in order to assist them in obtaining support of City Administrators in solving whatever problems they may have.

In line with this plan, Bayne requested chiefs review the status of their fire departments and present him an outline at the November meeting of their financial requirements for next year in order that he may submit these in fiscal budget request.

Breakdown, Indeed!

There has been a breakdown in a very awkward situation between offices of the Federal Government.

There are some four hundred homes and duplexes already under construction or approval in Magic Hollow, units which are undesirable for habitation, for financing and for insurance because of the close proximity to the main runway at Oceana Naval Air Station.

These four hundred homes were well on the way before the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Authority realized that the homes were not in a suitable location and that the Navy had, indeed, objected to their construction.

If one were to trace the entire thing back to the very beginning, which George Tennes of the City Manager's office, did for City Council Monday, it would prove to be a true comedy of errors:

The builder, John Aragona, contacted Oceana officials back in 1969 about his intention to build Magic Hollow, which would primarily attract military personnel from the base.

The navy recognized it would be in and adjacent to their Zone Three, the area most affected by noise from the jets, and the most potentially dangerous from air mishaps.

The matter, however, was sent "up the line," the Navy remained quiet, and the city approved the project over 2,500 homes on about 223 acres.

The FHA spotted the problem and denied the application for federal mortgage insurance.

The VA was not aware of the Zone Three situation and approved the application.

Then there was governmental chaos. Meanwhile, initial construction was underway.

The VA called the FHA regional office and asked if subdivisions in the Oceana Air Station area, with no reference to Zone Three or Mr. Aragona, were being approved. The regional office said yes, subdivisions were approved in that area. But when the insurance applications came in to FHA, they were turned down. An appeal was eventually made to HUD and the builder was finally cleared for a maximum of four hundred units, provided each is air conditioned and sound-proofed.

The federal government now is absolved of any responsibility beyond that number. The city, however, is still stuck with permits allowing the housing of some four thousand to five thousand persons adjacent to the most active runway at Oceana. And the builder is stuck with expensive property which must be developed for any financial return, yet the houses according to Navy officials are basically unsuited for habitation because of the noise factor.

It is a precarious, inexcusable, situation. Councilman Robert Cromwell, who had asked for the report on the VA and FHA, claiming that those agencies should really be the ones who squelch such construction, is more than justified in saying he "resent being put in such a position."

Every citizen in this city should resent the situation and steps should be taken now to see that it is not repeated. The builder is left holding the bag. He has the permits to build the twenty-five hundred homes (even though council denied an expansion) but the sale of these homes can only bring problems. If complaints for these homeowners eventually jeopardize the status of the air station, every citizen will be affected by the loss. It places our city officials in a very difficult situation.

The federal government has a responsibility to this city, to its officials and to its citizens to solve the problem it has created...to purchase that property, if and when it becomes necessary.

It is unbelievable that this situation exists merely because of lack of communication between governmental offices. It is unfair to all concerned. It is a wholly mess. It is quite inexcusable.

It is unbelievable that this situation exists merely because of lack of communication between governmental offices. It is unfair to all concerned. It is a wholly mess. It is quite inexcusable.

This request but there must be a better way than completely isolating human beings from the outside world. There are no exercise yards at City Jail, no other way the inmates can see green grass, swaying trees and all the other things free people take for granted. Their entire view of nature...and freedom...is boxed in by windows, broken by bars.

If these inmates could get out into the fresh air but a few minutes a day, it would be a different story. But to deprive them of nature, even a look at it, seems extremely harsh. Especially in a City Jail when many of those inside have not yet been proven guilty, are far from hardened criminals, are, indeed, sons and brothers of very concerned families.

Perhaps these baffles might be placed on certain windows or limited in some fashion if they are definitely necessary. This method just seems extremely harsh for a City Jail and perhaps deserves further consideration.

It is not easy—at time, it is most difficult—to act faithfully as an adviser to so many masters and yet be subservient to none. The American exercise of the right of a free press is not perfect, but the fact it is the best there is was not achieved easily.

Freedom of the press is not the exclusive property of the newspapers. It belongs to each citizen and can endure only so long as he recognizes and practices his part in the whole scheme of things.

Just What Is A Newspaper?

A newspaper is many things to many people.

To some, it is a reality, a living textbook that records each passing day of world history; to others, it is escape—a refuge of entertainment and relaxation after the day's chores.

To the housewife, it is ideas for new menus and new clothes and sensible buying.

To the mother, suggestions for raising the youngsters.

To the teacher, a homework assignment on current events; to schoolchildren, a notebook item.

To the lonely diner, a companion; around the family supper table, a topic of conversation.

To sports and theater lovers, who and what is playing, when and where.

To athletes and actors, scrapbook material.

To an unknown, it brings fame; to a well-known, it furthers his name.

To the publicity seeker, it is a haven; to the publicity shy, a source of annoyance.

To the seller, it means a quick response; to the buyers, many selections.

To some, it brings good news; to others, sad tidings.

To friends and neighbors, it tells about promotions, school achievements and who got married, who was born, who died.

To the voter, it is guidance; to a politician, friend or foe.

To opinion satchels, it stimulates thought.

To front porch sitters, it describes life beyond the horizon.

To the immigrant, it is a schoolbook that helps him learn English; to hunters of truth, it translates the customs from which the immigrant fled.

To the living, it is a source of freedom and hope; for the dead, a tribute to their virtues.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congress still is engrossed in the military and continues to open at 9 a.m. to debate procurement.

Senate commerce committee are busy discussing detergents and truth in advertising. The House is also in the economic and environmental hearings on the national agriculture marketing and bargaining act.

The Washington Post is running two very timely Congressional subjects. Senator Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C. is defending Freedom of the Press with his strong convictions on the First Amendment. He quotes Thomas Jefferson: "No government ought to be without censorship, and where the press is free no one ever will."

Ervin is chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights. The second series of articles is on "Agriculture Threatens Family Farm" by Nick Koyz, a staff writer who went to Iowa and other agricultural states and learned that out there the "corn is not always green." Bonanza farmers are not only usurping profits from the small farmer but leaving him to struggle with the earth which is often unproductive. Again Thomas Jefferson was quoted: "Those who labor in the earth are the chosen people of God — his peculiar deposit for substantial and genuine virtue."

The small farmers are becoming restless, militant and even hungry, and are agitating through their farmer organizations to win higher prices and better conditions for themselves.

The school lunch program has been passed but not funded. When the millions for food are finally parceled out to the states there will be fewer hungry children in this country. We hope the lunches will have plenty of eye and taste appeal as well as being nutritious because even a hungry child wants food that looks and tastes good.

Here are a few negative comments made about our beautiful capital city:

—A visitor to the Jefferson Memorial was infuriated because the statue inside was covered with cowboys. Some of his many admirers who quote him should reverse him by dusting him off.

—New office buildings and apartments are springing up everywhere but are any of them facing the historic Potomac?

—Washington is a boating wasteland. Its broad river is ignored and neglected as a recreational asset. There are few marinas and they are in the wrong places; and even though they are operated by the government and open to the public without restriction, they are unknown and hard to find.

—Opinions on the appearance and location of the Kennedy Center continue. One person remarked: "The Kennedy Center may be no beauty but it does face the river and the view is spectacular."

It won't hurt Senator Henry Jackson's campaign for the presidency that his sister nicknamed him "Scoop" because he reminded her of the comic strip character "Scoop," the Cub Reporter. He, like most other successful men, had a paper route when a boy.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell

Many people have written recently asking how my "Campaign" for Vice President was coming along. For the past six months I have been seeking the nomination for Vice President. My efforts have not been through any one political party but just "At Large". My efforts have been strictly "Tongue In Cheek", all in FUN!

Well, I am happy to inform you that my "Campaign" has never gotten off the ground. I am still "Running" but it is more like a slow walk. If things keep up like they are now going, I will be safe from election. Needless to say, this makes me very happy.

My efforts to get on the ballot in states having a Presidential primary next year have been marked with total unsuccess. Each state tells me that they don't have any place for anyone seeking the Vice Presidency. No one runs for Vice President.

Several states have told me that if I would change and run for President they will send me the forms and requirements necessary. I can't do that as one of my major platform promises has been that I don't want to be President.

With so many possible candidates out beating the bushes trying to run for President, my "Campaign" has attracted surprisingly little national attention. Running for Vice President is so new that most people are not used to the idea yet. I can understand that.

Campaign contributions are still coming in so I must keep spending them. After all, I did promise to spend every contribution. I am saving enough to buy a bottle of champagne to celebrate when it becomes sure that I will be unsuccessful.

While my "campaign" has been marked with great failure, my "Platform" has met with wide acceptance. Many newspapers have reprinted my "Platform" and it has prompted many people to write the papers and agree with what I offer.

Of course, a few people have expressed the thought that I shouldn't be out pointing out the defects in our political selective process. They think I should follow President Nixon's latest suggestion and only point out the GOOD things. That is alright for him to say. He is not out running for Vice President. He only wants to be President. That is easy to do. I would like to see him out trying to run for V.P.

When the major parties, and the minor parties, select their candidates for President and then let that person select his Vice Presidential running mate, I will have proved without a doubt that no one can run for V.P.

When that happens, what will I do? This has been asked by many people. Just last week my wife asked me "Hey You", for some reason she always calls me that. "What are you going to do next?" I feel sure she means what will I do when it becomes clear that I am not going to be the V.P. candidate on any ticket next year.

No one has asked me to do the usual political thing and come out for another candidate who made the ticket. I don't think this is very nice but then politics is not a very nice game.

Since I have been seeking the Vice Presidency, I don't think I will come out and support any Presidential candidate. I think I will come out for one of the Vice Presidential candidates.

I am not too sure about this. No one seems to know what the endorsement of an unsuccessful V.P. candidate is worth today. I don't think I should make an endorsement for nothing. It might upset the market. Besides, with the present freeze on prices it might be illegal if I charge the wrong thing. I am trying to find out what to do. I plan to contact the proper authorities and get them to set a price on such an endorsement.

If I had known about the price freeze in advance, no one ever tells me anything, I could have set a price and everything would have been fine. As it is, I just don't know.

"Since someone is sure to give me something, if I can't get anything to support someone, I can always get something NOT to support someone, that might be my best bet. I have been thinking about what I would want the most. This is hard. What else could be as unimportant as being V.P.?"

I guess I could be "CUSTODIAN OF THE PLATFORM". After the election no one pays any attention to the platform. Who knows, that might be just as good a position as being Vice President!

An Issue Is An Issue Is An Issue

Last week's question turned out to be a very combustible issue before City Council Mayor Rhodes and Councilman Ervin in hot conflict—but the response to the Sun Survey was not nearly as predictable as might be expected.

The question was: "Should the Mayor be empowered to appoint advisory committees without the approval, or at least the advice, of the entire council?"

Eighty per cent of the readers were very much against one man having so much authority. But the other 20 per cent came on strong.

"Any president (and the Mayor is president of the Council) is empowered to make committee appointments," wrote one reader. "There is no point in having a mayor if he has no power (authority). This whole issue has been blown out of proportion by unenlightened individuals."

One woman was quite emphatic in her belief: "Just to satisfy my own curiosity I checked back to the unofficial council when this Council was Waterfield, 1837; No. 3 Rhodes, 1870; No. 4 Holland, 1890; and No. 5 Cornwall, 1897."

"I do not feel that the mayor—and he was just elected at the time as a member of Council from the Borough of Kempville—was given a majority strong enough for him to ride rough shod over the other members. Certainly if the mayor were elected by votes, the only logical choice would have been Mr. Ervin—and the best choice for the city."

"Perhaps the legality of the appointments can be affirmed—but for a city that is growing as rapidly as Virginia Beach, how much wiser it would have been for the mayor to consult other councilmen."

Another reader who opposed the authority noted: "What is needed in our Council is contained in the last paragraph of your editorial!"

The reader refers to the editorial of October 7: "Indivisibility is a beautiful thing. But that isn't what this city needs now. It needs unity. It needs a City Council that will pull together, puts its own political beliefs and affiliations aside in favor of molding a city of balanced growth. The people elect the council because they are entitled to a voice in what is done. One man empowered to sidestep the other elected councilmen deprives the citizens of this right. That's why this particular matter is important."

Since citizen participation became such an issue this week, let's look at another side of it. Several councilmen have suggested reviving a Citizens Advisory Council which received very little support when first introduced.

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: Should City Council revive the proposed Citizens Advisory Council as a means of drawing more citizen participation into city government?

Food Facts

Apples . . .

This is the season of the apple. And if you've taken a trip recently through the valleys of Virginia where the apple trees are laden with luscious fruit you'll find it hard to drive past a farmer's market or a roadside stand without picking up a basket or two.

How best to use the many varieties? U.S. Dept. and Agriculture Consumer and Marketing Service offers some tips.

For eating: Delicious. McIntosh, Stayman, Jonathan, Winesap and Golden Delicious.

For pies and applesauce: Gravenstein, Jonathan, Grimes Golden and the Yellow Newton have a tart or slightly acid flavor.

For baking: Rome Beauty, Northern Spy, Winesap, York Imperial and the Rhode Island Greening (which is green) have the firm flesh good for this purpose.

Diet Tip . . .

In the final analysis there is only one way to lose weight and keep it off: eat less and exercise more. And don't be impatient. If you try to lose pounds a week, you're likely to fall off or start gaining weight again once you've quit dieting. But if you try to lose only one or two pounds a week, you will adjust to it more readily.

Eggs . . .

Chances are you've never given too much thought about the egg you simply take for granted. But the Virginia Dept. of Agriculture and Commerce says it's one of the most perishable foods we eat.

Heat is its enemy. It's a must to purchase eggs from a refrigerated case and rush them to your own refrigerator as quickly as possible. And it's best to leave them in the original carton instead of removing them to an open refrigerator. Why? Eggs shells are porous and absorb odors of other food giving them an objectionable taste.

Also, when eggs are left uncovered under artificial cooling processes, they lose moisture and quality. When cartoned, the moisture is preserved.

Macaroni, Spaghetti . . .

When cooking macaroni, spaghetti and noodles, add a teaspoon of bland cooking oil to the water to keep the food from sticking and from foaming.

Mushrooms Distinguish Italy's Famous Dishes

Although both mushrooms and spaghetti speak Italian, it took many centuries to assemble all the makings of a dish as delectable as Mushroom Spaghetti Sauce Bolognese.

The mushrooms, olive oil, onion, garlic and meats were to be had in the days of ancient Rome, with mushrooms so highly esteemed that special vessels were set aside especially for mushroom cookery. The spaghetti, and pastas in general, reached Italy from China about six hundred years ago, and five hundred years ago the necessary tomatoes were discovered in the New World.

SPAGHETTI MUSHROOM SAUCE BOLOGNESE
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms or 1 can (6 to 8 oz.) sliced mushrooms
4 tablespoons olive oil
1 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 cup (1 lb.) diced ham
1 pound ground lean beef
1 can (2 lb. 3 oz.) Italian plum tomatoes, broken up
1 can (7 oz.) tomato paste
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning
1/2 teaspoon sugar
Cooked spaghetti
Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms. In a large saucepan heat oil. Add onion and garlic and saute until onion is transparent. Add mushrooms and ham and saute 5 minutes longer. Add beef and cook until browned, stirring often. Blend in remaining ingredients except spaghetti. Simmer, uncovered, 2 hours or until sauce is thick, stirring occasionally. Serve over cooked spaghetti.
YIELD: approximately 6 cups sauce.

MUSHROOM CHILI OVER CORN MUFFINS
1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 can (6 to 8 oz.) sliced mushrooms
3 tablespoons oil
1 1/2 pounds ground lean beef
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, broken up
1 cup onion flakes
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon oregano leaves
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) red kidney beans
6 to 8 corn muffins
Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms. Heat oil in a large skillet. Add mushrooms and saute 5 minutes. Add beef and cook until browned, stirring often. Blend in tomatoes, onion flakes, chili powder, salt and oregano. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add kidney beans and simmer uncovered, 15 minutes longer. Spoon Mushroom Chili over split corn muffins.
YIELD: 6 to 8 portions.

Boating Safety Their Goal

First Mates Enjoy Boatnik

Women's Lib wouldn't have much luck recruiting from the ranks of the Virginia Beach First Mates. "We're perfectly content to be first mates if our husbands are captains," Mrs. Fenton Priest, Jr. said.

First Mates are women whose husbands are members of the Virginia Beach Power Squadron, or women who have, themselves, passed the boating safety courses.

It was at Polly Priest's home on Adam Keeling Road last week that the women held a Boatnik, which, as Mrs. J.R. Potter explained, "isn't a plain picnic but a picnic for boaters."

A clear day and a scenic location on the bank of Lynnhaven Inlet plus home-cooked food brought by each member, set the pace for a season of relaxed fellowship.

There was a minimum of business to transact on the spacious screened porch, with a view of the river, where the Priest's boat, the Lady Lucy was moored to the dock.

But while the First Mates is primarily a social club, their real business is to promote boating safety, which is a major consideration today with so many crafts crowding the waterways.

They meet the first Thursday of

They didn't really leave the dock, but the First Mates all climbed aboard the Lady Lucy during their Boatnik at Polly Priest's.

Hardy mums in bud or bloom are available now in containers from most garden centers. They can be removed from their containers and planted in your yard to give instant fall landscape color. If there are aphids (small green or black insects) around the buds, spray them with Malathion.

If you put your house plants outdoors for the summer, bring them indoors before you turn your heat on for the winter. This will give the plants a chance to get acclimated without a severe change in temperatures and humidity. Also, check them for any insects they may have picked up outdoors.

Sew ryegrass this month to give winter color to bermudagrass lawns. Do not use ryegrass on fescue lawns, just overseed with more fescue if you have any bare spots.

Model Airplane Show: Models Are For Everyone

GET READY — Herk Stohely prepares a 1910 Demozell for flight in Saturday's Model Plane meet. The Demozell, built by Paul Martin is modelled after the one used in the movie, "Those Magnificent Men and Their Flying Machines."

Models on display show the intricate detail which goes into building a model flyer.

Models are for kids. That theory was disproved Saturday when the Virginia Beach Jaycees joined forces with the Tidewater Radio Control Club and the Tidewater Soaring Club to present a model airplane show for approximately 400 people at the Laskin Road Golf Driving Range.

Model planes have advanced considerably from the days of a stick of balsa wood and some glue. The wood and glue are still required but models now boast high speed engines and complex radio transmitters. On display were planes ranging to $1000 in cost and capable of speeds of more than 100 mph.

The builders put on an excellent show of high-speed maneuvers, acrobatics, pylon racing, soaring and what seemed to be the best crowd pleaser, aerial combat. The Jaycees continued in their tradition of providing nothing but the best for Virginia Beach residents and visitors.

Jaycee member William Gill signs up young hopefuls for the free model given away at the Model Plane show Saturday.

Pilots Shoot Down P.A. Cavaliers 27-18

Princess Anne played well enough to win, but did not in what must be becoming a very frustrating season for the Cavaliers. Even though Princess Anne ground out 13 first downs to Norview's 8, Norview won the game point-wise, 27-18.

Thurman Biggs ran over from the one to put the Pilots on the scoreboard first. The Cavaliers had held the Pilots on downs at their 7 yard line, took over the ball and fumbled. Norview recovered, and Biggs scored from the one. After Norview kicked off to Princess Anne following their touchdown, the Cavaliers marched 75 yards to tie the game. Ken Ahles took the ball in from the three yard line after Rodney Steele hauled in a 55 yard pass from quarterback Mike Ange. Neither team was able to convert the extra point, and the half ended deadlocked at 6-all.

Thirty-three points were added to the scoreboard in the third quarter. The opening kickoff of the second half was returned 94 yards for a touchdown by Norview's Biggs. Allen Rose kicked the point-after, and the Pilots led 13-6. Ange brought the Cavaliers back with a 5 yard touchdown bomb to Ahles, but the gamble for two fell short, and Norview kept the lead at 13-12. Not to be outdone, Norview signal-caller Alan Rose passed 20 yards to Floyd Sweat for a score, and then Rose kicked the conversion to open up the lead to 20-12.

Another, Princess Anne scoring drive ended with an 18 yard touchdown pass from Ange to end Tommy Butts, pulling the scrappy Cavaliers to within two points. A pass attempt by Ange for a two-point conversion that would tie the game failed, and Norview led by two, 20-18. With seconds left in the third quarter, Biggs drove in from the 14 yard line to score, Rose added a point on the kick, and Norview led 27-18.

The Princess Anne defense recovered two Pilot fumbles and stopped drives by the powerful Norfolk foe. Norview was held to eight first downs, but they managed to rack up 260 total yards, largely on long runs. Except for an occasional breakdown that allowed the long gain, the Cavalier defense pretty well contained Norview's explosive backs.

Ange completed 10 of 25 passes for 185 yards, and he hit for two touchdowns. The Cavalier backs were held to a net gain of 51 yards. With a better offensive line effort in opening holes for the runners and gaining time for the passer, the score might have been different.

Following the contest, Princess Anne coach John Grady commented, "I felt the officials missed a clipping call on Biggs' kickoff return in the second half. I saw it, and a lot of people in the stands did. By not calling it, the Biggs' score added

First Colonial Stays Unbeaten

Cox Falls 24-8

Employing almost flawless play execution and a touch of razzle-dazzle here and there, First Colonial swept to its sixth consecutive win of the season. The 24-8 Saturday night victory over Cox kept the unbeaten Falcons on top of the Eastern District with the best record in the State. Cox now has a 2-3 record.

After a scoreless first quarter, First Colonial forged to a 10-0 halftime lead with a ten point outburst in the second quarter. A razzle-dazzle pitchout and pass play from quarterback Butch Foley to fullback Mike Wareing and then back to Foley set up the game's first score. Three plays later, on a fourth down and five yards to go situation on Cox's 25 yard line, Foley tossed a 25 yard aerial to end Chris Paphites, who was all alone in the end zone, for the score. Foley kicked the con-

Cox was determined not to be shut out. Cox's Randy Robinson powered through the middle of the line from two yards out to put his team on the scoreboard. Quarterback Mike Noe passed to Perry Hill for a two-point conversion, giving Cox eight points with about nine minutes left in the contest. Cox threatened again late in the game, but First Colonial's Dave Bumgardner intercepted a pass at his own 10 yard line to stop the Falcon's last threat with 1:40 showing on the clock, to preserve a 24-8 victory for his team.

The game had a number of outstanding players. For Cox, offensively, Randy Robinson gained 86 yards in 16 carries and scored one touchdown. Allen Williams picked up 40 yards in 16 attempts. Mike Noe completed 4 of 8 passes for 55 yards, including a pass for a two-point version to give First Colonial a 7-0 lead.

After holding Cox on downs to get the ball back at their own 30 yard line, Foley connected on a 25 yard pass to Paphites and a 20 yard pass to fullback Rick Lavrischeff to move the ball to the Cox 10 yard stripe. With just three seconds left in the half, Foley booted a 27 yard field goal to send his Patriot team into the locker room with a 10-0 halftime lead.

Four minutes into the second half, fullback Don Pulley broke through a hole on the right side of the line and made the most spectacular run of the evening for the Patriots. Pulley raced fifty yards, from his own 45 yard line to Cox's 5, with a key block by Paphites springing Pulley for most of the yardage. A determined Falcon defense dug in and held First Colonial, taking over the ball on the one foot line.

The next time First Colonial, taking over the ball on the one foot line. The next time First Colonial got the ball, Joe Williams skirted left and end and raced nine yards to push his team in front 16-0. Foley split the uprights on the conversion, giving the Patriots 17 tallies. With only a minute and a half left in the quarter, Foley threw his second touchdown pass of the game, a 52 yard bomb to Paphites. Another successful conversion kick by Foley shot First Colonial into a 24-0 lead.

conversion. For the game, Cox ground out 170 yards rushing and picked up 55 more passing.

Defensively, Bill Span and Allen Williams had a fumble recovery each. Billy Summs, Ray White, Rod Roche, Jim Caudreau, Trey Jewell, and Bill Span make key tackles.

The First Colonial defense was led by Scott Davison, Jay Knight, Rick Romano, Jerry Pontes, Richard Houge, and George Myers. Dave Bumgardner and Chris Paphites picked off a pass each, and Paphites and Joe Williams each recovered a fumble. Although the Patriot defense gave up 225 yards to the powerful Falcons, they held when they had to in order to stop scoring drives.

Offensively, First Colonial picked up 325 total yards, 175 over the ball on the one foot line. The next time First Colonial, taking over the ball on the one foot line. The next time First Colonial got the ball, Joe Williams skirted left and end and raced nine yards to push his team in front 16-0. Kempsville Bows To Maury 14-6

A stubborn Kempsville Commodore offense to one touchdown in the first half, and Maury was not able to punch the ball across the goal line again until the fourth quarter. George Woodhouse scored all of Maury's tallies with touchdown runs of 32 and 16 yards and a two-point conversion. Woodhouse gained 280 of Maury's total 364 yards.

Even though Maury had 30 first downs to Kempsville's 4, and although the Commodores outgained the Chiefs 364 total yards to 70, Kempsville was able to stay within a touchdown and a two-point conversion with the help of a fumble recovery and an interception. At the end of the game, Chief quarterback Billy Paschall was trying to bring victory to his team, hitting three straight passes and marching to Maury's 42 yard line, where an interception dashed the upset dream. Paschall completed 7 of 17 passes in the game, gaining 55 yards in the air and adding 12 yards in 5 carries on the ground.

Indian River Braves Massacre Kellam 40-0

Kellam's record dropped to one victory and four defeats with Friday nights 40-0 scalping at the hands of the Indian River Braves. The tough Braves upped their record to three wins and two defeats.

Kellam actually outplayed Indian River for over a quarter, but the Knights seemed to be demoralized after Indian River picked up a Kellam fumble at the three yard line and took it in for the score. Kellam penetrated deep into Indian River territory many times, but fumbles and interceptions stopped them cold. Through the first three quarters, the Braves scored 18 points. They added 22 more in the fourth quarter, largely due to four interceptions. Kellam went to the air in the last quarter in a desperation attempt to get back in the game, but the four interceptions sunk them further into the hole.

Bayside Black-Flags Pesky Hornets 27-14

The old grade were well-entertained Friday night at Bayside's homecoming festivities as they watched their Marlin's beat the Hornets of Deep Creek right off the football field with a 27-14 victory. The win lifted Bayside's record to three wins and two defeats, while the loss was Deep Creek's second in five tries.

The Bayside offense exploded early. Roger Baxter pushed the ball over from the one yard line for the game's first score. Baxter's touchdown capped an 80 yard drive after his team won the toss and received the opening kickoff. A try for a two-point conversion fell short, but Bayside had an early 6-0 lead. Two minutes into the second quarter, Baxter scored again. This time the speedy back was on the receiving end of a 17 yard pass from quarterback Tom Chipok, and Bayside led 12-0. Jesse McPherson rambled 29 yards to score for the Hornets, and a two-point conversion was good to pull Deep Creek within four at halftime, 12-8.

Baxter added his third touchdown of the night in the fourth quarter, when he drove into scoring territory from three yards out. Still greedy for more, Baxter then ran over the two-point conversion, giving him and Bayside 20 points to Deep Creek's 8. Down but not out, the Hornets swarmed back with a touchdown on an 82 yard romp by Ron Copeland, who wound up with the pigskin after a razzle-dazzle triple reverse. The conversion pass for two was broken up, but the Bayside lead was cut to 20-14.

Deep Creek's new-found momentum had Bayside's old grade squirming in the stands. The Hornets were driving into Marlinton for the tying score, but Jerry Payne intercepted a Hornet aerial with 1:53 remaining to preserve the win. Chipok thought his team had time for one more score, and he let Howard Jones prove it by running the ball over the goal line from 19 yards out with only 1:14 left on the scoreboard. The kick was good on the point-after, and Bayside led and won 27-14.

The entire Bayside team must share the honors for the Deep Creek victory. The defense shut off Hornet drives and recovered three fumbles and picked off three passes. Donald Harold was in on several key tackles and put pressure on Deep Creek's passer all night. Linebackers Jerry Payne and Nick Daverse, turned in an outstanding performance.

Old Timers Day Slated

Chowan College will honor former members of their football teams at Old Timers' Day on Saturday, November 6. Featured event of the weekend will be the 3 p.m. gridiron clash between the Chowan Braves and Wesley College of Dover, Delaware. The day's program starts with a "happy hour" in the President's Room of Thomas Cafeteria at 3:30 p.m. with a tour of the campus to follow. Earl Dilday, Associate Dean of Students, promises that returning "Old Timers" will have plenty of time to reminiscence with each other and the past coaches. Dr. Bruce E. Whitaker, Chowan College President, will extend a welcome to all former Braves and their families at a 5:30 p.m. dinner. Dilday hopes that the five former football coaches will be on hand. John Daniels coached the first Chowan football team in 1922, and he has been followed by Melvin Layton, Herb Ap-... (The text continues with names of coaches and details of the event.)

Chris Evert Opens New Tennis Center

Chris Evert will be on hand to officially christen the new Tidewater Tennis Center Sunday afternoon, October 17th. Her 2 p.m. exhibition match will be against another Floridian, Laura Fleming, who ranks second behind Miss Evert in Florida tennis rankings. Miss Fleming is a member of the Junior Wightman Cup Team and won the National 14-year-old title in 1969 and the National 16-year-old title in 1971.

Miss Evert recently surprised the tennis world by advancing to the finals of the United States Open Championship at Forest Hills. Riding on a winning streak of 44 straight matches, she lost to tournament winner Billie Jean King. The 16-year-old tennis sensation has been described by many as the new beauty of the courts, and she will bring a lot of spectator interest to the game.

It is unfortunate that space only allows members of the new tennis center to see the exhibition, but the four-court facility is designed only to hold

Navy Man's Body Found

A body discovered in the North Landing River about 9 a.m. Wednesday has been identified as that of Navy Chief Radioman Dale Hastings, missing since last Saturday morning.

Hastings, 33, of Route 5, was reported missing when he failed to return from a fishing trip in the Intercoastal Waterway. He reportedly left the Camp Lazy B dock about 7:30 a.m. Saturday.

His 10-foot boat, still containing its only life preserver, was found Sunday morning when a search was launched for him.

The body was found by persons on board a private yacht about one mile north of the North Carolina border.

Officials said Hastings' identification was made through personal papers and Navy I.D. card issued to him at the Dam Neck Naval Installation, which were found on the body.

Smoothest Opening: Brickell

"We are off to a very smooth and a very fine start in our schools this year," Superintendent E.E. Brickell told the PTA Leadership Conference last Thursday.

As you know we have been in session for about five weeks, and this is one of the best openings I have witnessed in some twenty years in school work.

Most of the credit naturally ought to go to the students themselves, but I have to say a word about our usually cooperative parents and about the tremendous planning and organizing job that was done by our principals and their associates. They are certainly to be commended for their efforts.

"There are several things that perhaps we ought to touch on here at the outset of this new school year, some being a little different than in other years, some being relatively new to us here in Virginia Beach.

"Although we have been very used to transporting practically all of our students in Virginia Beach for many, many years, 'bussing' has come into being as the Board has attempted to comply with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 as interpreted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

As most of you know, since the event certainly did not suffer from lack of publicity, we have had to reorganize to some extent six of our existing elementary schools, in an effort to comply with Title VI.

"The Board did what it had to do under the law, and the children have been in school now for five weeks, and I have only one adverse report to come to my office from any of the six schools involved. That turned out to be pure fabrication on the part of the student, reminding me that when I was a very young teacher I decided that if parents would not believe everything children said happened in school then I would not believe everything children said happened at home!

"Adjustments in our schools have been met cooperatively by our patrons and by our students, just as all similar changes have been met in Virginia Beach over the past decade. This is a great tribute to all members of all races in Virginia Beach, who have shown, and continue to show, that people can live together peacefully, and with harmony and understanding.

"Man's lot was never meant to be totally free of aggravation, however! A new sort of concern has appeared on the horizon, and undeniably it disturbed many of you and many of our citizens of Virginia Beach. We are all very much aware of the portentous quality of the suit recently heard in Richmond, in which the Richmond School Board petitioned to consolidate that school system with those of surrounding Henrico and Chesterfield counties. At about the same time, some high officials of a neighboring city gave public indication that the outcome of this suit might well have some effect on the operation of public schools in Tidewater.

"At the time the statement was first made, our Mayor publicly declared that Virginia Beach would oppose any such effort with every means at its disposal, and I want to assure you that this feeling is shared by your School Board in every respect. The School Board believes strongly in the traditional American idea of local autonomy over public schools, and the destruction of that principle of government would, the Board believes, be only the forerunner of the destruction of many other basic principles of American government.

"I do want to assure you that your School Board feels that consolidation would not be in the best interest of Virginia Beach students, and will oppose it by every legal means.

"In the meantime, we must continue to provide for our children in the best way we possibly can. We cannot simply halt all progress because of the posing of a threat that things may not always be as they are today, so on Thursday, September 24, the School Board met in open session at Princess Anne High School, and many of you were present on that evening, and heard a very fine presentation by Mr. James C. Mounie, Director of Research, Planning and Development, relative to the alternatives available for housing our ever-increasing school population.

After the presentation, the School Board Chairman, Mr. J.W. Buffington, appointed a subcommittee of the Board to study the problem in some depth, to attempt to get some public feeling on the matter, and to report with a recommendation to the Board as soon as possible. Dr. Roy A. Woods, Academic Dean of Norfolk State College, is chairman of this committee. Its members are Mrs. Reva Kelberg, Mr. Spencer Lott, Mr. Robert DeFord, and Mr. Lelan Hood; those of you who have some ideas on the question are invited to communicate with any of these persons to transmit these ideas; soon most of you will be receiving a brief questionnaire and I urge you to fill it out and return it to Dr. Woods.

"There is no question that we are going to have to do something. Because just as we have all known for some time, our enrollment is steadily increasing and we have a 'commitment' to provide for these students, and they will be provided for.

"I think that these are some relatively new developments, and I touch now on one that is fairly old. We always have with us, as you are very much aware, those who would destroy public education, and they reveal themselves, sometimes slowly. But they always reveal themselves. These are very often people who go around in the guise of low tax proponents, and people who speak against the public schools purely for economy's sake, insuring all that they are interested in the children, but... Luckily, they fool people only temporarily. They are opponents of public education who would destroy it, public education being the strongest force for democracy that this country and the world has ever known. I think it is interesting to keep your eye on these people and to see the various ways and means they conduct themselves, knowing all the time what their real goal is: the destruction of our public school system as we know it, and the substitution of a private system of schools, available to only a select few.

"Contemplate if you will what your life might be like without public schools, what your child's future would be without the public schools, what your city, state, and nation would be like without a strong system of public schools, open to all the children of all the people.

"Think on that, if you will, and ask if this is not something worth working for.

"Finally, I want to thank each of you for your abiding interest in our public schools, for your contributions to our public schools, and for your continued and necessary support. We are still moving in Virginia Beach toward our goal, and with your help we will achieve it. Not to have just a good school system, but simply the very best there is.

seven points to the board. That was probably the turning point of the game. Losing by a big score is bad enough, but these close ones really get you worked up. We've lost five ballgames by a total of 25 points, and with an occasional break going our way, we could just as easily have been 5-0 instead of 0-5."

"We will have a different team next week," Coach John Cooke said after the loss. "We will have Edwards back and will be going with a two platoon system. We are still looking for a winning season and plan to get back on the road to victory Friday night. Even though Princess Anne is 0-5, they are probably the best 0-5 team in the State. With Edwards back and with the other changes we are making, we are looking for our second win of the season Friday night."

placed as yet in the death of Mrs. Jones.

Woody was convicted of second-degree murder this past July by a Circuit Court jury which fixed his punishment at eight years in prison. He has not however been sentenced pending an appeal of his conviction.

Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans based his prosecution of Tillman primarily on the testimony of Woody. As he did during his own trial Woody testified that he took no part in the killing of Jones, that Tillman alone was responsible, and that he in no way assisted Tillman in the crime.

At the request of the jury Woody indicated on a coastal map of Virginia Beach the path the Jones' trimaran followed on the night Jones was killed.

Woody indicated the sailboat travelled through waters of Lynnhaven Inlet to a point about a half-mile off Chesapeake Beach where Tillman, according to Woody, bound Jones and strangled him with a garrote fashioned from the aboard the trimaran.

Woody then pointed out a position approximately two-and-a-half miles off Little Creek where, he said, Tillman, pushed Jones overboard. Woody testified Tillman then told him he wanted to take the trimaran through the Elizabeth River to River Terrace in Norfolk. Woody said instead he maneuvered the craft through the Bay towards the Bay-Bridge 3rd Island, where he deliberately ran aground.

Woody's testimony indicated he and Tillman then climbed onto the roadway of the crossing where they were found by a patrolling bridge-tunnel police unit, and were taken to the toll plaza at the Virginia Beach terminus of the crossing where a taxicab was summoned for them.

Defense attorney James A. Gorry in attempting to prove Tillman's innocence called only one defense witness, Robert Belcher, 19, who was a former classmate of Woody in the City Jail.

Belcher testified that he and Woody discussed the death of Jones and Woody indicated to him that he was responsible for Jones' death.

Woody, according to Belcher, said "Tillman did not participate, but since everybody was against him (Tillman) he was gonna shift the weight on him."

Tillman did not take the stand to refute any testimony from either Woody or Belcher, or to speak in his own behalf.

During Evans' cross-examination of him Belcher admitted that he and Tillman discussed his (Tillman's) belief in the Black Muslim religion. He was asked if he followed the same faith and for that reason was trying to aid Tillman.

Belcher denied any sympathy with the Black Muslim movement and denied any intentions to assist Tillman because of this belief.

Woody testified to overhearing discussions about the Black Muslim religion between Belcher and Tillman, but could not say he heard Belcher offer to assist Tillman.

In his closing arguments to the jury Gorry pointed out their verdict must be unanimous and beyond any reasonable doubt. He challenged Woody's testimony as being "incredible," and added "frankly this case falls or rises with Woody and can you say that his testimony overcomes any reasonable doubt?"

Gorry challenged the veracity of Woody's testimony through inconsistencies between his testimony and statements which were given to police shortly after his arrest.

He also challenged Woody's statements indicating Jones sat quietly without calling out during what transpired onboard the trimaran while other boats passed nearby as they sailed a short distance off-shore.

Testimony during the trial, Gorry said, also showed that it was Woody rather than Tillman who had any knowledge of handling craft such as the trimaran and therefore he and not Tillman had any reason for wanting such a craft. He also challenged Woody on the point that he, and not Tillman, through his familiarity with boats would be able to tie knots such as the ones with which Jones had been bound and used in the garrote which had been placed around Jones' neck.

Gorry concluded by reiterating "Woody's testimony is incredible" and questioned whether to put stock in his testimony. He added "If you don't accept Woody's testimony

Lovisi's Released From Jail

Aldo and Margaret Lovisi were released on bond from Virginia Beach City Jail last Thursday afternoon after being confined for one week.

The Lovisi's were remanded to the City Jail on Sept. 30, when the State Supreme Court denied their appeals of convictions of charges connected with their arrest in April of 1969 on a number of morals charges.

Their release was affected when defense attorney Gerald Rubinger posted bonds totalling $25,000, $15,000 for Aldo and $10,000 for Mrs. Lovisi, which were set last Wednesday by Circuit Court Judges George Vakos and Philip Russo.

The bonds permit Aldo, 43, and his 33-year-old wife to remain free until Nov. 30, for the purpose of appealing their convictions to the U. S. Supreme Court. The State Supreme Court issued a stay of execution of its denial of their appeal until that date for the purpose of appeal on the Federal level.

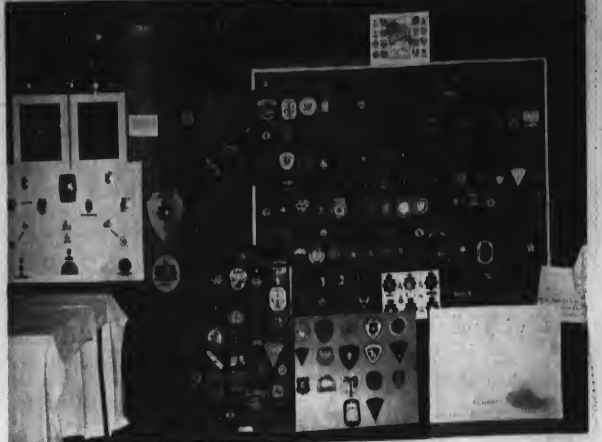

The appeals concern a sodomy conviction for Aldo, for which he received a two years prison sentence, and Mrs. Lovisi's conviction of arson for which she was sentenced to five years in prison.

Judge Vakos and Russo increased the amounts of their bonds in light of additional convictions and prison sentences which the Lovisi's have received, and which are also in some stage of appeal litigation.

Aldo is facing additional sentences of six years and 12 months on convictions of taking indecent liberties with his two teenage stepdaughters and endangering the lives of juveniles.

Mrs. Lovisi has received additional sentences of five years on two convictions of sodomy, two years of which would be served concurrently with the arson conviction sentence.

The additional convictions of the Lovisi's are still involved in appeals to the State Supreme Court.

Trans System Studied

Members of the Virginia Beach Development Council during its Tuesday meeting laid the groundwork for establishing a system of public transportation in Virginia Beach.

The VBDC, pointing to increasing population growth of the city, will request City Officials to make a study of the feasibility of a public transportation system which will eventually connect all areas of Virginia Beach. At Monday's City Council meeting Councilman Robert Callie also suggested that a city-wide transportation system be studied.

Council members also resolved to request increased cooperation between City Officials and VBDC in programs designed for the overall improvement of the resort city.

A review was made of progress on the Mutual Racing Study being made by VBDC, to determine the social and economic impact of mutual betting will have on Virginia Beach. Findings of the study will be presented to VBDC members at their meeting of Nov. 16, and to City Council during that body's January 1972 annual meeting.

Murder Trial Moved To Eastern Shore

Edward Benjamin Short, III, will face trial in Accomack County for the murder of Ralph W. Young whose partially decomposed body was found last Sept. 10 in the Acredale area of Virginia Beach.

Short, 23, of Fremont, Calif., was indicted earlier this year by a Virginia Beach Grand Jury while he was confined in a penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., where he was serving a sentence on a conviction of robbery. He was extradited to the resort city for legal proceedings.

When asked for reasons in the relocation of Short's trial Det. Capt. R.C. Davis said "developments during our investigation brought about a change in trial sites. We now have good reason to believe Young met his death just outside Parkley on Virginia's Eastern Shore." Davis added that upon completion of his trial Short will be returned to Atlanta to complete his sentence.

A medical examiner report indicated Young, 51, died of multiple stab wounds. In-vestigation showed he was last seen alive near his Northampton County five days before his body was found at the end of Bonnydale Road.

Officials said the search for Young's killer lead investigators through a number of Southern states, highlighted by a trail of the use of credit cards issued to Young, which culminated in the location of Young's stolen auto under 15 feet of water in a rock quarry outside Inverness, Fla.

Authorities have not as yet advanced any motive behind the killing of Young.

Authority Issue Deferred

The question of the mayor's authority to appoint committees without knowledge of the other councilmen eased its way back into Monday's formal session but there was none of the outbursts of the week before and the matter was deferred for one week.

Councilman Reid Ervin, who questioned Mayor Donald Rhodes' authority to appoint a new 7-member building committee before dismissing the existing committee, introduced a motion concerning the appointment of committees, boards and commissions.

He noted that his motion was not inflexible but primarily a guide. He suggested (1) Appointments to groups provided for in the State and City Code and City Charter be made as prescribed in those documents; (2) that other appointments be made by City Council at regular meetings, provided there is a quorum, and that the appointments be for specific terms with a 3-term limit.

Mayor Rhodes questioned the limitation on two consecutive terms, pointing to the necessity of additional terms for such appointees as "chairman of the School Board, for instance."

City Clerk Richard Webber reminded Council that he was investigating the number of existing committees. "There are some which have been on the books for years and were never dismissed, some which have never met or made a report," he said. Council agreed to defer action on Ervin's motion until Webber could complete his report on previous appointments.

"I don't mean to be facetious," Councilman Robert Cromwell commented as Monday's meeting stretched into its third hour. "But I think we need a committee to study a way for council to speed up its meetings!"

Cromwell's comment came

Suspects Awaiting Trial In Alleged Abduction

Municipal Court hearings are scheduled Nov. 15 for two men charged in connection with the alleged abduction of Gary Lewis Sawning of Virginia Beach. Officials identified the accused as James Larry Bell, 26, Carnegie Avenue, Virginia Beach, and Thomas Ray Richardson, 33, Flower Road, Chesapeake.

Authorities quoted Sawning, 30, with saying he was abducted at pistol point by two men at approximately 7 a.m. as he was preparing to enter the Byler Building, on Virginia Beach Boulevard for work.

Sawning, police said, was reportedly forced into a car at gunpoint by his assailants and driven to Chesapeake, where he was beaten and threats were made to his life in seeking certain information. Upon receipt of the information, according to Sawning, he was then returned to the Byler Building and released. Det. Sgt. Michael Zello said both suspects have been charged with abduction, while Bell has also been charged with threatening bodily harm with a pistol and Richardson also charged with simple assault. Bell, according to Zello, is also facing charges of armed robbery and felonious shooting in connection with an incident of Oct. 7 in Virginia Beach, and that he was being sought on a federal fugitive warrant in connection with an armed robbery last month in Charleston, S.C.

Following their appearance in court last Friday for the appointment of counsel Bell and Richardson were remanded to custody of the City Jail, where they are being held without benefit of bond to await further legal proceedings.

Proposed Refuse Fees, Regulations Postponed

By "R J" PHILLIPS

The issue of what to do with dead animals, and other types of refuse, came before City Council again Monday in informal session when Director of Community Services W. W. Fleming Jr. set forth a set of proposed regulations for operation of Landfill No. 2.

The city's own refuse is not the problem, Fleming explained. It's the rubble being brought in from other cities in commercial trucks licensed in Virginia Beach that is costing the city money.

Even animal carcasses are being brought in from other cities, he said, and it takes personnel and equipment away from landfill operations for some three hours to dispose of each carcass.

"If you charge a man $50 or $60 to dispose of a dead animal," Councilman George Ferrell commented, "he'll probably leave it in the woods somewhere. And that could cause more problems."

Fleming explained that the proposed fee is about one third of what this service costs the city. "Every time we dispose of a dead animal it takes a man and equipment away from the regular land fill operation and we lose that much time."

"That's the story of your life isn't it," Ferrell asked. "A bridge breaks down you have the same situation. I think that's probably the life of a public servant."

Councilman Reid Ervin commented that perhaps the problem eventually could be handled by the sludge incinerator at Hampton Roads Sanitation District's Chesapeake plant.

Fleming said he would give further study to his proposal but pushed expediency by council because of the cost to the city. He said he would try to have an ordinance ready for council next week.

City Manager Roger Scott said that the situation had existed for many years and that another week or two wouldn't make that much difference.

The animal fee would be the only charge to Virginia Beach citizens. Fleming proposes $25 per animal up to and including animals the size of hogs. All other animals—horses, cows, etc.—would be $50.

Anyone living in Virginia Beach would not be charged for average loads of refuse originating from cleaning of their own residences, even though such loads will be weighed and recorded. If the quantity or character requires special handling, citizens may be subject to a fee.

Contract haulers, private, commercial and industrial firms would be charged $3.12 per ton with a minimum charge of $1. And there would be a 35 cent charge per tire for cutting it up, a charge which Fleming points out is already in effect in Portsmouth and Chesapeake. Tires must be cut up to be compatible for landfill operations, he said.

Fleming said the city could be collecting $3,700 per week, or $185,000 per year, from private, commercial or industrial trucks dumping over-average loads of refuse at the landfills. He questioned that most of these carried rubble from Virginia Beach, as they claimed.

This money, he said, would "to a large degree offset the tremendous cost of constructing and operating Landfill No. 2."

Also in the proposed regulations, Fleming listed eight non-acceptable items for the landfill: large bulky materials, such as tree stumps with trunks in excess of eight inches in diameter; hazardous solid and liquid wastes such as highly flammable materials; explosives; pathological wastes; poisons; infectious wastes from doctor's offices such as syringes, patient's specimens, discarded dressings, etc.; radioactive materials; and large pieces of concrete.

In addition to the usual rubble, the landfill will accept broken pieces of concrete; wood; brick; ashes; burned tin cans; longitudinal sliced or equivalently deformed rubber tires; roofing and household refuse; and car bodies without chassis.

A Call For Fun

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre is enthusiastically getting its 1971-72 season underway with a telethon to entice new members to get season tickets and to remind longtime members that the season has officially started.

There is much enthusiasm in these calls, since the theatre group now has a home to call its own and will no longer be performing from pillar to post as it has in recent seasons while attempting to build its own theatre.

The building is nearing completion at the corner of 24th Street and Barborton Avenue and is already bustling with activity nightly during the week as the cast of "The King and I" go through rehearsals.

The Rogers and Hammerstein musical will officially open the theatre and the current season the Friday following Thanksgiving.

City To Give MuseumLand But Simon Misses

New Series Opens

The Virginia Beach Art Center got its first nod of approval from City Council Monday for a new museum to be built on city-owned property.

The group has proposed an elaborate art complex at the small neighborhood park site adjacent to the entrance to the Toll Road. The city-owned site starts at the end of 23rd Street, as presently developed, and extends from the Toll Road to 24th Street.

Approval from council is needed before the art group can proceed with its solicitation program, architect Wiley Cooke told the councilmen.

City Manager Roger Scott said that a study is underway for the location of a future convention center and would prefer that this specific site not be committed until the study is completed.

"The study should be completed this year," Scott said. "I'm sure it will be completed by the time the art center's fund drive is over."

Council agreed and assured the art group that a site in the general vicinity would be made available for the center when the time comes. With this commitment the group can proceed with its fund drive.

Rezoning Reversed; Item Referred Back

City Council has reversed its ruling on a rezoning application for apartments and has chosen instead to refer the matter back to the Planning Department for further study.

Council reversed its denial last week of an application of John Atkinson for 104 1-bedroom apartments in Frenac Shores, near Linkhorn Park School and Chanticleer Apartments.

Atkinson appeared before Council Monday and said he did not feel the councilmen truly understood his application. He pointed out that the apartments were primarily intended for retired persons, they would create only 4.66 school children, would generate a $11,070 in real estate taxes and the sales tax from residents could bring the figure up to $20,000 revenue to the city, even with the cost of educating the 4.66 children. The sewage situation had been the primary reason for denying the application and Atkinson said he admitted the sewage was "the only legitimate reason for not approving it" but there are two "different sides to the situation".

He asked that the application be approved subject to the State Water Control Board certifying the Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission's plant at Little Creek. "The State Water Control Board should be the only authority on sewage this city has," he commented.

The property in question is already surrounded by apartments and is protected from commercial districts by a natural water barrier. It is zoned residential but the site is too small to build houses on, Atkinson said. The property is in the fringe area of Zone Three but the Navy did not object to this particular application, since the neighborhood is already predominantly apartments and it is the only logical use for the property, a Navy official said.

All members served three-year terms. Clifford L. Adams is executive director of the foundation and director of research administration at ODU.

Environmental Paper Outlined By Canode

Eighth District Republican Senatorial candidate, Joe Canode, issued the following Environmental Paper:

ENVIRONMENTAL PAPER

Parks and Recreational Facilities: To support the full development of False Cape State Park in order that the city can offer a public beach on the Atlantic Ocean and that an important ecological area can be preserved for future generations.

Would seek to have the city's Little Island Park converted into a small resort district which would be planned to maintain an ecological balance like the renowned residential community of Reston. There is considerable reason to believe that such a novel project could obtain both Federal HUD funds allotted for the new cities program as well as private foundation grants.

Solid Waste Disposal: Would promote the establishment of a system of Mount Trashmore throughout the Commonwealth. A state-local government program working with the Planning District Commission must be established.

Regional Metal Recycling Plants: The problem of ridding our landscape of junked automobiles demands that we create a statewide system of ridding Virginia of such trash. Funding of such a program could come through an alteration of our titling tax program.

Environmental Educational System: The Commonwealth should adopt legislation like California's Environmental Education Act which institutes a compulsory course of study for grades one through six and coordinates a continuation in the high school curriculum. Teachers themselves must first obtain an environmental education before they can be expected to instruct their students. While limited courses offered by the Virginia Resources Use Educational Council are noteworthy, an urgent need exists for expansion and supplementation of these programs.

Non-Returnable Bottles and Cans: A bill should be introduced banning them from the market place of Virginia. The reduction of litter along our byways is as much an economic issue as an ecological one, for the Keep Virginia Beautiful Commission reports that the State presently pays eight cents for each bottle, can or cup it collects.

Mass Transportation: The cost and negative impact on our land of massive highway building programs dictates that the General Assembly and the Highway Department review its priorities to determine if we shouldn't revamp our approach to the transportation program in this decade.

The Chesapeake Bay: The bay is an asset for industry, fishing, recreation and tourism and is one of our most precious resources. A regional authority made up of all the governments along the bay must be established to map out a solid plan for its future. Virginia should take a leadership role in the creation of such an authority.

'Time To Reform Child Labor Law'

Senator Edward T. Cason III made the following remarks at the Home of Mrs. Richard Kiner, 432 Dolphin Lane, Princess Anne Plaza:

"It is time to reform our 1919 Child Labor Law. Many of our young people want jobs but are prevented from taking them. We have passed the era when children were exploited in factories. Now our young people want to shoulder the responsibility of employment. How can our young people 16 and 17 handle responsibility if we don't give them the opportunity. "Present law makes it difficult for young people under 18 to get employment. The jobs are available but employers don't want to bother with the red tape involved in hiring those under 18. The law should be revised so an employer won't be afraid to hire young people."

"One of the prime reasons young people become involved with drugs is that they have free time on their hands. Many who want to work cannot find employment because of the antiquated 1919 Child Labor Law. Landale Elementary in Norfolk has youth on juvenile in probation are drop-outs who could not find jobs. ## P.A. Woman's Club Super Star Actor's Guild Gives WOW Performance

Carrie Nation raised her hatchet and would sure enough have broken up a saloon if there'd been any around...Annie Oakley took out her six-gun and started firing away...Calamity Jane took a healthy swig from an old quart jug slung over her shoulder...Mae West tottered out on spindle five-inch heels, in tight tight black slinky gown and invited the folks to come up and see her sometime.

Ma Ferguson, handsome and regal, ruled the crowd with ladylike poise...Wallie Warfield Simpson, pearls and all, came on bragging about her man...Marjorie Colton whisked out the wax paper she invented...Sally Rand wowed them in Boa feathers and fan and skirt slit way up high...Grandma Moses told everyone it's never too late to start...the pioneer woman showed how she won the West.

The newspaper reporter moaned about all those club women publicity gals...the past president said HER term was the best...and the new president scorched her husband's shirt, answered 17 phone calls, took umpteen notes and proved that a club president's job is an ordeal to be avoided if at all humanly possible.

And who were those gals? And what was it all about? It was Woman and Her Thing, as given by the Princess Anne Woman's Club last week at its 46th birthday party and luncheon at Scott Memorial Church.

Eddie Hawthorne narrated the amusing skit and Marion Stansell directed the "Super Star Actor's Guild" and its fun performance.

Agnes Aldridge was at the piano as they sauntered in: Bess Marshall, the pioneer woman; Rosalie Delaney, Carrie Nation; Marion Stunsell, Marjorie Colton and Grandma Moses; Betty Howard, Annie Oakley; Emily Follory, Mae West; Mary Faust, Sally Rand; Rachael Robeson, Ma Ferguson; Elma Bunting, Calamity Jane; Amy Law, Wallis Warfield Simpson; Alice Godsey, newspaper reporter; Annie Miller, past president; Grace Duval, president.

Isabelle Holmes heartily thanked all the performers on behalf of the past presidents to whom the skit was dedicated.

Ma Ferguson and Sally Rand seem an unlikely twosome, but it's really Rachael Robeson and Mary Faust, friends and fellow club members.

"Why don'tcha come up and see me sometime?" says Emily (Mae West) Follory in the photo to the left

No Sex Discrimination

'She's My Right-Hand Man' Boss Says Of Mrs. Edwards

By Helen Crist

As a business woman, Rose Marie Edwards' career has been one progressive step after another on the road to success. She looks back now, from her position as secretary-treasurer and director of Central Wholesale Supply Corp. and reflects: "I was lucky-it seemed like the breaks were with me-I was in the right place at the right time."

And her boss of twelve years, E.L. Dominick says, "She's my right-hand man, and she should have just as much control as I have."

Getting ahead as she has in the business world, did she experience discrimination because of her sex?

"Never," Rose Marie says emphatically.

Understanding people is tremendously important, she believes. William and Mary Extension night courses in psychology and sociology helped her to relate well to both sexes in business association.

And she would like to discount a myth concerning working women. "It's absolutely untrue that there is greater absenteeism among women than men. This is something that men would like to believe."

Her own climb via business route has been steady and due, in part, to determination. "I've always been itchy to get ahead," Rose Marie says.

One of eight children of Mrs. John Buchanan Smith and the late Mr. Smith, she lived in South Norfolk. She had a great attachment for her grandparents and says, "I kept running away from home to live with them." Finally, her mother agreed to let her remain, and she was raised by her grandparents.

Oscar Smith was her high school; it was South Norfolk High School then. She graduated at 16...there were only 11 grades then.

When she was quite young she married Stephen V. Edwards, from whom she was divorced seven years later.

She has two children: Stephen, Jr., married to Christine Lambert of Norfolk, and they have two children, Stephanie, 10 and Jennifer, one-year-old. Her daughter, Elizabeth, married Robert W. Linville and they are the parents of Teresa Marie, 4.

When the children were young, Rose Marie realized she would have to support them herself. A Catholic, she says she's never felt she has the right to remarry. "I took a husband for better or worse and I always felt my main duty was to raise the children to the best of my ability."

She worked as a bookkeeper and later became manager of Car Parts at Master Auto Service Corporation. To further her education, she enrolled at Kee's (then Coastal) Business College.

Women's clubs have provided much personal satisfaction for her. For instance, through the Altrusa Club, of which she's past president, she was able to be of service to others.

Professionally, she felt that a knowledge of parliamentary law would be beneficial, so she joined the Norfolk Cavaliers' Pinch of oregano, salt and pepper (Other Italian seasoning if desired) 8 oz. spaghetti

Chop onions fine and brown in small amount of fat with meat and seasoning. Add tomato sauce and simmer 45 minutes. Cook spaghetti, and add, in desired quantity, to meat mixture. Serve with Parmesan cheese.

So she joined the Virginia Beach Toastmistress Club in 1966. She's one of its biggest boosters, she says, noting that Governor Linwood Holton and

"HE'S AN UNDERSTANDING BOSS," Rose Marie Edwards says of E.L. Dominick, Jr., president of Central Wholesale Supply Corporation, where Mrs. Edwards is secretary-treasurer.

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes will proclaim Oct. 24-30 International Toastmistress Club Week.

It wasn't easy for her in the beginning. "There I was," she recalls, right in the middle of a group that seemed much too professional for me. I didn't think I'd ever be able to keep up with them. But I had the wrong idea-I thought I'd be able to stand on my feet and deliver a great speech in two or three weeks."

And the big shock came when she gave her ice-breaker speech (the first a Toastmistress gives.)

"I thought I had done a pretty good job. Imagine my embarrassment when the evaluator told me it must have a pretty good speech but unfortunately they hadn't heard a word I said."

That could have discouraged someone with less determination that Rose Marie possesses.

But she didn't give a serious thought to quitting the club, because she had set out to achieve something and she had to win.

So she stuck it out and became president of the Beach club and chairman of Council a few years ago. As past president, she says she's still enjoying every minute of her association with Toastmistress and still learning. "It's really a self-improvement club and every new member has something to offer you no matter how long you've been involved."

Rose Marie occupies a spot now, in Personalities of the South 1971, where she was recognized for her past achievement and outstanding service to the community.

She lives at Lake View Shores, and when her grandchildren come to visit she always gets a request for a big pot of her special goulash which she loves to prepare for them.

Here's her recipe.
ROSE MARIE'S GOULASH

1 1/2 lbs. Ground round
2 medium onions
2 8oz. cans tomato sauce
Pinch of oregano, salt and pepper
(Other Italian seasoning if desired)
8 oz. spaghetti

Chop onions fine and brown in small amount of fat with meat and seasoning.

Add tomato sauce and simmer 45 minutes. Cook spaghetti, and add, in desired quantity, to meat mixture. Serve with Parmesan cheese.

13th Antique Showsale For P.A. Woman's Club

Princess Anne Woman's Club is hoping to make it lucky 13, when the club's 13th annual Antiques Showsale comes off October 28 through Oct. 31, at the Civic Center. Hours are 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday; Sunday, 1 p.m.-6 p.m.

Always eagerly anticipated, the show will feature 41 dealers from eastern states, with five participating for the first time this year.

For sale will be furniture, silver, brass, china, crystal, iron, pictures, jewelry, clocks, accessories and collectors' items.

The women of the club will act as hostesses, dressed in Colonial costumes. They'll be available to give information, answer questions or maybe even "antique sit" for the dealers.

And when the feet get tired and the lunch hour draws near, Angie's Kitchen will provide special food. There will be sandwiches, ham biscuits, barbecue and assorted desserts. And besides that, each day will feature a specialty. On Thursday, there will be vegetable soup (homemade, of course) and black eye peas; Friday, bean soup and crab soup; Saturday, Brunswick stew and vegetable soup.

The crab soup recipe comes from Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew. It's been so popular as a Friday special at the show the past two years, that it will be repeated this year.

Brickell Offers Alternatives To Crowded Schools

"This is the first year in a decade that additional classrooms weren't opened at the Beach," School Supt. E. E. Brickell, Jr. told the Cape Henry Woman's Club last week at its luncheon meeting at the Harbour Restaurant.

The lack of new classrooms was a direct result of the defeat of the school bond referendum in January, he said.

Speaking on "Virginia Beach Schools On the Move," Brickell said the public school system could be summed up in one word—"growth."

In September 1960, he noted that the pupil count was 19,616. In September 1971, there were 46,792 students in public schools. "It's leveling off a little bit now, but we've had troublesome growth this year."

He noted that Virginia Beach is a low tax city. "I gripe just as much as you do about taxes. But way down deep I know what a bargain I'm getting here. Real estate taxes in some cities are trebled that of the Beach."

Deploing the defeat of the bond referendum, he said that one of the prime considerations by law is the proper housing of school children, and it was of great concern to the School Board that the referendum was defeated.

And the lack of school facilities doesn't stop the children from moving to the Beach. "People say, 'Stop the building', but that's impossible."

So they're looking for alternatives.

He invited anyone with a suggestion to write to Dr. Roy A. Woods, Box 6038, Virginia Beach. Dr. Woods is a member of the School Board.

What are the alternatives?

1. "Well, we can do nothing. We can pack them in again like we're doing this year. But in 1972 the situation will be intolerable. It comes to the point in the classroom where the teacher stops teaching and it's a question of how many students she can control physically."

2. Another alternative is split shifts, but here Brickell said that this is shortchanging education. Such things as art, physical education, music would be eliminated. But this provides poor education he feels.

3. There could be double shifts, where two study bodies are in the same school simultaneously. "But what does this do to the family life?"

4. Year-round schools are a possibility. He noted that this was tried in 1963 and given up. There are now some schools in the country operating this way. "I don't say this will harm the educational process. With air-conditioning, a child can learn just as well in August as in April." But again, what does this do to the family life?

5. School boundaries can be redrawn. And Brickell said that this may have to be done next year. "But this always upsets a community."

Ultimately, the solution will lie in building more schools. It is expensive, he agreed, but any alternate plan would only be a stop-gap and sooner or later the school would be overrun.

Brickell was asked what the people could do now to help.

"Come to the School Board meetings and make your wishes known. Not one citizen has done this. If you want another referendum, come and ask for it."

If the School Board said to put it to a vote, it could be done in 30 days, he said. But even if the money were available, it would be impossible to build the schools by 1972.

Brickell said that the Beach Board is the finest he has worked with in the four school divisions with which he's been associated. "If something goes on that you don't like, it would be wrong to blame the School Board-blame me instead," he said.

May Farm Garden Club

At its October meeting, members of the May Farm Garden Club of Kingston discussed plans for its booth at the Pembroke Mall Annual Charity Bazaar to be held on October 21, 22, and 23, where the club will be selling Monkey Pod wooden accessories.

The program, presented by Wayne Jones of Herbert Harrell Florist, featured floral arrangements for holidays and parties throughout the year. He created various arrangements and demonstrated how these could be modified for formal and informal occasions. He also showed the interesting effect which can be achieved through the use of different containers, such as clay pots and silver candelabra.

During the meeting, members discussed the club's HANDS project, which is a continuing project involving the landscaping of part of King's Grant Presbyterian Church property. Horticulture and Landscape Design Chairman, Mrs. Robert A. Hardesty has entered designs in the competition being sponsored by the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach for the official council seal.

The club welcomed new members Mrs. Judy Judge, Mrs. Sylvia Perkins, Mrs. Jeannette Lee, Mrs. Paula Renager, Mrs. Eleanor Gore, and Mrs. Sarah Ashworth.

Is It Impossible For You To Say 'No' To A Request?

By Rev. Joyce Kramer

There is only one way to refuse a request honorably—with a clear and simple "No." To be unable or unwilling to say "no" leads to misunderstandings and problems.

A sense of obligation is not enough. If this is the only reason we do something it will likely lead to resentment and be ineffective. Whatever we do we should do with integrity, either because we want to or not at all.

Many people work for their clubs, churches or other organizations, yet end up complaining about it. If this be true of us, then we are using what we do for social acceptance, to solve a guilty conscience, to develop a reputation for being a do-gooder, or for some other selfish motives. Let us learn to say "no" to what we do not feel right and good about. Whatever we do, let us do with love, good will and joy.

I MAINTAIN MY INTEGRITY BY SAYING "NO" TO ANYTHING THAT I CANNOT DO WITH JOY, LOVE AND GOODWILL IN MY HEART.

Aviation Safety Awards At Oceana

A dual award ceremony was held at Naval Air Station Oceana, when the Atlantic Fleet Naval Air Force (NAVAIRLANT) and Attack Squadron 34 (VA-34) received awards for safety.

NAVAIRLANT won the Chief of Naval Operations (CNO) Readiness Through Safety Award for fiscal year 1971. Two Oceana squadrons VA-34 and VF-33, flew a total of 8,108 accident free flight hours in an operational environment, at shore and aboard aircraft carriers, to win the 1971 CNO Aviation Safety Awards. VA-34 received the safety award and the NAVAIRLANT "E" for efficiency during the awards ceremony. VF-33 received a similar award in ceremonies held earlier this year.

The first word in the vocabulary of Naval Aviation implementation; the latest word is safety. And in NAVAIRLANT, there has been no more fitting a tribute to this year's 60th Anniversary of Naval Aviation than the announcement that NAVAIRLANT had won the 1971 CNO Safety Award.

Naval Air Force Atlantic enjoyed the greatest reduction in major aircraft accidents for any fiscal period in the command's 25-year history. Additionally, NAVAIRLANT's air safety record was largely responsible for achieving an all-time Navywide aviation safety record.

The Force was among seven major commands including Marine forces and training units on the east and west coasts to compete for the Readiness Through Safety Award. Of Atlantic Fleet squadrons and air stations, 72 per cent were free of major air accidents. The five most outstanding units were also recently selected to receive the 1971 CNO Aviation Safety Award.

her first "road trip." "Demands of school prevent any out-of-state trips except on weekends, but I would like to participate in more exhibitions away from home." She made the Florida to Virginia round trip in the one day.

"I started hitting tennis balls when I was six," Chris reminisced. "I went through the 'I want to be a nurse' stage like other girls, but I decided that I really wanted to make tennis my career when I was thirteen."

A tennis career is no big game. It demands a lot of hard work. "During the winter I practice two hours every day after school. During weekends and holidays when I'm not playing in tournaments or exhibitions, I practice at least four hours. I try to play in as many matches as possible."

When not practicing with her father or brother, Chris plays often with Laura Fleming. A year younger, Laura is also from Fort Lauderdale, and is ranked second in the Sunshine State, right behind Chris. Laura's style of play is right out of the same mold as Chris.

"I used to play Chris a lot," Laura said. "She is the best I've ever played."

When asked who usually wins, Laura was quick to say, "Chris does." But just as quickly Chris interjected, "She beats me occasionally though."

Chris termed the feud between the two tennis factions, the USLTA and the WCT groups, "ridiculous." Her answer was honest and bravely spoken. If some of the older "pros" would only have the courage to speak up and pull the two groups together, tennis would sooner reach its place as a great spectator sport. Chris feels that her serve is her weakest area. Although she grew up on clay courts, she now prefers hard courts. "But the more I play on grass, the more I like it." Face it, Chris is good on any type of surface.

"I rate myself a disciplined player," Chris analyzed. She does not have the violent temper displays of a Billie Jean King. Laura noted that "Chris only loses her cool about once a year." She has been said to have the calm serenity of a Dresden doll. "The first time I met Billie Jean was in St. Petersburg on clay courts, and I beat her. I had beaten her friends and she was nervous. At Forest Hills, she was more calm and her longer experience paid off. Playing people like Billie Jean King helps me to analyze my game and learn more about my opponents. I also learned shots I never knew I had."

Chris would like to see bigger prize money for the women pros. "The women's prizes should equal the men's. Women's tennis is growing as a spectator sport, and women can draw the people to allow the bigger prizes." Chris is not a woman's liberationist, thank goodness. She still likes men to open doors for her and take her out on dates.

"It's harder for a boy my age to come up and beat the pros," Chris observed. "But there are a lot of junior girls that could beat the women pros I've beaten."

That is Chris Evert. A youthful woman, full of confidence but aware of her shortcomings, she knows where she is going.

Kempsville Downs
Favored Cox 28-6

Kempsville's second victory in six games came at the expense of a favored Cox team Friday night, when the Chiefs convincingly defeated the Falcons 28-6 before 6,000 Homecoming fans. The crowd was the largest ever to view a home football contest in the Kempsville High School stadium. Cox's record now stands at two wins in their six outings.

Kempsville exploded in the final quarter and put 21 more points on the scoreboard. Julius Hurdle scored from the 4 yard line, and Taylor booted the conversion to boost the Chief's lead to 14-6 with 9:28 left in the game. One minute later, Paschall tossed a 16 yard scoring pass to Don Hauck. Taylor added another conversion point, and Kempville zoomed out in front 21-6.

With thousands of Homecoming fans in the stands stomping wildly and with the momentum at its peak for the Chiefs, the next time Kempville got the ball Don Hauck scored from the 8 yard line. After Taylor's fourth successful point-after conversion kick, the Chiefs led and won 28-6.

Mike Mills runs back a punt as Cox defenders finally stop him on the 10 yard line. Cox defenders are Kevin Rothenbert (71), Greg Span (85), and Chuck Litz (60). Brian Catlin (61) comes in to block for Mills.

Randy Robinson carries for the Falcons. Todd Robbins (63) leads the blocking, but Kempville's Mike Young slices through to make the tackle.

A New Star Rises

By Jay Brumbley, Sports Editor
In most ways, Chris Evert is like most other sixteen year old high school girls. Vivacious, quick to smile, attractive, long straight hair, fond of minis and boots, and devoid of heavy makeup, Chris came to Tidewater Sunday to open the new Tidewater Tennis Center. What sets her apart from most high school juniors is her ability to play tennis.

Following the game, Kempville head coach Tracy Moon said that he felt his team could win if they stopped Randy Robinson. He felt that his team did just that, and assistant coach Barlow added that "the defense against the run was exceptional." The Homecoming win kept Kempville's record perfect for the occasion: the

Bayside Loses
To Maury 28-15

It was Bayside against George Woodhouse Friday night at Foreman Field as the Maury Commodores rolled over the Marlins 28-15. Woodhouse scored 28 of his team's 28 tallies and passed for the other two, moving Maury into a first place tie with First Colonial for the Eastern District lead. For the season, Maury now has a 4-0 record, and Bayside is even at 3-3.

P.A. Wins First Edging Kellam On Field Goal, 16-13

Princess Anne finally broke into the win column with a narrow three point win over scrappy, determined, cross-town rival, Kellam, 16-13. Only a few days earlier, Kellam Coach John Cooke rated the Cavaliers as "the best 0-5 team in the State." Friday night's contest was billed as a midseason game that could mark the turning point for both teams. Allard, a 6'11" 227 pound senior tackle, won the game with only the second field goal kicked by an area team this season. Mike Casey picked off a Kellam pass with only 25 seconds left in the game to insure Cavalier fans that their Homecoming celebration would be a success. after kick failed. Eight minutes later, Allard's 32 yard field goal gave Princess Anne the game, 16-13. Kellam picked up 67 net yards offensively. Jackson and Delullo led the ground attack with 64 yards net. Princess Anne drew first blood in the tightly-contested battle. Mike Ange tossed a touchdown aerial 10 yards to end Tommy Butts, and after Allard's point-after kick, the Cavaliers led 7-0. Kellam bounced right back. Mike Delullo snared an off-target Cavalier pass and ran it back 70 yards for the score. David Marquette booted the extra point, and the first quarter ended deadlocked at 7-7. Tate had an interception each, and Tim Gorman and Steve Boggs each recovered a fumble. Ken Ahles and Joe Roenker combined for 115 of their team's 130 offensive yards gained. Ange got the other 15, completing 3 of 9 passes, one going for a touchdown. For the defense, Tommy Butts and Mike Casey picked off passes. The Princess Anne defense stiffened to stop Kellam point, and the first quarter ended deadlocked at 7-7.

Riggs Loses Out In Road Battle

Private Citizen R.L. Riggs lost his bout with City Government Monday on the third round but he fought the battle well.

It was the third consecutive Monday Riggs had appeared before council to seek construction of a "paper" street to his home in Shadowlawn, on the basis that other streets in the area had been paved by the city at no expense to property owners.

Director of Community Services W.W. Fleming Jr. said he could find no written records concerning payment of the streets Riggs referred to.

"What do you mean by the wording 'written records'?" Councilman Reid Ervin questioned.

"To be perfectly blunt," Fleming answered, "I think the roads were probably improved as personal favors prior to the merger."

The city in recent years has pretty much adhered to an unwritten policy that owners of such isolated lots share the cost of road improvements with the city on a 50-50 basis. Riggs told council this arrangement was totally unacceptable to him.

"That policy is a tool used by this council to do what it wants to do," he said. Ervin asked him to explain that statement. "A policy is something we use but can deviate from," Riggs said. "It is not a law which we cannot deviate from."

Councilman Curtis Payne of Princess Anne commented that property owners in his borough had similar problems and had been told they would have to pay 50 per cent of the cost. "I certainly couldn't favor your request when people in my borough were turned down," he said.

"I can't help what happens in other boroughs," Riggs said. "I am only concerned about this particular situation."

Councilman George Ferrell pointed out "You may be interested only in what happens in Shadowlawn, but we represent the entire City of Virginia Beach."

Ervin moved that the city officially establish a policy of 50-50 cost sharing in such situations, as recommended by City Manager Roger Scott, but too many questions were left unanswered for council to follow through on the motion.

Payne moved, and Ervin seconded, that Riggs request be denied, which it was. Pungo's Floyd Waterfield abstained on the basis that he was still confused about many of the issues involved.

Little Neck-Lynnhaven Plan Modified, Gets Approval

The controversial Little Neck-Lynnhaven Development Plan cleared City Council Monday but it took certain modifications by the Planning Department and two votes to do it.

The plan actually came to council with the modifications intact on the three more controversial points.

Old Donation Road, which has been strongly opposed by Little Neck residents, was deleted from this voting; deferred until a report on its need comes in from the State Highway Department.

W.W. Fleming, director of community services for the city, told council in informal session that the road is, indeed, needed.

He said that Shore Drive is already over the Wilbur Smith report's 1960 estimate by 1,000 cars per day and Virginia Beach Boulevard exceeds its 1980 estimate by 100 cars per day.

"And that doesn't include the toll road," he said.

The road, however, was deferred until a later date.

The Magic Hollow zoning, which would have allowed additional housing in the Navy's Zone Three, the now-notorious sound area that is potentially dangerous as well as uncomfortable because of jet traffic from Oceana Naval Air Station, was dropped to commercial, industrial and office buildings.

The commercial zoning at the entrance to Chesapeake Colony was left as it stands because the Planning Department felt it was the best use of the property.

Wayne McLeskey, owner of the site, intends to build two large commercial stores there, much to the chagrin of residents of Chesapeake.

The residents do not oppose the store as such, Mrs. Walter Royal told council, but they do object to the depth of the site which would put commercial structures into the depths of the Colony, separated only by a 30 foot canal. She presented the copy of a petition opposing McLeskey's plan, signed by 284 names, or 84 per cent of the Colony's residents.

"We do not object to the strip zoning on the boulevard," she told council, "but this entire plot goes back into Chesapeake Colony with only a 30-foot canal separating this commercial site from $50,000, $60,000, even $80,000 homes."

Lynnhaven Council pointed out that the plan is merely a guide but, unfortunately, is used oftentimes as a policy, even though public hearings must be held on any application like McLeskey's regardless of the plan. He moved that the plan be accepted as prepared by the Planning Department.

Councilman Murray Malbon asked that the motion be amended to exclude the commercial zoning at Chesapeake, that it remain multi-family for apartments, to which the residents had no objections.

Ervin amended the motion but it was defeated 6-2, with only he and Malbon favoring it (Princess Anne Councilman Curtis Payne had left for a business trip). He then introduced the original motion, favoring the Planning Department's plan, and it passed 9-1, with Malbon dissenting. "I believe you have to listen to the wishes of the people," Malbon said.

Council also:

Coach Moon pointed to Catlin and Hurdle as offensive standouts and to Rick Scarper, a defensive back, and linebacker Harold Costner as the defensive standouts. Moon felt that the entire offensive line did their best blocking of the season, praising guards Mike Young and Sandy Rhoads, center Harold King, tackles Mike Conaway and Eliasha Harris, end Keith Smith, and split end Rudy Mackey.

For the first time this year, Moon junked the platooning system and sent Hurdle, Catlin, Harris, Paschall, Smith, and Hauck both ways. Coach Moon felt that this was also a key to their victory and plans to continue using these players both ways in the remaining four games.

Mosquito Aid Asked

Pungo Councilman Floyd Waterfield told fellow councilmen Monday that some administrative policy should be set up so that areas can get help in mosquito control in an emergency.

He suggested that perhaps aerial spraying would ease the present situation, caused by excessive rain from hurricane Ginger.

"Are you asking that we set up a policy of aerial spraying for mosquitoes?" he was asked. "No, I'm only saying that we should have some way administratively of dealing with the problem when it arises. We've had bad problems in Pungo and have not been able to get help for it," Waterfield answered.

City Manager Roger Scott was directed to see what policy might be established.

Record Voter Registration Set For Election

Camp Sites Okay

City Council overruled the Planning Commission Monday, in an 8-2 vote, to approve 400 new camping sites adjoining General Booth Boulevard.

The application of Virginia Beach Campground, Inc. had been denied by the commission because of opposition and concern that the sites might be detrimental to the "character" of the boulevard.

The plan, which is an expansion of the existing KOA Campgrounds, involves some 52 acres bounded by the boulevard and Prosperity Road with an entrance from the boulevard.

Sam Houston, representing the Council of Civic Organizations, asked council to eliminate the boulevard entrance and place it on Prosperity Road where KOA already has another entrance and place it on Prosperity Road where KOA already has another entrance to the existing site. He called General Booth the future "Pennsylvania Avenue of Virginia Beach" and said that because of increasing traffic between the resort area and the Courthouse, plus traffic in and out of Red Wing Park, the municipal golf course and other places near the site, the entrance would cause a back-up of traffic on the boulevard.

William Doyle of Virginia Beach Campground said that entrance on Prosperity could not be considered because it would split the property and would not permit him to be competitive with the nearby Holiday Inn Travel Park, further down the road.

He also told council that his firm would be responsible for the building of left turn stacking lanes if traffic demanded them. He pointed out that plans call for a berm planted with shrubs to shield the camping site from the boulevard.

Council agreed that more camp grounds of KOA's calibre is needed in the city and approved the application. Dissenting votes were cast by Councilman Robert Catlin and Vice Mayor Earl Tebault.

Federal Grant To Aid Drug Problem

Senator Edward T. Catton III announced Wednesday that federal funds have been made available to Virginia Beach to assist local efforts in combating the city's drug problem.

In a prepared statement, Catton said:

I have just received notification from the Council on Criminal Justice that a grant of $34,232 has been made to help establish a Drug Treatment and Consultation Team in Virginia Beach. This grant is being made from federal funds available under the Law Enforcement Assistance Act.

The Virginia Beach City Council appropriated $12,474 on August 2, 1971, to support this program. A like amount has been appropriated from state funds under the Virginia Mental Health Retardation Services Act.

In Virginia Beach we have seen a dramatic increase in our drug problem over the last several years, demonstrated by a rapid increase in criminal arrests and convictions for drug offenses, particularly among youthful offenders. This program will offer a professional staff, working under the supervision of the Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center, and will provide counselling, screening and referral services for young people confronted with problems of drug abuse.

This program will be the first publicly sponsored drug rehabilitation program in Virginia Beach. I have been communicating with representatives of the Council on Criminal Justice and the Virginia Beach Drug Focus Committee concerning this program, and I am convinced that this is the most significant attack on the drug problem launched in this community to date.

Voter registration is at an all time high in Virginia Beach for next Tuesday's General Election, with a large number of resort city residents casting ballots for the first time in Senatorial District shared with the cities of Norfolk and Chesapeake.

Mrs. Anna H. Cotton, General Registrar, reports a total of 58,585 qualified voters have been placed on registration books for next Tuesday's balloting, the highest level of voter registration ever recorded in the city.

This represents an increase of 1,330 registered voters during the period of August 14 and October 2, the final qualification period for the General Election.

Case Of The Missing Chairs

Take a look in your garage, attic or storage room. If you see stacks of turquoise and orange molded fiberglass chairs, there, you probably forgot that the Virginia Beach Little Theatre asked you to store them when the old Courtyard Playhouse was closed. And the Little Theatre has forgotten you have them.

It has been two years since the Playhouse closed and the group "fanned out" its furnishings and belongings to interested persons with a spare nook or two.

But now the Little Theatre is preparing its opening of the new theatre building on 4th Street and Barborton Drive late in November and is attempting to assemble its belongings.

Only one problem: they've forgotten where some of the items are. Of primary concern are about 35 of the colorful easy-stack chairs, each of which cost the group $20 and would now tax the finances to replace.

"I know the chairs are stuck away in someone's garage or somewhere," said Bill Britton, director of the opening show, "The King and I," and they're waiting for the theatre to call and reclaim them. But we can't call them because we don't remember where they are!"

Persons with information regarding the missing chairs are urged to contact either Britton at 428-8377 or President Jim English at 428-5521.

Halloween's Still Sunday!

Ignore those rumors you might have heard! Halloween will be observed Sunday, October 31, just as it has always been. And you've got City Council's word for it.

Mayor Donald Rhodes announced at Tuesday afternoon's meeting that Halloween in Virginia Beach would be when it's supposed to be—Sunday. Young church groups are, in fact, planning UNICEF solicitation for regular Sunday night gatherings, he said.

And another reminder to trick-or-treaters: remember that City ordinances now prohibit anyone 12 years or over to participate and all "ghosts and goblins" must call a halt to the fun by 9 p.m.

Parents or other older responsible persons wishing to accompany the youngsters need not worry. They are allowed to go along, but don't carry a bag and ask for trick-or-treat goodies!

Art Works On Display

The Virginia Beach Arts Center will sponsor the visit of a Virginia Museum Artmobile in Virginia Beach today through November 3. The mobile gallery, with an exhibition entitled "Treasures in Miniature," will be located near the City Hall Building at Princess Anne.

"Treasures in Miniature" features thirty small antique boxes recently acquired by the Virginia Museum in Richmond through the request of Mrs. Ailsa Mellon Bruce, whose collection of European antiques was one of the finest in the United States. The boxes, carefully crafted of fine metals, rare gems, brilliant enamels and a variety of other precious materials, reflect the elegance of upper-class European society in the 18th and 19th centuries. Though devised as objects of apparel for carrying personal necessities (snuff, for example), the boxes are incomparably finished works of art, more precious than practical, and are among the most outstanding examples of the intricate craftsmanship practiced by European goldsmiths and jewelers.

The artmobile will be open to the public from 3 - 5 p.m. each weekday, 7-9 p.m. on Thursday, October 28 and Tuesday, November 2, and 9 a.m. - noon on Monday, November 1. Remaining periods are assigned for school visitation. The exhibition will be closed during the weekend.

For further information, contact Ed Jones, Arts Center director, at 428-9294.

Demo Club Supports Its Candidates

The Virginia Beach Democratic Club at its October meeting Tuesday unanimously passed a resolution supporting the candidacies of George Kostel for the office of Lt. Governor, Richard Guy for State Senate, Bev Middleton, Owen Pickett and Glenn McClannan for the House of Delegates.

The officers, directors and membership of the Virginia Beach Democratic Club heartily encourage and recommend that the membership of the Virginia Beach Democratic Committee recognize and honor their obligation as Democrats to support those candidates now seeking public office as announced Democrats.

The monthly meeting of the Virginia Beach Democratic Club was presided over by its President, Nathaniel J. Cohen.

Robert Givens of the Pembroke Merchants Association makes a few comments prior to giving the Bayside Band Parents Association a $25 check for having the most original booth in the 5th Annual Charity Bazaar held in Pembroke Mall last weekend. Accepting the check for the Association are Betty Merten, president and Kay Paulsen.

Givens also presents a $25 check to Mrs. G.B. Hollingsworth, vice president of Bayside Junior Woman's Club, for having the best decorated booth. Looking on is Mrs. B.C. Roberson.

Beach Campus Offers Unique Police Course

The Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College is offering the first degree course in Police Science in the Tidewater area.

The program is designed to offer an Associate in Applied Science Degree upon completion of a two-year study course, or a Bachelor of Science Degree in Police Science on graduation from a four-year study program.

The College is also offering a one-year study program in Law Enforcement for which a certificate is awarded upon completion, and which may also be used as a prerequisite for those who desire to advance into the field of Police Science.

Subjects included in the Police Science course are not only directly connected with the mechanics of law enforcement but also academic subjects such as biology, sociology, psychology, government, mathematics and economics.

At the present time 30 residents of Virginia Beach are enrolled in these specialized courses. These include active members of the police department, personnel attached to NAS Oceana and civilians.

Approximately half of these are grouped in "pre-service classes" consisting of individuals who are preparing for full-time employment in the law enforcement field. Prior to their acceptance "pre-service" students must present certification that they have met existing standards for employment with a law enforcement agency.

Those acting as instructors in the program include City Assistant Commonwealth's Attorneys Paul Sciortino and A. Andrew Ego, Jr.

Included in the "Treasures in miniature" exhibition are period furniture, paintings, and prints from the Museum's Bruce Collection.

The artmobile will be open to the public from 3 - 5 p.m. each weekday, 7-9 p.m. on Thursday, October 28 and Tuesday, November 2, and 9 a.m. - noon on Monday, November 1. Remaining periods are assigned for school visitation. The exhibition will be closed during the weekend.

JOE CANADA SENATE

Authorized by Joe Canada For Senate Committee, Arthur Liles, Treasurer.

Ken Hitchler, portable hair dryer and beauty case in hand, enters the Magic Mirror Mobile Salon for beauty service to convalescents and shut-ins.

Something Special For Shut-Ins

Scarcely anything undermines a woman's morale more than a hairdo that's dreadful, or half that hasn't, for whatever reason, been shampooed and set in a long time.

It could be that there's been an operation and a hospital convalescent period, when washing the hair was out of the question.

It could be perhaps that a woman is bed-ridden and unable to care for her hair herself.

This occurred the other day to Elmer Howard, owner of the Magic Mirror Beauty Salon on 24th Street, when one of his customers, convalescing in the hospital, called and asked if someone from his shop could come out and give her a good old wash and set.

Why not? Howard thought. So he sent his new assistant, Kenneth Hitchler, complete with portable hairdryer, case full of curlers, shampoo, the works-

And so popular was the idea, now has instigated the Magic

Dr. and Mrs. Bosley commend the Bos'n's Mate (right) and the Bos'n.

Yachters Defy Nor'easter To Launch New Season

The Virginia Beach Yacht Club has found consistency in one thing since it organized last year: rain. It has rained for the cruises. It has rained for the socials. It has rained for the Sea Explorer functions.

And it rained buckets Saturday night when the yachters held their biggest event of the year... election of officers, Change of Watch, presentation of the Sea Explorer's charter and the Commodore's Ball.

But despite howling Nor'easter winds that literally pushed the rain under the doors into the foyer of the Capes Beach and Cabana Club, the group carried on, as they always do in the face of inclement weather, for the most successful function to date.

This real highlight of the evening came when Bill Stewart, executive director of the Tidewater Boy Scouts of America, presented a charter to the Sea Explorer Scouts the Yacht Club organized and is sponsoring. Accepting the charter were Bos'n (that's nautical for president) Barry Wicker and Bos'n's Mate (vice president) Mike Coke.

The boys, striking in their full dress uniforms, saluted the scouting official and outgoing Commodore Dr. Robert Bosley, their strongest benefactor in the early days of struggling organization.

"With this charter," Stewart said, "I want to remind all of you that this ship belongs to the entire club, not just the one or two members who have been working so hard with it. It belongs to the Virginia Beach Yacht Club as a whole group."

The group which is open to boys between the ages of 14 and 18, is now officially Ship No. 497.

"In these days a lot of people complain about our teenagers," Dr. Bosley said. "They call them longhairs and hippies. This is one small way of showing what our teenagers really are. These boys maintain their own outfit, they hold their own elections, they are responsible young people."

Dr. Bosley also told the group that the boys would not be coming to the sponsoring club "with their hands out" for finances. "They are going to sell a product to pay their own way," he said and introduced yachtsman Earl Dunham who will assist the scouts in this project.

Dunham explained that the scouts would sell a "product everyone needs," Charmin tissue. He said it would come in a case of 96 rolls for $15 and "if you buy two cases you can even squeeze the Charmin!" Dunham said he hoped that offices and business would buy supplies from the Sea Explorers to support the ship.

The newly elected officers are John McClintock, commodore; Jack Grimsley, vice commodore; George Disbrow, rear commodore; and John Ray Potter, secretary-treasurer. Three members-at-large have another year to serve in a 2-year term: Arthur Conrad, Bill McCoy and Larry Peverall, all past commodores of the former Bay Harbour Club. The Bay Harbour group joined with the Capes yachters to form the present Virginia Beach Yacht Club.

Campaign Continues As Election Approaches

The three 8th District Senatorial candidates shared the speakers platform during last Thursday's regular meeting of the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors.

Senator Edward T. (Ned) Caton, III, Delegate Richard D. Guy and Joe Canada took the opportunity to highlight their qualifications for election to the State Legislature as election day of November 2nd drew near.

Caton, seeking re-election as an independent candidate, centered his comments on a close review of his record in the State Senate.

Caton said "I welcome close scrutiny of my record. I welcome the opportunity to look at the things 'Ned' Caton has accomplished."

In reviewing his record Caton cited sponsoring legislation which "resulted in the Owls Creek Municipal Boat Ramp, opening of a Camp Pendleton for surfing, creation of a 4th Judgeship in Virginia Beach, and the elimination of a primary for the election of City Councilmen." He added "all this has been accomplished during one term in the Senate."

Guy, campaigning for a seat in the State Senate on a Democratic ticket, directed his comments at a challenge of Caton's deserving re-election.

He based his attack on Caton's qualification for the State Legislature on an implied lack of service to the people of Virginia as a member of the State's Pari-mutuel Betting Study Commission.

Guy said that of the five public hearings the Commission conducted throughout Virginia to obtain public opinion on permitting horse racing in the state, Caton only attended last month's session held at the Lake Wright Motel, and thus "he let the people of Virginia Beach down."

Guy called for Caton "to resign from the horse racing Commission," adding "he could step aside and make room for someone on that Commission who is willing to do the work he should be doing."

Guy cited the "big issue of this campaign" centers around the dominance of the Democratic party in the resort city and warned of the danger of "going to Richmond with a Senator who cannot service the people of Virginia Beach" who had been elected with party affiliation other than Democratic.

Canada, backed by resort city Republicans, opened his remarks by saying "I'm running for the State Senator in Virginia Beach and there is no machine behind me."

He charged his opponents "with doing a great deal to tear our city apart" through their actions in the State Legislature.

Canada said if elected he proposed to "keep my office open every Saturday to work with the people of Virginia Beach to serve their needs."

Judy Andrassy, Board of Realtors program chairman, joined Senatorial candidates (l. to r.) Guy, Caton, and Canada following their address to realtors.

Our City Needs Him

Virginia Beach has three excellent candidates competing next Tuesday for the city's one seat in the State Senate; incumbent Senator Edward T. Caton, III running as an independent; Democrat Richard Guy; and Republican Joseph Canada.

This city is coming of age. It is gearing itself for its future responsibility as Virginia's largest, and most influential, city. This is evident in the calibre of men who have stepped forward to accept leadership, the three uncontested candidates for the House of Delegates, incumbent B.R. Middleton, Owen Pickett and Glenn McClanahan, as well as the senatorial candidates.

Mr. Guy, who vacated his House seat to run for the Senate, has a political record open to very little criticism. He is a staunch Democrat, an advocate of pari-mutuel betting and other innovations he believes beneficial to this city. He has served his city well and has worked in the House for its progress.

Mr. Canada brings to Virginia Beach the long-awaited choice between two parties, the opportunity to grow and expand politically. He is a novice in politics but has gained much support as a crusader for the "little people."

They are good men. Virginia Beach needs them, and people like them, in a position of leadership.

Senator Caton, however, is best qualified, more experienced, for the senatorial seat and this newspaper endorses his re-election to the post he has held since 1967.

He was a councilman in the old city of Virginia Beach; he knew it as a second class city and an infant resort. He led it through the merger with Princess Anne County and drafted its City Charter. And he was in the House of Delegates before his successful campaign for the Senatorial seat held by William P. Kellam.

Senator Caton has seniority. He's on a number of influential committees and study commissions, many of which have a strong bearing on the future of Virginia Beach. The Pari-Mutuel Study, for instance (he's a conservative; he believes the voters should decide), and the Bendheim Study, which may funnel more State revenue into localities.

In the last General Assembly Senator Caton supported many important issues. He fought for a community college in Virginia Beach. He achieved only enough funds for a temporary campus but with this appropriation, and his efforts to obtain a site at State-owned Camp Pendleton, the city's new Tidewater Community College Campus is now serving nearly eight hundred students.

He supported, in strong debate with Norfolk Senators Edward Breeden and Henry Howell, the proposed revision to the State Constitution allowing the State Corporation Commission jurisdiction over municipally-owned utilities, control over rates, especially those imposed on political subdivisions outside the owning municipality's territorial district.

Senator Caton supported this revision because it would have given this city some recourse in seeking lower rates on water purchased from Norfolk. The present rates, nearly double that of Norfolk's, burden Virginia Beach residents and are detrimental in attracting new industry.

The Constitution is now silent on this provision. But, because of Senator Caton's efforts, the wording has left an open door to future legislation to ease the situation. And much can still be done.

There are many, many contributions he has made to this city, as its councilman, as its delegate, as its senator. He should return to the Senate to complete those things he has started for the betterment of Virginia Beach.

Mr. Guy will hopefully serve the city again in the House of Delegates. Mr. Canada is destined for a political future and should perhaps consider starting at City Council level. But Senator Caton is the man for the State Senate. Our city needs him.

There's One Voice

Residents in Pungo, Blackwater and most of Princess Anne Boroughs are sporting bumper stickers...Canada, Guy or Caton, declaring their political or personal preference. But when they go to the polls Tuesday these names won't even appear on the ballot. They will face, instead, the choice between two Chesapeake candidates for the State Senate. These Virginia Beach citizens are in the 14th Senatorial District with Chesapeake.

In most of the Bayside Borough situation will be worse. Baysiders will not even see the names of Virginia Beach candidates for the House of Delegates...Middleton, Pickett and McClanahan. They are in the 39th Legislative District with Norfolk; their ballots will list thirteen candidates, all in Norfolk.

And much of this same area, along with portions of Kempsville, is combined into Norfolk's Seventh Senatorial District. They must cast votes for an entirely different group of senatorial candidates. The Kempsville residents in this district however will have one advantage. They can vote for the Virginia Beach candidates for the House.

Confusing? Of course it's confusing. But that's the situation the Federal Courts have imposed on nearly eighty-five thousand Virginia Beach residents in the redistricting. And Tuesday's election will drive home to all of us this inexcusable discrimination this total disregard of every American's Constitutional right to equal representation.

It is sad to see residents in a split district displaying political sickness for a candidate they cannot support at the polls. It is even sadder to realize that many of these people will not comprehend, until they face a ballot of strange names, that they are not among Virginia Beach's voting force, either for the Senate, or the House or both. And it is pathetic when these unknown candidates ignore invitations from civic leagues to speak to the Beach voters.

This redistricting — this injustice — was

Remember UNICEF

During this 26th year of UNICEF's existence, it is time to think about what the United Nations Children's Fund means to all of us. It is good to know that in a world where too much hatred and bigotry exist, there is one organization through which all the nations of the world show their concern for the future of the children of the developing countries. Through UNICEF, all differences of thought and ideology are forgotten in a united effort to help children — two million children — many of whom live in countries where daily survival is a struggle of such magnitude that any thought beyond that is virtually impossible.

Today, UNICEF's income (exclusive of special emergency funds) is $50 million a year — the same amount of money the world spends on two hours of war. UNICEF has promised the world's children that by 1975 it will spend $100 million annually on their behalf. On this Silver Anniversary of the United Nations Children's Fund, you can help fulfill that promise.

Halloween Safety Tips

What will it be this Halloween in Virginia Beach, trick-or-treat — or tragedy?

If you're driving your car Oct. 31, the answer can be largely in your hands, says the Insurance Information Institute.

Halloween is a popular holiday in the Old Dominion State. Nearly all of the state's approximately 823,000 elementary school children will become trick-or-treaters for a few hours, romping through their neighborhoods with little on their minds but the next treat.

The Institute reminds that while it can be a joyous time for kids, it is also potentially dangerous for them.

"At no one time in the year are more children wandering through the streets at night garbed in vision-impairing masks and dark, difficult-to-see costumes," said the Institute.

"We urge all motorists to think fast and drive slowly — and carefully on all Halloweens. The kids are bent on fun. Don't put a morgue in their merry-making."

The Institute offered the following safety tips to motorists and parents of trick-or-treaters:

To motorists — Drive slowly and warily. Watch for children darting out between parked cars. Tap your horn occasionally on dimly-lighted residential streets. Be extremely cautious while backing out of driveways.

To parents — Escort your little ones. If your children are going as a group, give the oldest a flashlight. Dress the kids in bright clothing or stick reflective tape on their costumes or trick-or-treat bags. Use scissors to widen the eye holes in their masks. Urge them to look up and down before crossing.

Adults who do their own merrymaking at Halloween parties are reminded that in a drinking and driving don't mix.

"Remember," the Institute said, "that Halloween is a fun time for children. In all the excitement, they're not likely to be thinking of safety. You — the motorist — have to do their thinking for them."

"If children's Halloween antics remind you that you were a kid once yourself, drive in a manner to ensure that some child will grow old enough to say the same."

WOW Of A Success

To the Editor:

The third annual WOW Flea Market which was held on October 18th, was a 'wow' of a success. At the latest tabulation we will realize approximately four thousand dollars, ($4,000) which this year — will go for the purchase of books for the College Library.

Although some members of the Women of Wesleyan spent many long hours in preparation for this affair, our goal could not have been reached without the wholehearted cooperation of so many wonderful people — like you — in the Tidewater area who gave us much needed assistance at just the right moment. We could not have done it without you.

From the Flea Market Committee of the Women of Wesleyan, please accept our heartfelt gratitude.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Walter J. Wilkins

No-Fault 'Is Crazy'

To the Editor:

The talk about no-fault automobile insurance is crazy. The driver should be required to have liability insurance. The owner may have insurance for his own car to reimburse himself or his mortgagee.

No-fault insurance would not protect the pedestrian or loss of wages or the city if a light pole is hit. However, all premiums are too high. The big bosses should take a reduction in salary.

Also, auto taxes should be collected by a higher license charge-monthly payments if necessary.

Citizen's Corner

To those people in Bayside, Davis, Corner, Aragona (west of Independence Boulevard), Arrowhead, Kempsville (south of the Toll Road), Witchduck Precincts A.B and C, and Larkspur (west of Independence Boulevard) proposed, we ask support of the only candidates who can appreciate Virginia Beach's problems, the only ones who will go to Richmond with your interest at heart.

Sam Houston Jr. is a Virginia Beach man, the only one listed on the Seventh District Ballot. He is challenging a Norfolk political powerhouse-Babalas. McNamara, Walker—and what he lacks in experience he makes up for in determination, a sincere desire to speak up for Virginia Beach.

Support Houston next Tuesday. Make Virginia Beach's voice heard. Let Norfolk know, through Houston's final tally, that Virginia Beach, though divided by Federal decree, will not succumb to these disadvantages.

(This is one in a series of 23 portraits of leading Virginia Beach citizens prepared by McIntosh Studio for special exhibits throughout the area. "Citizens Corner" each week will feature one of these portraits.)

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell

For those of you who are confused about the new Nixon policy of love the Red Chinese, don't feel bad. A lot of people are confused. Let me tell you a story that might help you see the light.

This information will be hard to believe so let me say that it is from the Congressional Record and was put into the record by Congressman John Schmitz. While all Congressmen are not noted for sticking to the truth it is doubtful if they would place anything in the Congressional Record that was not very close to the facts.

Several weeks ago, just after President Nixon announced his new love Red China policy, former Foreign Service officers John Paton Davies and John Stewart Service appeared before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations to testify before a closed session. After the session, their comments indicated they were delighted with the Nixon change toward Mao Tse-tung.

These two had good cause to be happy, as far back as the 1940's these State Department officials have been beating the drums for Red China. They were among a group of "diplomats" who served as "advisors" to General Joe Stilwell in China during 1942. They attempted to alter official U.S. policy away from the support of the Nationalist Chinese and towards the support of Communist Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai.

Chou En-lai outlined to Mr. Davies (who by the way was born in Kiating, China, in 1908) the Communist plan for control of China. With the help of others, such as Mr. Davies and Mr. Service, this plan was highly successful.

This pair pressed hard that the only hope for democracy in China was for a coalition government between the Nationalists and the Communists. They advocated sending U.S. military equipment to the Chinese Communists.

In their reports back to the State Department they pictured our Nationalists friends as being corrupt, ridden with political and military abuse and lacking in popular support. While doing this they built up the Communists as being straightforward, frank, incorruptible and practical. Davies even noted that Mao was "moving in the direction of more moderate internal and economic policies." This is the same Mao who liquidated between 20 and 40 MILLION Chinese after he came to power.

These pro Communist activities by Mr. Davies and Mr. Service prompted President Roosevelt's Special Envoy to China, Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley to recall them back to the United States.

What happened to this pair? Ambassador Hurley later testified: "WHEN I RELIEVED THE GENTLEMEN IN CHUNGKING, THEY WERE BROUGHT BACK TO WASHINGTON AND PLACED IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT IN POSITIONS WHERE THEY BECAME MY SUPERVISORS, AND THERE THEY ATTEMPTED TO HAMSTRING EVERYTHING THAT I DID IN CARRYING INTO EFFECT MY DIRECTIVE — FROM THE PRESIDENT."

Mr. Service was to go on to admit passing classified documents to a man identified as a Soviet agent. He was given a clean bill of loyalty by the State Department only to be removed from government by a loyalty review board of the Civil Service Commission. Due to a technicality unearthed by the Supreme Court he was reinstated in 1957 and stayed on the payroll until 1960.

Mr. Davies was fired by Secretary of State Dulles after he perjured himself before a Senate committee and an independent security board voted 5 to 0 for his dismissal as a security risk. Does this background help you to understand why the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations asked these two experts to appear before it?

Still in the dark? Well, it seems that in the last days of the Johnson Administration, when no one was looking, Atty. Gen. Nicholas de Katzenbach reinstated Mr. Davies to the unalienable right to government employment.

Mr. Davies' name is now being mentioned by some in the media, including the New York Times, as the ideal first Ambassador to Red China once President Nixon opens formal relations with that Communist country.

Just thinking about how our Washington "Flock" protects our interests scares the day lights out of me. The next thing you know they will be asking Fidel Castro to be our next Ambassador to Red Castro. It boggles the mind but then Washington is a very strange place these days.

Minimal Response Came In Last Week

A holiday will do it every time...no one wants to take the effort to respond to a survey when they have a long week-end.

At least we think that's what happened last week. With Veterans Day set this year on the last Monday in October it gave most people three cherished days away from routine. And very few took the time to answer our question.

The question was: "Should the City of Virginia Beach develop its own convention center complex, regardless of the closeness of Scope?"

The response we did receive—and we'll be the first to admit it really isn't representative—was not in favor of such a development. One or two made comments:

"I can't understand why anyone from our area would advocate turning it into another Northern Virginia....God forbid!"

Home Crafts Make For Fine Show

"It was fantastic," was the remark heard at the Civic Center Saturday at the third annual Home Craft Show.

This year it was sponsored, for the first time, by the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club. Mrs. W.E. Bartee, Jr., chairman and Mrs. Sam Scott co-chairman agreed that, "Honestly, we don't want to brag but we did hear all those wonderful compliments about the show."

Financially it was a winner. The club hasn't all the count in, but the total profit for them should go over $3,000. There was $7,046.20 in sales for the exhibitors.

The major portion of the Junior Women's profits will go to Camp Civitan and Hope Haven Children's Home. But there are many other areas in which the girls contribute too.

One big advantage of the event versus the Follies which the Juniors usually sponsor, is that it allowed more of the members to participate. "This created much more enthusiasm from everybody," Pat Bartee said.

Mrs. Josephine Miles, Civil Service retiree, creates things to keep busy, and in the process turns out some beautiful items such as these in the photo to the right.

There was Brunswick stew and Smithfield ham biscuits for appetites made hearty after circulating about the Dome. Here Juniors Mrs. Michael Katsias, Mrs. William Gill and Mrs. William Davis make as pretty waitresses as you'll ever find.

Have You Ever Tried To Go On A Diet?

By Rev. Joyce Kramer

Have you ever attempted to go on a diet? Most people seem to have quite a bit of trouble staying on one unless it is of dire necessity. However, it is frequently important that we get rid of the burden of juggling around excess baggage.

Try a new kind of diet. This diet will change your entire life for the better if you will diligently follow it.

Your new diet is a mental one. It simple involves refraining from entertaining negative, limiting, destructive thoughts in your mind. It is generally prescribed for a week, but how about trying it for just a day. When you have successfully completed one day wherein your mind was free all negative, limiting, destructive thoughts, try it the next day. Move on this way until you have successfully dieted for an entire week.

You will be amazed at the good results of this diet. Your life will overflow with great blessings. Will you try it?

I ALLOW ONLY POSITIVE, EXPANSIVE, CONSTRUCTIVE THOUGHTS A PLACE IN MY MIND.

Share Easy To Make Treat With Witches And Goblins

Witches and black cats know the Halloween! So do children, who look eagerly for a special trick or treat.

A perfect place setting is a popcorn cat or witch with plump, ebony prunes cut into ears, nose and mouth. Prunes are a wonderful sweet—delicious enough for children and healthy enough to please the most nutritious-conscious parent.

HALLOWEEN POPCORN BALLS

1-1/2 cups clear corn syrup
1 teaspoon peppermint extract
8 cups popped popcorn
28 pitted prunes
Black witches' hats made of paper

Toothpicks
In a saucepan boil corn syrup for 15 to 20 minutes or until syrup when dropped into cold water forms a hard ball. Stir in peppermint. Pour syrup over popcorn and toss until popcorn is coated. Cool slightly and shape mixture into 8 large balls, enclosing a pitted prune in the center of each ball. Place popcorn balls into sherbet glasses to hold upright. Cut remaining prunes into pieces for eyes, nose and mouth for witch. Cut prunes into long strips for witch's hair. Top with a paper hat. Cut eyes and nose for cat and press toothpicks into either side for whiskers. To fasten pieces in place press soft sticky part of cut prune into popcorn. To store, overwrap with plastic wrap. Makes 4 cats and 4 witches.

Holiday wreaths, hand puppets, ceramic figurines, waste baskets, pillows are just a few of the handmade items that will be sold at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church bazaar November 6. Here, Mrs. Cora Lorkiewicz, Mrs. Margery Stallman and Mrs. Beth Lindsey display just a sample of the large assortment they'll be selling.

At Va. Beach United Methodist

They'll have a Teenage Stop innovation at the Virginia Beach United Methodist Church bazaar November 3. Patty Walton and Gary Treake figure these handmade skirts and belts will sell out fast. What's more, there will be a live band for the teenagers. All that, along with the hundreds of items that adults will take home, will make for a busy bazaar at the 18th Street church.

Paper Drive Set For Band Uniforms

If you've ever had a child who has played in a school band, you know just how hard it is to come by those uniforms. They're expensive, and the children and parents have to work together to raise the money somehow.

At Plaza Junior High School, where the band is new and uniforms are lacking, they've set up a paper drive for October 30, and the proceeds will be put toward purchase of uniforms.

There will be drivers in the school vicinity at 9 a.m. and if you live in an area served by the school the papers can be picked up. There will also be a truck on the school parking lot from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

And if there are others, not directly involved with the band, who would like to have paper picked up, simply call the school.

Papers do have a way of accumulating, and in many cases, it's a real service to have someone take them away. And it's an even bigger service to the band members, who are trying so hard to raise funds for their uniforms.

Caton's Senate Value Questioned By Guy

Del. Richard D. Guy, Democratic nominee for the State Senate, Tuesday questioned the value Sen. Edward T. (Ned) Caton, III, would be to the people of Virginia Beach should he be re-elected as an independent.

Guy raised the question in the following statement:

"The question of whether the independent candidate in this campaign would gain seniority or be admitted to the Democratic Caucus if he were elected is of prime importance in this election. Virginia Beach will have three Democratic members of the House of Delegates and it has been and is my belief that Virginia Beach just cannot afford to be represented in the Senate by either a member of the minority party or by someone who would be a loner in the Senate.

"During this campaign I have discussed this point and have outlined the precedent which clearly demonstrates that one running independent of the Democratic Party would remain without seniority in the Senate and that, for all practical purposes, he would be of little use to his constituents. He would not be admitted to the Democratic Caucus which in effect makes many of the important decisions affecting appointments, appropriation of funds and many other vital matters.

"As an example: During the recent session of the General Assembly I was a co-patron of a bill to increase the size of the State Corporation Commission from 3 to 5 members. This could not be acted upon because we were in a Special Session. However, indications are that in the 1972 session the SCC will be increased in size. The new consumer-oriented commission will be named in the Independent would be excluded from the Democratic caucus."

Physician Charged

The alleged sale of birth control pills to an unmarried 15-year-old girl, according to police, has resulted in charging a resort city physician with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Lt. Henry Capps, Juvenile Division C.O. said the charge was placed against Dr. Ann R. Karnitschnig, 39, of Starling Court, on the basis of a warrant obtained by the girls' father.

The warrant reportedly contended the sale of the pills to the juvenile girl was made without permission of her parents.

Mrs. Barbara Simiele, president of the club, chats with (left to right) Sidney Kellam, Ivan Mapp, Owen Pickett, Glenn McClannan and Richard Guy.

Burglary Arrests

Officials identified the adult as Thomas Wilson, 18, of Clearfield Avenue. The juveniles ranged in age from 15 to 17 years.

The burglaries reportedly involved break-ins at St. Gregory's Catholic Church on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Investigators said the group will also face grand larceny charges in connection with thefts of auto parts and accessories from vehicles at Kempsville Auto Sales, Wittdruck Road; Davis Corner Motors, Virginia Beach Boulevard; and B & F Tire Company, Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Back Bay To Meet Candidates

Incumbent Senator William Hodges, Democrat, and Republican Ed Trotman are competing for the senatorial seat which, in the last redistricting, combined Virginia Beach's Pungo, Blackwater and Princess Anne Boroughs, or portions of the boroughs, with the City of Chesapeake.

The purpose of tonight's meeting is to introduce these candidates so that Virginia Beach residents will be more knowledgeable when they go to the polls Tuesday.

The Back Bay Civic League will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at Creeds Elementary School to meet and hear that area's two candidates for the State Senate.

Charges Continue

Additional charges were filed this week against several juvenile boys arrested last week in connection with a series of break-ins at schools in the Kempsville Borough.

The ages of the juveniles range from 10 to 16 years, with a total of 18 burglary charges involved.

The schools which allegedly were burglarized include Princess Anne High, Kellam High, and Kempsville Heights. One of the juveniles has also been charged in connection with destruction of property at the Plaza Junior High School.

Officials said the juveniles have also admitted to a number of thefts of bicycles, and resale of the bikes, reported in the resort city recently, as well as thefts of assorted items from automobiles.

Miss Pickett Reigns

Karen Pickett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Pickett, of Chesapeake Colony, was crowned Homecoming Queen at Cox High School last Friday night. The school beauty is a 17-year-old senior, co-captain of the cheerleaders, a member of the National Honor Society, Sigma Chi Sigma Y-Teens, and the Girls' Athletic Association. She has held various class offices in the past, and after graduation in June, Karen plans to attend college.

Cast Is Named

Bill Britton, director of the Virginia Beach Little Theatre production of "The King and I" has announced the cast for the hit Broadway musical.

Faye Whitlock will portray Anna, the governess who has come to the East to teach the young children of the King of Siam, and Phil Uhler will portray the king whose slightly Western ideas and beliefs caused many constructive changes in his country.

The roles of Anne and the King were first created on Broadway by Yul Brynner and Gertrude Lawrence and later in the movies by Brynner and Deborah Kerr. In an early drama of the novel, "Anna and the King of Siam," the roles were created on the screen by Rex Harrison and Irene Dunn.

The role of Madam Thiang, the king's favorite wife and mother of his heir to the throne, will be portrayed by Mary Jane Utley and Norman Johnson will be the prince. The two lovers, ("Hello, Young Lovers") will be Katy McDonald as Tuptim and Tim Norton as Lun Tha.

Other main roles will be Greg Smith as Anna's son, Louis; Bob Frumiss as the Prime Minister, Tom Martin as the interpreter and John MacArthur in the dual role of Captain Orton and Sir Edward Ramsey. The King's wives will be Ruth Serman, Carolyn Cox, Carol Hargis, Marie Phillips, Mary Jo Parker, Diane Tashner and Sally Ceteras. The young princes and princesses will be Peter Spitz, Tanya Norton, Seth Ceteras, Sarah Ceteras, Margaret Uley, Lisa Rinkov, Chuck Hargis and (the wee one) Jennifer Hargis. The slaves will be portrayed by William Schmidt, Greg Parker and Ken Phillips.

Working with Britton is Jean Washburn, assistant director; Laura Clark, accompanist; Larry Williams, choreographer; and Mrs. Witlock, musical director.

The Rodgers and Hammerstein musical produced such memorable songs as "Hello, Young Lovers," "Getting to Know You," "Shall We Dance?" "Something Wonderful," "Whistle A Happy Tune" and many others which popularity has made classics.

The production will open the new theatre, building on 24th Street and Barborton Drive and will launch the theatre's 1971-72 season. It will open November 26 and will run November 27, November 30-December 4 and December 7-11.

What do these two youngsters have in common? Both their fathers are running for political office in Tuesday's election. Feld is the son of William H. Harris, senatorial candidate, and wife Bertie and Beverly Ann is the daughter of Del. Bev. Middleton and wife Ann. The two are in an exhibit of pastel portraits by Lee Lively at Imperial Gallery.

Chipok-Led Bayside Trips Tough Lake Taylor 21-16

When it appeared that a stubborn Lake Taylor defensive line would contain the Bayside backs and render the Marlin Fishers harmless, quarterback Tom Chipok went to his passing offense and led his Marlins to victory, 21-16. The win upped the Bayside record to four wins in seven outings, while the loss was Lake Taylor's fifth in seven starts.

The explosive Lake Taylor offense scored first in the game on a 46 yard run by Leon Williams. Jim Flowers kicked the conversion to give the Titans the lead at the end of the first quarter 7-0.

Flanker Leroy Baxter hauled in a 60 yard Tom Chipok pass for a touchdown, and a Thad Harold point-after conversion kick tied things up at 7-all in the second quarter. Lake Taylor quickly regained the lead when quarterback Robert Mansfield hit George Ladikus on a screen pass that went for 18 yards and a score. The conversion kick failed, but Lake Taylor had the lead at 13-7. With just ten seconds left in the half, Tom Chipok called a screen pass of his own and Roger Baxter went 35 yards for the touchdown to tie the game at 13-all. Harold sent his team into a one point lead, 14-13, when his conversion boot was good.

In the third quarter, Jim Flowers kicked the Eastern District's third field goal of the season, a 25 yarder to give Lake Taylor the lead back at 16-14. Just as it was beginning to appear like this would be the game's final score, Bayside got the ball back for their quarterback and Chipok went to work. With 1:22 left in the contest, Chipok found end Steve Meiss open and hit him with a 26 yard pass for a touchdown. Harold's boot again was perfect, and Bayside pulled out the game 21-16.

The Bayside offense was led by their quarterback Tom Chipok. Chipok completed six of 14 passes, three of them were touchdown passes, for a total of 190 yards. Twice when his team was trailing, Chipok brought them from behind to take the lead on his scoring tosses. Roger Baxter, Leroy Baxter, and Steve Meiss caught key passes during the scoring drives. The running and catching wizardry of the Baxter brothers accounted for 190 of Bayside's total 282 offensive yards.

Marlin quarterback Tom Chipok hands off to his streaking halfback Roger Baxter in Friday night's win over Lake Taylor.

Bayside's Bill Summerlin throws Titan quarterback Robert Mansfield for a loss.

First Colonial Wins 7th Straight 27-6

It was a muddy field and a dreary, rainy night, but the Patriots of First Colonial kept their record bright with a convincing 27-6 victory over the Churchland Trainers. The Patriot victory, seven in a row without a defeat, sets up the showdown for district honors tomorrow night with a Maury Commodores in Foreman Field.

The Patriots got off to an early first quarter lead when quarterback Butch Foley sneaked the ball over from the one yard line. Kicker Butch Foley booted the point after conversion, and his team led 7-0. Tyrone Little went through the middle of the line from three yards out to give the Patriot's their second score. Foley kicked another conversion, to give his team 14 points at halftime.

Churchland got their lone score in the second quarter on a one yard dive by Darrell Rodgers. The pass for a two point conversion did not connect, and the Trainers went into the dressing room at halftime trailing 14-6.

After a scoreless third quarter, the Patriots stormed back for two more scores. Foley connected on a 23 yard touchdown pass to Bill Barnette to go ahead 20-6. The run for a two point conversion failed. Rick Lavrischeff romped 18 yards for the game's final touchdown, and after Foley booted the conversion, the Patriots led 27-6.

Mike Wareing was the leading ground gainer for First Colonial, picking up 94 yards in a dozen carries. Tyrone Little added 55 yards in 5 tries, and Butch Foley rushed for 50 yards in 6 attempts, including a long 36 yard run. Foley completed only 4 of 9 pass attempts, but one of those completions went for a touchdown. For the team, First Colonial wound up with 313 total yards, 236 by land and 78 by air. Don Pulley, Joe Williams, and Chris Paphites caught the passes.

Patriot head coach Frank Webster named Mike Wareing as the outstanding defensive player. Joe Williams, Doug Janezek, Jerry Pontes, and George Myers intercepted a pass each. Pontes returned his interception 10 yards to set up the game's first score five plays later. Mike O'Reilly dumped the Trucker punter on Churchland's own 27 yard line to set up his team's second score four plays later. First Colonial's defense limited Churchland to 156 yards offensively, 128 of which were gained rushing.

Usually a team sharp in play execution, the Patriots turned the ball over to the Trainers four times, losing three fumbles and one interception. To beat the tough Maury team Friday night, the Patriots will have to return to their almost flawless ball handling style seen in games past.

Randy Robinson, Cox fullback, powers his way through the line for a first down.

Cox 7-0 Over Kellam In Defensive Battle

Defense was the main course on the Cox-Kellam menu Friday night in honor of a large homecoming crowd who braved the rain that lasted throughout the game. With only 3:49 left, Karl Taylor served the old grads dessert and sent them home wet, but happy, as the Falcons won 7-0.

It looked as though the game would end as a scoreless defensive duel when Karl Taylor received a Kellam punt and returned it down the right sideline 55 yards for a touchdown. Brooks Williams booted the extra point, giving Cox seven points and the game.

"It was a hard fought defensive game," said Cox's head coach George McGovern afterwards. "I was exceptionally pleased with our defensive play, but we're not moving the ball consistently on offense."

McGovern singled out Chuck Litz, Ray White, Brooks Williams, Bill Summa, Terry Roche, and David Swingle as playing outstandingly. Litz and White each intercepted a wayward Kellam pass. Brooks Williams put heavy pressure on the Kellam quarterbacks, throwing them for heavy losses. Summa was credited with being the key to the defense that stopped the running attack of the Knights. Roche, a middle linebacker, and Swingle, defensive safety, made key plays to stop Kellam drives. The defensive unit of Cox held the

P. A. And Kempsville Stalemate At 14-14

Neither Princess Anne nor Kempville could put together a whole game Friday night, and the contest ended in a 14-14 deadlock. Princess Anne won the first half 14-0, but Kempville won the second half by an identical 14-0 score. Both teams needed a win badly to help salvage a losing season, but the tie proved to be a wasted effort in their quest.

"We played a good first half, but we couldn't get anything going in the second half,"

Billy Paschall again was a standout on the Kempville offense. Playing with a foot that had been badly burned only two hours earlier, Paschall scored one touchdown on a two yard carry and passed 25 yards to end Biff Dragas for another touchdown. Bob Taylor booted both extra point conversions after the two third quarter touchdowns. An attempt to win the game with just two seconds left in the contest failed as a Taylor field goal effort fell short.

Cavaller defensive guard Jim Tharp drives across the line to throw Kempville's running back Julius Hurdle for a loss.

a very doubtful starter in Friday night's game with Indian River. As the game last Friday night was getting underway, Coach Moon noticed Paschall limping and asked him what was wrong. "Nothing," Paschall replied, withholding the knowledge of the injury from his coach until after the game. Apparently the injury hampered Paschall very little. He completed 17 of 31 passes for 250 yards, scored one touchdown and passed for the other.

The Kempville defense received plaudits from Coach Moon. The Chiefs held the Cavaliers on three goal line stands within their five yard stripe. Receiving praise for their performance were defensive halfback Rudy Mackey, defensive safety Mike Mills, and Harold Costner, a strong can-

In the driving rain, Cavalier kicker Dennis Allard makes a desperate attempt to win the game with a field goal in the final minutes.

Princess Anne Coach John Grady commented.

Like anecho with only the half designation changed, Kempville Coach Tracy Moon said, "The first half was all Princess Anne. Our whole ballgame was played in the second half."

Ken Ahles led the Cavaliers both on offense and defense. Ahles scored all fourteen of the Cavalier points, running over two touchdowns and a two point conversion. Defensively, Ahles intercepted two Kempville passes and figured in key defensive plays throughout the night.

For Princess Anne's defensive unit, Coach Grady cited Joe Roenker, Mike Casey, and David Van Petten as having played a good game. Casey had an interception to his credit. The Cavalier defense stopped Kempville three times to take over the football on fourth and one situations deep in Cavalierland.

Joe Roenker also won praise for his offensive play. Mike Ange went all the way again at quarterback except for half a dozen plays where Mark Wilcox ran the offense. Wilcox's short stint produced a good run that won praise from his coach and quite probably will cause him to see more action as a running back while Ange is at quarterback. Dennis Allard missed a field goal attempt from the 18 yard line late in the game in a Cavalier try for all the marbles.

A view from the rear is what our sports photographer and the Kellam Knights saw as Cox's Karl Taylor, surrounded by a wall of blockers, heads for the goal line, leaving everyone behind and scoring the game's only touchdown.

Clinton Graves, a former football star for the Patriots of First Colonial High School, has been credited with being a standout member of the 1971 Temple University football team. Wayne Hardin, head coach of the Temple Owls, credits Graves with being the leading pass receiver in yardage for his team. The junior flanker has 12 catches for 153 yards, averaging 12.8 yards per reception. Earl Cleghorn, now an assistant coach and scout for Temple, formerly played football for Granby High School. Don Carden, a graduate of Hampton High School, is one of Temple's leading defensive players with a total of 25 tackles and two blitzes of opposing quarterbacks to his credit.

Knight to 75 yards rushing and 45 yards passing, a total of 121 yards offense.

John Cooke, head coach of the Kellam Knights, also praised his defensive unit. "Our defense did a good job," Cooke stated. "They gave the offensive unit the ball several times in good field position, but the offense couldn't take advantage of it. Poor blocking seemed to be the main cause of our offensive breakdown."

Although Coach Cooke singled out tackle George Irby as the top defensive player for the game, he emphasized that the whole defensive unit did well. Irby wound up with eleven tackles, seven of them unassisted. Scott Layden made five key tackles, and David Marquette added three more. Mike Tate and Joe Bray had an interception each to their credit.

The Knight defensive unit led Cox to only 91 yards total offense, all of it on the ground.

Although Cox quarterbacks completed two of seven passes, they went for no net gain. Offensively, Clinton Cuffee accounted for 32 of Kellam's rushing yards. For Cox, Karl Taylor was the leading ground gainer with 55 yards.

David Swingle, outstanding Cox defenseman, reflects on the game as his offensive unit is on the field.

Mike DeJulio throws a halfback option pass after pitchout from Kellam quarterback Keith Rieger. Cox's Brooks Williams (81) crashes through in an attempt to break things up.

Sharing offensive honors with Paschall, Dragas, and Taylor, are center Harold King, and guard Sandy Rhoads.

Statistically, the game was as close as the score indicates. Kempville had 10 first downs and 243 total offensive yards, and Princess Anne made 11 first downs and 227 yards. For Princess Anne, Ahles had 81 yards in 17 carries, Roenker 62 yards in 13 carries, Wilcox 23 yards in 4 trips, and Ange 11 yards in 9 tries. Ange passed 11 times, completing 3 for 35 yards. Wilcox was 0 for 1 in the passing department.

Conviction Upheld

Sheriff John E. Marr's contempt of court conviction, and subsequent fine of $500, has been upheld by the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Marr was convicted of contempt of court last December when he failed to appear in federal court to answer charges of failing to racially integrate the Virginia Beach City Jail in accordance with State regulations. Such charges were brought against Marr by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Marr informed the Court he would be unable to attend the hearing due to a conflicting meeting of the Kempsville Masonic Lodge, of which he has been an officer for considerable time.

Belt Campaign Scheduled

The Virginia Beach Safety Council will be conducting a campaign throughout next week to urge resort city motorists to use seat belts.

In his proclamation supporting the campaign Mayor Donald H. Rhodes pointed out that research shows the number of deaths and injuries resulting from traffic accidents in Virginia last year could have been reduced 20 per cent through the use of seat belts.

Rhodes also pointed out that accidents of Virginia highways during 1970 resulted in 1,231 fatalities and 48,354 injuries.

"Keep It All Together" is the theme of the campaign which, according to campaign director Charles Eisele, Jr., will get underway Sunday morning with a number of resort city churches "stressing the need for religion on the highways to their members."

Safety belt materials

developed by the Automotive Industries Division of Highway Users Federation, including pamphlets and brochures, will be distributed throughout the city.

A "Seat Belt Convincer" developed by the Virginia Highway Safety Commission, the only instrument of its kind on the East Coast, will be utilized to demonstrate the benefits of using seat belts.

The device will be on display and available to the public at Princess Anne Plaza on Tuesday, at Peoples Drug Store in Linkhorn Shopping Center on Thursday, and at Pembroke Mall from 3 to 9 p.m. the remaining days of next week.

To stress the importance of the safety belt campaign Safety Council President Don Fentress said, "The time has come for all our citizens to know the why and wherefore of safety belts.

Crepe Myrtle Blooms

"Now there's a beautiful blossom," Mrs. Alexander Donnan tells her husband, of the crepe myrtle trees that bloomed this summer in the median strip at 25th Street, between Arctic Avenue and Baltic Avenue. The Donnans are both members of the Virginia Beach Beautification Commission that landscaped the block as a gift to the City several years ago.
